Nats Knock Off Detroit For 3d Time In Row, 5-2

Kuzava's 6-Hitter Handcuffs Leaders; Trout Routed; Noren Slams Out 3 Singles

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 22.—Those impudent Nats again made themselves highly unpopular in Detroit today by slapping down the town's league-leading darlings, the Tigers, for the third straight day.

They did it, 5 to 2, behind the resplendent pitching of Mr. Bob Kuzava, who throttled the Tigers with six hits, and shut 'em out after the first inning.

And so, as the travelogues say, the Nats reluctantly take their leave of Beautiful Detroit where they illogically mopped up the three-game series against a white-hot Detroit team that had won 9 of its previous 10 games.

Guzava was quite magnificent in pitching his six-hitter after former Nat Gerry Priddy rocked him with a two-run homer in the first inning. He calmly pitched himself out of trouble in the second, sixth, seventh and ninth to make his lead stick.

Rewarding their third pitcher to go the route against the Tigers in three days, the Nats teed off vigorously against Dizzy Trout, for six of their hits in the first two innings. Trout couldn't last out the second. All told, the Nats assembled 13 hits.

They tied into Trout right at the beginning for three runs, with a pair of singles by Yost and Noren touching off the rally. Noren's blow to right scored Yost from second, and with two out Mele banged a double to center that scored Noren. Eddie Stewart checked in with a single to center that scored Mele.

Priddy got into the act almost right away to chip two runs off Kuzava's 3-0 lead. He emerged from his hitting slump with a tremendous homerun smash into the leftfield upper deck to score Johnny Lipon whose single opened the Tigers' first inning.

The Nats charged right back for another run off Trout after two were out in the second. Walking Yost was Trout's mistake. Combs and Noren banked consecutive singles and Kuzava had a 4-2 lead.

They gave him the comfort of another run in the ninth, just in case. Combs singled to right with two out, Noren walked, and Vernon got Combs home with a single to right.

Kuzava's unsteadiness vanished after the first inning. He had control, walking only two batters all day. He got over the big hump in the sixth when Lipon and Priddy opened with singles with none out, and the meaty segment of the Tigers' batting order moving up to the plate.

In that crisis, Kuzava handled 'em easily. He disposed of league batting champ George Kell on a

Perjury Charged To Dr. Weinbaum After Red Inquiry

Los Angeles, June 22 (AP).—The United States grand jury tonight indicted Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, California Institute of Technology scientist, for perjury and fraud.

Weinbaum, 52, formerly was connected with Caltech's jet propulsion laboratory. The Government accused him of denying he was a Communist.

The indictent was returned after several hours of questioning of Dr. Jacob W. Dubnoff, 41, senior researcher in biochemistry at Caltech. At first Dubnoff refused to answer questions about Dr. Weinbaum, but when taken before a judge, he said he was ready to talk before the jury.

Order Eases July 1 Ban on Milk Imports

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

Chemical sterilization of dairy farm equipment, permitting more producers to send milk here, was given temporary approval by the District Commissioners yesterday.

Attorneys for three independent dairies urging the action said probably 300 to 500 Maryland and Pennsylvania farmers would, as a result, seek District Health Department permits to ship in milk.

The order is expected to remain in effect at least through July 10.

At the same time, Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) introduced a bill that would repeal the District's 1925 Milk Act December 31 and permit importation of milk complying with the United States Public Health Service standards. Miller said he had asked for an early hearing by the House District Committee.

The dairies urging the Commissioners to permit use of chemicals, instead of the more costly steam process now required, were Embassy, Wakefield and Highland Farms.

Their attorneys, Robert E. Lynch and John E. Hillyard, said the dairies now buy much of their milk from farms not holding District permits. If the chemical process is not permitted, Lynch said, the independent dairies would lose a substantial source of supply after June 30 and would be forced to buy at higher prices from the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association. At present the association supplies about 80 percent of the District's milk.

Lynch explained the situation this way:

After June 30, when the wartime emergency milk importation order expires, no milk may be shipped into the District from farms not holding Health Department permits. The independent dairies—which do not buy from the MVMPA—buy much of their milk from these noninspected farms. If the ban went into effect without a change in regulations, these farmers would ship elsewhere rather than buy steam equipment. But with use of chemicals allowed they may be ex-

D. C. Rent Bill Passed By Senate

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The Senate late yesterday approved and sent to the House a bill continuing District rent control through December 31, 1950, and telling the District Commissioners to decide before then if controls here shall continue through June 30, 1951.

The formula was presented by Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), outspoken foe of rent controls, and he alone said "no" in the voice vote that passed it.

Senate District Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) assured approval of Cain's proposal when he accepted it on behalf of the District Committee, which had recommended extension to January 31, 1951. The committee plan, same as one presented to the House by its District Committee, left it to Congress to decide in January on further control.

Split on Second Proposal

While Neely readily accepted the main formula proposed by Cain, the two Senators split sharply for a time on a second proposal by Cain.

This called for amending the committee's bill, to make clear that controls will be removed July 1 from all non-housekeepnig furnished rooms, including those in hotels. Cain protested the committee bill left hotel rooms subject to control. A second feature of the hotel amendment gives District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell instructions to decontrol apartments in hotels primarily catering to transients.

Neely finally accepted the hotel amendment offered by Cain after the latter served notice he would talk at length against the hotel provisions of the committee's bill.

Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), minority floor leader, paved the way for Cain and Neely to get together on the hotel amendment. But sparks flew before they did.

Wherry interrupted Cain to say he understood Neely was willing to accept Cain's plan for hotels to get the issue to conference. Neely confirmed it, saying he would accept the hotel amendment "against my better judgment" to get the bill cleared by the Senate.

Cain said that if his hotel amendment were thrown out in conference he would have no choice but to talk strongly against that action as he was willing to continue opposing the committee version.

Neely made a verbal running start into a blast at Cain—: "If it is necessary for me to sell my senatorial soul to get the consent of the Senator from Washington

Ship a Firetrap, Forbidden to Sail With 800 Students

New York, June 22 (NYHT).—Coast Guard inspectors today detained the 6800-ton Norwegian steamship Svalbard, scheduled to leave at 4 p. m. with 800 college students bound for European vacations. The Coast Guard described the ship as a "firetrap."

An official said the ship, which had been chartered by the National Student Association, was "generally unsuitable" and added that it "will not be allowed to clear this port with American passengers."

Low moans of disappointment went up from the men and women students already swarming over the Svalbard's pier when shortly after 11 a. m., Erskine Childres, 21, vice president of the NSA, told them the ship would be delayed "up to 36 hours."

The students paid $310 each for round-trip tickets on the Svalbard. After an 11-day passage to Rotterdam they were scheduled to scatter all over Europe for study and sightseeing. The return trip was set for August 31.

Capital Census

Only 835,000, Below Hopes, Counted Here

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The preliminary 1950 census figures for the District may be around 835,000 or even less.

The figure, The Washington Post was reliably informed yesterday, turned out to be so far below expectations that Census Bureau officials ordered a spot recheck to determine if the adding machines really were telling the truth. Because of the recheck, official announcement, originally expected two weeks ago, is still at least several days away.

Some estimates for Washington in 1950 had been as high as 900,000. The last official census figures was the July 1, 1948, estimate of 863,000 based on a sampling survey, not an actual head count like the current census.

But Census officials now are pretty well convinced that the tremendous building boom in the metropolitan area suburbs has drained off a big chunk of the citizens who lived here two years ago.

The 1940 total was 663,091, which placed Washington eleventh among the Nation's big cities. The gain, around 25 percent in the 1940-50 decade, still may catapult the capital city past Pittsburgh and Boston into ninth place. But chances of ranking higher appear slim.

The Washington experience appears to be the same as that in other large cities. Both Los Angeles and Cleveland, the only two major cities for which figures have been made public, showed gains considerably under the gen-

Coy Attacks Legal Status Of Race Wires

Senate crime investigators opened public hearings yesterday in a highly restrained manner.

The hearing made this news:

1. Federal Communications Commission Chairman Wayne Coy said it seemed "strange" to him that Continental Press, the Nationwide racing wire service, was "insulated" from prosecution for possible criminal violation of the antitrust laws:

2. Senator Hunt (D., Wyo.), a committee member, declaring he was "damned tired" of listening to race bet information broadcast on Washington area radios, won a promise from Coy to report on who's doing the broadcasting and who's paying whom for the air time.

Most of Coy's testimony was a rehash of what he and others weeks ago told the Senate Commerce Subcommittee which considered legislation to put the race wire out of business, thus dealing the off-track horse race betting a major blow.

At the end of his testimony, he suggested that one approach to the illegal betting problem would be use of the antitrust laws against Continental. He said the Cleveland firm had a "monopoly" and added that the fact there there is no competition in the lucrative business of running a race wire "strongly suggests that such monopoly may be maintained by agreement to avoid jurisdictional warfare, that it, in fact, may be controlled by some central authority through agreements in writing or otherwise."

Such agreements are exactly what the Senate Committee is supposed to turn up, if they exist.

Balanced Tax Bill Reported Out to House

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The so-called "balanced" tax bill, offsetting excise cuts with increased taxes on big corporations, yesterday was favorably reported by the House Ways and Means Committee by a vote of 17 to 8.

A breach in Republican ranks apparently assured House approval when the bill goes to a floor showdown next week.

Two Republicans, Thomas E. Martin of Iowa and Hal Holmes of Washington, voted with the committee's 15 Democrats to report the bill. Eight Republicans voted "No."

Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) was instructed by the committee to seek a "closed rule" on the bill, barring any House amendments.

Subject to Recommit Motion

The big bill will be subject to one Republican motion to "recommit" however. Last night GOP members were still divided on the form their motion will take, with some insisting it would be "political dynamite" to try to strike out the corporate tax.

The corporate tax feature was added to the bill to "proof" it against veto, but Mr. Truman declined comment at a press conference yesterday.

Asked if he would sign the bill, the President said he would have to wait and see the final product. He said the bill is still subject to a lot of changes before it comes to the White House.

Doughton, who originally opposed the increase in corporate rates, told newsmen he will support the bill "as a whole" on the floor.

He will go before the Rules Committee Monday to seek a green light for the measure and leaders tentatively plan to call it up Tuesday and vote on it later in the week.

Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) said he will open Senate hearings the following Monday (July 3). He made no predictions on what kind of a bill the Senate group will report, but agreed with Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas that it must go to a Senate vote. "But it will mean prolonging the session," said George.

Many Excises Are Cut

The House bill cuts wartime increases in a wide range of excise taxes a total of $1,010,000,000. But all but 12 million dollars of the revenue loss is recouped by plugging loopholes and by increasing taxes on large corporations (earning over $167,000) by a total of 433 million dollars.

The Social Security expansion bill passed Tuesday by the Senate meanwhile became involved in a behind-the-scene pay roll tax debate centering around a little-known tax collection device included in the measure.

The liberalized old-age insurance bill provides for "combined" withholding of income and employe Social Security taxes, to simplify employer's auditing problems and cut down some of the collection red tape.

The provision was so worded that some members of the House and Senate said they feared it would result in collection of Social Security taxes on the full amount of a worker's earnings rather than merely on the $3600 "wage base" prescribed in the bill.

The bill makes it clear, however, that any "excess" collections would

Truman and Lausche Shake Hands, Ignore Taft Issue

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman and Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio shook hands yesterday, had a "delightful chat," and blithely ignored something that must have been very much on both their minds.

This was Governor Lausche's Greenbrier statement on Monday that he had not decided how he would vote in Ohio's senatorial contest in November, whether it would be for Senator Robert A. Taft, sometimes called "Mr. Republican," or Taft's Democratic rival, Joseph T. (Jumping Joe) Ferguson.

Mr. Truman was asked at a press-radio conference yesterday morning what he thought of the "indecision" of Ohio's Democratic Governor. He declined to comment, but did say, in answer to another question, that Ferguson would be elected without a doubt.

A reporter wanted to know how the President would vote if he were voting in Ohio.

Mr. Truman answered promptly that he would vote the straight Democratic ticket as he always did.

The Chief Executive and Governor Lausche met a few hours later at the Mayflower. The occasion was a luncheon for Democratic governors who attended the forty-second annual Governors' Conference at the Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Reporters were not present, but were waiting outside when Governor Lausche and the others emerged from the Pan American Room.

"Did you shake hands with the President?" Lausche was asked.

"Oh, of course," the Ohioan said. "The President was most pleasant and delightful."

He said, in answer to another question, that he and Mr. Truman had a "delightful chat." The Governor declined to say what they talked about, but it was learned on good authority that they steered clear of the Taft-Ferguson battle.

Mr. Truman made a brief speech to the assemblage of Governors, which by design did not include Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi, and got from them a report on the political temper of the people in various States.

The President, according to one Governor, urged them not to be diverted by "dead horses." They

House Votes To Let Army Enlist Aliens

The House voted yesterday to let 2500 hand-picked alien men enlist in the United States Army.

By a vote of 201 to 86 it passed a bill permitting the Army, with State Department approval, to accept the foreign enlistees. The measure also would pave the way for them to become American citizens after five years of Army service.

The bill now goes to the Senate, which last August voted to allow the Army to accept 10,000 foreign enlistments.

Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee said the Army wants the legislation because it needs the specialized services of men familiar with foreign terrain, languages and customs.

The Senate Armed Services Committee meanwhile approved a bill for a 350 million dollar start on modernization of the Navy.

It recommended for passage a House-approved bill authorizing construction of 30,000 tons of combat vessels, 10,000 tons of auxiliary vessels and 10,000 tons of experimental types.

The legislation also will permit conversion and modernization of 125,000 tons of combat vessels and 75,000 tons of auxiliary vessels.

Earlier a Senate Appropriations subcommittee had approved funds for the modernization of 10 submarines and 6 destroyers.

Earlier yesterday President Truman at his news conference again opposed the long-sought "70-group air force." He said the country can't pay for it. This was a setback to 70-group advocates who were pleased Wednesday when a Senate-House conference committee agreed on that figure as an air force ceiling.

The Truman program calls for about 48 first-line groups. The "group" is a variable unit, made up of no fixed number of planes.

Flush-Deck Carrier To Be Built by Navy

The navy has been given a go-ahead to build a flush-deck aircraft carrier similar to the one Defense Secretary Johnson halted on the ways last year.

A navy official who disclosed this last night said work on the carrier would not start until next year, however.

He said plans for the flush-deck carrier call for a runway 25 feet longer than is now provided on the 986 foot long, 45,000-ton Midway class.

French Admit Allies Fortifying In West Europe

Frankfurt, Germany, June 22 (AP).—French occupation authorities officially disclosed tonight that defense fortifications, presumably against Russian attack, are being built in western Europe.

The French made the disclosure in connection with reports of defense preparations along the Rhine River near the famed Lorelei rock.

"The measures of a military character which are being carried out below the Lorelei are in no way isolated," the announcement said. "They are not exclusively French, but resulted from inter-Allied initiative.

"They are preventative measures, resulting from inter-Allied agreement, and can be also noticed at most important traffic points, not only in the German federal area, but also in France and in other western European countries," announcement said.

It described as "nonsense" German fears that defense measures below the Lorelei indicated Allied plans to blow up the rock. Communist agitators have been trying to convince West Germans that Allied blasting of the rock would block the Rhine and inundate Rhine Valley towns in case of war.

In connection with the French announcement, Allied officials here stressed there is no indication the West fears immediate Soviet attack.

Service Says China Charges Are Unfounded

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

State Department Diplomat John S. Service yesterday firmly denied, in general and in detail, the two basic accusations that have been laid against him: that he fostered a pro-Communist policy when he served in China, and that he was guilty of wrongdoing in the 1945 Amerasia stolen documents case.

The thin, youthful-looking career officer made his defense before a special Senate Subcommittee investigating the charge of Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) and the Amerasia affair. In a last minute change of plans, the hearings were opened to the press and public.

As they ended—seven hours of them—a major and new charge, made by imputation rather than directly, was still unsolved. It was the intimation, from the Republican subcommittee members' counsel, that Service had passed "military information" to Philip J. Jaffe, the editor of Amerasia magazine, the principal figure who was convicted in that case, and who has been reported as having had close Communist connections.

Service Flatly Denies It

Service denied flatly that he had ever given Jaffe any "secret military information" in any of the half-dozen contacts he had with him in April and May, 1945, just before he, Jaffe, and four others were arrested in the Amerasia case.

But the minority members' counsel, Robert Morris, referred pointedly to some FBI testimony and documents, produced before the subcommitte at an earlier, secret session. He asked to have this testimony or evidence made a part of the record in Service's hearing. From what he said about it, guardedly, it apparently suggested that Service had, indeed, given classified military data to Jaffe.

Subcommittee Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) refused Morris' request, on grounds that the evidence had come out at closed hearings and that he did not choose to put parts of secret testimony on the record piecemeal. He said he waned the whole story that the FBI had to tell about the Amerasia case to come out at one time. He indi-

President's Authority Limited to 'Necessity'

Two Moves to Keep Segregation Beaten; Measure Now Faces Conference Action

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Senate passed legislation extending the draft act for another three years yesterday, after limiting President Truman's power to order men into uniform.

Under a compromise worked out on the floor, the President could direct the induction of men aged 19 through 25 only while Congress is not in session and if he declares the move a "national necessity."

Senate action came by voice vote shortly after both Houses of Congress rushed through a stopgap resolution continuing the present law for another 15 days. The 1948 Selective Service Act expires at midnight tonight.

This period of grace will give the Senate and House time to compose their differences over the bill. Earlier, the House voted a two-year extension of the law, but provided that no one could be inducted unless Congress declares a national emergency to exist.

Machinery Would Continue

Under this "draftless draft," Selective Service local boards and State and national headquarters would continue, young men would still have to register and they would be examined and classified. Proponents described it as purely a "war emergency mobilization" measure, aimed at saving valuable time should trouble come.

The Administration, at the urging of Pentagon chiefs, had asked a straight three-year extension of the present law. Under it, inductions could be ordered any time a lack of volunteers reduces the Army below what is considered a safe strength.

Both Republicans and Democrats on the Senate Armed Services Committee backed the straight three-year extension asked by President Truman. Faced yesterday with strong opposition from other GOP Senators, however, the committee leaders agreed to a compromise.

It provides that inductions may be ordered while Congress is in session only by a concurrent Senate-House resolution declaring—not a national emergency—but that such action is necessary to keep the armed services up to appropriated strength.

If Congress is not in session, the President can order inductions if he finds that the "national necessity" requires such action in order to keep the armed forces up to strength.

Senate Republican Leader Robert Taft (Ohio) had suggested that the President have such power when Congress is not meeting only if he declared a national emergency.

But Senators Millard Tydings (D., Md.), and Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), objected to the word "emergency," arguing that it Navy Plane Bursts Afire and Crashes Near Bedford, Va.

Bedford, Va., June 22 (AP).—A four-engined plane caught fire in mid-air near here tonight and crashed, carrying four or five person to their deaths, witnesses reported.

The log of the ship indicated it was en route to the Patuxent Naval Base, Md., State police said.

Bedford police said the scene of the crash was an open field about 8 miles south of here.

(In Washington, CAA officials said eearly today the plane was evidently "a naval experimental job" flying from Muroc, Calif., to the Patuxtent Naval Base, Md.)

Frank S. Mitchell said four or five bodies were thrown from the buring wreckage. He said one victim was a sailor.

A. C. Tweedy, an eye witness, said the plane first struck a hillside and that it bore the insignia of the U. S. Navy.

"There were explosions like a pistol firing as the main part burned — probably ammunition," Tweedy said. An auxiliary gas tank still containing fuel was found about 500 yards from the crash, he said.

U. S. Workers Eligible Again For Promotions Under Ruling

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Federal employes are again eligible for grade promotions.

The Comptroller General yesterday ruled that the promotion ban applies only to the Office of the Housing Expediter and to funds for fighting forest fires. Most other agencies, however, are definitely restricted on the number of grade promotions they may now make.

The decision reversed an earlier informal decision by the General Accounting Office which had advised most agencies not to make grade promotions from May 22 through June 30. At that time GAO was of the opinion that grade promotions were outlawed temporarily in most agencies by a provision in the joint resolution that advanced funds to meet Federal payrolls.

The GAO ruling was challenged by several agencies. The Postoffice Department requested a formal ruling on three separate cases involving grade promotions for its employes. In ruling that Postoffice could make the promotions, the door was opened to similar actions throughout Government, OHE and forest fighter funds excepted.

But the comptroller did rule, in effect, that grade promotions would be limited. He wrote Postoffice in part: "On the other hand if the

'Pool' Nations Mark Time On Plan for Joint Parliament

Paris, June 22 (NYHT).—The six-nation discussions on the French-proposed coal-steel pool continued today, but no delegation was prepared to take a stand on the suggestions advanced yesterday by France without further clarification and reflection.

The most important of these suggestions was that a joint parliament be created to exercise democratic control over the high authority that has been proposed as an international body to direct the pool.

A member of the German delegation said the implications were so far-reaching nothing could be said here until the Bonn government had had a chance to study it.

The position of the other governments appeared similar. The Dutch said they were unwilling to comment now. The Italians, Belgians and Luxembourgeois all asked Jean Monnet, chief French delegate, questions designed to throw further light on his proposal, but none made a declaration of their position.

After today's session, Monnet explained to correspondents that the French government's idea was that the joint assembly should have the power to vote the high authority out of office. Only in this way, he said, could democratic control be exercised.

The French idea, he explained,

Gunfire Wounds 4 In Tennessee Strike

Morristown, Tenn., June 22 (U.P.).—A 25-minute gun battle at the strikebound American Enka rayon mill wounded four men today and State troopers jailed more than 50 CIO strikers.

Before 75 highway patrol reinforcements arrived with tommy guns, the combatants had turned the mill into a small fortress. Hundreds of shots were fired toward the building from a barricade formed by a highway embankment. Armed workers returned the barrage from inside.

Three non-union men were wounded seriously and a striker suffered a flesh wound.

Although the CIO Textile Workers Union denied its members started the shooting, the troopers promptly "cleaned out" the union hall in Morristown.

Carload after carload of CIO members were taken to the Hamblen County Jail, finger-printed, denied bond and questioned individually. The prisoners included N. H. Whited, president, and Silas Switzer, business agent of the striking CIO local.

Gunmen Dispersed

Desultory shots whined across the wheat fields around the mill even after the patrol dispersed the gunmen on the highway and made those inside cease fire.

Complete order was restored after noon, however, and a partial shift change was made at 3:30 p. m. EST without incident.

Some 20 workers who entered or left the plant were armed. They carried pistols, shotguns and Tennessee squirrel guns.

C. E. Kaiser, safety manager of the mill, asserted that "there's no question about it—the strikers started the shooting."

"We know the man who touched it off, but I'm not saying who he is now," Kaiser said.

But Joe McCarthy of New York, a public relations representative of the Textile Workers Union, accused the ENKA Corp. of starting the battle "to bring more troops and police here."

The gun fight was the worst of more than a dozen outbreaks during the 12 weeks old strike.

Pullman Conductors Strike Called July 11

Chicago, June 22 (U.P.).—The Order of Railway Conductors called a strike of all Pullman conductors for July 11 today in the latest move by railroad unions which may bring widespread walkouts by mid-July.

The Switchmen's Union of North America (AFL) has ordered a strike of 4000 members this Sunday against five Western and Midwestern railroads.

The conductors, together with the big Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, also threaten a walkout of 250,000 members by July 15 in a demand for a 40-hour work week.

However, officials of the conductors and trainmen said today that the mid-July walkout, if it comes, may only be called against a few carriers rather than on a Nation-wide basis.

Hague Machine Collections From City Employes Reported

Jersey City, June 22 (NYHT).—The political organization of Frank Hague, who was deposed as boss of the Democratic Party of New Jersey in May, 1949, collected a total of $361,649 in political contributions from approximately 3000 employes of the City of Jersey City during 1948 and 1949, according to a report made today by William A. Sternkopf, jr., City Auditor.

Sternkopf began to investigate the Hague organization practice of exacting three percent of each employe's salary for political campaigns when he took office with the administration of Mayor John V. Kenny, which defeated the Hague regime.

The report covers only "about a third" of the employes under Hague organization control. Not included were approximately 6000 employes of the Jersey City Medical Center, Board of Education and Hudson County whose total payroll in the period investigated was 43 million dollars.

City Corporation Counsel John B. Graff said it was "probable" that he would forward the report to the United States Attorney General, the Kefauver Committee of the United States Senate investigating crime, the New Jersey attorney general and the Hudson County prosecutor.

The report pointed out that a careful check of party financial records of the national, State and county Democratic committees showed only $1140 each year turned over to those organizations for campaign purposes.

Rome, June 22 (AP).—Prof. Mihail Dragomirescu, Romanian Minister to Rome, resigned his post today and refused to return to his country, foreign ministry officials said.

The Romanian Legation applied to the foreign ministry to recognize Mihai Levin, the legation's first secretary, as charge d'affaires.

Truman Is Silent On Hutchinson's Chance in Senate

By The Associated Press

President Truman declined yesterday to say whether he believes he will be able to get Senate confirmation of his appointment of Martin A. Hutchinson of Richmond, Va., to the Federal Trade Commission.

The question was raised at the President's news conference. Mr. Truman said he had no comment.

Htuchinson's nomination has been opposed by Virginia's Senators Byrd and Robertson, Democrats. They contend he is not qualified for the post.

Hutchinson ran against Byrd for the Democratic senatorial nomination in 1946.

One of Byrd's friends told a reporter Monday that the Senator had received pledges from 55 of the 96 Senators that they will oppose confirmation of Hutchinson, should his nomination be brought to a Senate vote.

The Senate Commerce Committee voted 5 to 3 last Thursday to reject the nomination.

Senate Committee to Check Primary Spending in at Least 4 States

By The Associated Press

Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) said yesterday Senate investigators will check numerous complaints of "alleged huge expenditures" in at least four senatorial primary races.

He said the complaints involve campaigns in North Carolina, Florida, Pennsylvania and Illinois, and other undesignated States.

Gillette is chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections, which has the duty of policing this year's election of 36 Senators.

Gillette said his group "is willing and ready to investigate and report on any specific complaints on matters which come within its jurisdiction."

Details Unknown

Details on the complaints already made were not disclosed although Gillette said his group "has received numerous complaints in writing and by personal report, of the alleged huge expenditures of money in connection with nominating primaries or conventions for the office of United States Senator in several States."

Gillette noted that newspaper reports filed with the committee on the recent Republican primary election in Pennsylvania listed "expenditures of between $1,500,000 and two million dollars in the senatorial contest have been reported by the candidates to proper authorities."

Gov. James Duff won the Pennsylvania GOP senatorial nomination in a bitter battle with Representative Kunkel (R., Pa.)

In Illinois, Senate Democratic Leader Lucas was renominated without a contest. He is opposed by former Representative Everett Dirksen, Republican.

Graham Faces Runoff

In Florida, Senator Pepper was beaten in the Democratic primary by Representative Smathers.

In North Carolina Senator Hoey, a Democrat, won renomination for one place while Senator Graham faces a primary run-off Saturday with Willis Smith for the other Democratic nomination at stake.

Gillette said there is some question as to the right of a Senate group to pass upon State primary elections or nominating conventions.

"However," he added, "it is the opinion of members of the subcommittee that they are justified in investigating alleged irregularities, or infractions of law . . ."

Most Senate authorities say there is no flat Federal limit on amounts that can be spent in primary campaigns, except for a requirement that any limits fixed by State laws must be observed.

For the general election, a top of $25,000 is fixed on expenditures by a Senate candidate and $5000 for a House candidate.

In North Carolina, a spokesman for Senator Graham said "we have heard of no complaints involving the Graham campaign and we will be glad to cooperate fully in any investigation they might make." Graham was high man in a four-man primary May 27. A spokesman for Smith said: "Any claim of enormous campaign expenditures is without foundation and without basis as far as Willis Smith headquarters is concerned. We have nothing to hide and welcome an investigation." Graham reported he spent $11,699 in the first primary campaign and Smith said he spent $11,960.

Acheson Asks Reds To 'Live, Let Live'

Cambridge, Mass., June 22 (AP).—Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today hopes of reaching an understanding with Russia rested on Soviet leaders first adopting a "live and let live" philosophy.

Until then, he said solemnly, "no approach from the free world, however imaginative, and no Trojan dove from the Communist movement, will resolve our mutual problems."

Yet the Secretary of State held the United States is ready to sit around the "international conference tables" any time.

Acheson told the Harvard Alumni Association that despite the obstacle posed by the "inordinate ambition" of Soviet leaders that war was not inevitable.

Speaking from the same platform where Gen. George C. Marshall launched the "Marshall Plan" to rebuild Europe's economy, just three years ago, Acheson said the United States and its allies were "on the threshold of a new period" in their quest for peace.

'Unprecedented Recovery'

Giving an optimistic report on the European recovery program, the Secretary of State said: "An unprecedented rate of economic recovery has now brought the productivity of western Europe for the most part above the prewar levels."

More than 10,000 crowded in the famed Harvard Yard for the university's 299th commencement cheered as the Secretary of State asserted:

"We are building our strength in order that we may eliminate the conditions which would give rise to war, and we are on the threshold of a new period in the successful forward movement of this effort."

Without elaborating he went on to say: "We face this new period with confidence but we must be very clear in our minds about our purposes in times that lie ahead."

Declaring the nations of the North Atlantic were building up a common defense system for the "primary purpose" of preventing aggression, Acheson said frankly:

"These measures of coalescence and of strength evidence the determination of the free world that the Soviet Union shall not, by coercion or subversion, destroy the independence of free states."

Aid as a Supplement

Without mentioning directly critics of the administration's policy in Asia, Acheson contended the United States has given help "wherever free men and their governments have been determined to preserve their freedom and their independence."

But, he emphasized, "our aid is a supplement and not a substitute. We have seen in China that even help on a great scale cannot replace the will of the people and their government to preserve their independence."

Just before Acheson spoke, Philippine Ambassador Gen. Carlos P. Romulo declared from the same platform that democracy could be sold to the Asian peoples only by raising their standard of living along with giving them freedom.

The retiring president of the United Nations General Assembly insisted that western policymakers must "see Asia through Asian eyes" and Romula warned "any decisions about the future of Asia and its peoples, by whomever they may be made, must take due account of the genuine interest of the Asian peoples themselves."

Both Acheson and Romulo were awarded honorary doctor of laws degrees at one of Harvard's biggest commencements with 3021 students getting diplomas.

Acheson had to cross a picket line to enter Harvard Yard. About 40 pickets, led by an Episcopal clergyman and including a five-year-old boy marcher, carried signs reading: "We're for Trygve Lie not Acheson" and "Acheson—jobs not bombs."

The clergyman gave his name as the Rev. Robert M. Muir, head of the Massachusetts Action Committee for Peace. He is not connected with any church at present but was formerly rector of St. James Protestant Episcopal Church, West Somerville.

The pickets dispersed quietly at police request.

Minister Chosen

'Big' Names Missing on Pact Council

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The British Government yesterday announced the appointment of Sir Derick Hoyer Millar, its Minister at the Embassy here, to be its permanent deputy on the North Atlantic treaty council.

At the same time President Truman confirmed reports that Charles M. Spofford, New York lawyer, had been appointed American deputy on the executive committee of the 12 treaty governments.

Spofford is expected in Washington this morning to confer with Secretary Acheson. He has not yet formally accepted the post of deputy, but has intimated that he would take it.

The Hoyer Millar and Spofford appointments mean that the newly created group of deputies will not be a collection of "big names," as some had hoped it would be.

The appointments caused a sensation in European diplomatic quarters in London, the United Press reported, because the two men were so little known even in their own countries. Not even the American Embassy had the slightest idea who Spofford was.

Diplomats in London recalled that Secretary Acheson had emphasized the importance of naming as the American delegate a man of world prominence, with sufficient prestige to get action and to deal direct with foreign ministers, defense ministers, finance ministers, even premiers of western powers—and with authority to make decisions.

The British had told the State Department more than two weeks ago of their intention to appoint Hoyer Millar, a career diplomat of 27 years' experience. At that time some eyebrows were raised in the State Department at the idea of appointing a professional civil servant, and American officials indicated that Acheson would go outside the career service for his deputy.

Both President Truman and Secretary Acheson tried manfully to persuade former Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett to take the job, but failed. The choice of Spofford followed.

The President said at his press conference yesterday that Spofford was a good man and would fill the job capably. One or two officials here were frank in saying they would have preferred someone of greater prestige, but simply couldn't find the right man.

But there was little patience here with the argument that the new deputies' group would be reduced to futility because it lacked "big names." After all, one official recalled, John J. McCloy, Robert P. Patterson and Lovett were not known abroad when President Roosevelt brought them here to take huge responsibilities in the war effort. Paul Hoffman, the ECA Administrator, was not widely known abroad before his appointment, and most of the mission chiefs he chose for European posts were little known at home.

U. S. Asks U. N. to Set Up Unit To Check Conventional Arms

Lake Success, June 22 (AP).—The United States today asked the United Nations to set up an international authority to supervise and check on reduction and regulation of ordinary arms and armed forces.

The proposal was circulated among delegates to the U. N. Commission for Conventional Armaments for discussion by the the commission's working committee.

Conventional arms are rifles, artillery, ships and aircraft and almost all other weapons except the atom bomb and weapons of mass destruction.

The U. S. document proposes that a conventional arms administration be made up of countries represented in the U. N. Security Council. Functioning at U. N. headquarters, it would receive information on arms from each nation, check on it and report violations.

The administration would operate on simple majority rule, without veto power, but its decisions would have to be passed on by the Security Council, in which the five big powers and permanent members have a veto.

Meanwhile, the United States rejected a British suggestion that the former Japanese-mandated islands in the Pacific be required to pay for their own administration out of local revenues.

The British suggestion was made in the U. N. Trusteeship Council last week by John Fletcher-Cooke and was supported by some other colonial powers. They took the view that the islanders, now ruled by the United States under the U. N. trusteeship system, might be spoiled by too much American aid.

Bolivia Alerts for Coup

La Paz, Bolivia, June 22 (U.P.)—Troops were confined to barracks today, and government supporters announced formation of "vigilance committees" to combat a reported revolutionary plot by extreme right-wingers.

Nehru Calls Nationalism Bar to Reds in Asia

Rangoon, Burma, June 22 (AP).—India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru said today communism cannot envelop Asia because it will fail to overthrow strong urges of nationalism.

He denounced Communist terrorist tactics and said because of them the Communist Party in India is growing weaker and disintegrating.

Bishops Seen Seeking Truce In Hungary

Budapest, June 22 (AP).—Hungary's Roman Catholic Bench of Bishops has asked for an official review of "church questions" in a step interpreted as a surrender of the church's long resistance to the government.

The fact that the government itself announced the church move officially last night indicates that the government will accept it as a surrender, demand that the bishops take an oath of allegiance to Hungary's constitution, and instruct its clergy to sign the "Stockholm Peace Petitions."

The Stockholm document, drafted by the "Partisans of Peace," is considered by the government as the highest standard of democratic belief and loyalty. It calls for outlawing atom weapons.

Other Christian denominations and Jews long ago elected clerical and secular leaders satisfactory to the government.

Strong Church Curbs Seen in Czech Code

Prague, June 22 (U.P.)—The official news agency reported today that a new penal code being considered by parliament will strengthen government control of Czechoslovakia's churches.

The agency said the new code will provide for the prosecution of "persons working as priests or appointing others for such work without state approval."

France Faces Crisis as Bidault Loses Test

Paris, June 22 (U.P.)—Premier Georges Bidault's right-of-center government suffered a crushing National Assembly defeat today that faced France with the threat of a political crisis.

The defeat, by 351 votes to 201, came on a Socialist-sponsored bill to boost salaries of government workers. The bill was opposed by the 8-month-old coalition government.

Bidault had not made the vote a confidence issue, but immediately after the defeat called for a confidence vote in which his government's life will be at stake. The voting is scheduled for Saturday morning.

Political experts believe Bidault stands little chance of winning the confidence test.

The Assembly brushed aside a last-minute appeal by Bidault, who urged it not to put through the salary boosts, which would strain the government's budget.

The government estimated the increases, effective December 10, would cost the nation about $46,243,000 during 1950 and 1951.

Communists, Socialists, some Radical Socialists and rightist supporters of Gen. Charles de Gaulle joined their forces to defeat the government.

France Rated Pacifist By American Writer

France is a "pacifist" nation and would fight only if directly invaded, according to a pamphlet published yesterday by the Foreign Policy Association.

France, ally of the United States in the North Atlantic Pact, is "disarmed and divided, united only in its fear of war," said the author, Prof. Saul K. Padover of New York's New School of Social Research.

"There is no air force to speak of, not much of a navy and a most inadequate military-supply industry," he said. He added that the French people are "antimilitarist and pacifist" in their "over-all spirit."

"France will fight, but only if directly invaded," Prof. Padover said. "Not many Frenchmen will take up arms for any crusade, particularly one inspired in America."

The report was based on a long on-the-spot study last year.

Professor Padover said "many" Frenchmen view Americans "with some antipathy, to say the least."

He detailed reasons as:

Ignorance, intellectual snobbery, behavior of certain American soldiers and tourists, and American wealth.

Dulles Hears Japs Urge Peace Treaty

Tokyo, June 22 (U.P.).—Three high Japanese political leaders told John Foster Dulles today that they desire a separate peace treaty with the Western democracies, accompanied by a guarantee of American protection against Communist aggression.

Premier Shigeru Yoshida, former Premier Kijuro Shidehara and President Naotake Sato of the upper House of Parliament told Dulles of their desire for the separate treaty—which would exclude Russia and Communist China—and for United States protection after the treaty is signed.

The three leaders said, it is understood, that Japan would offer voluntarily to lease military bases to the United States in return for the guarantee.

Yoshida, Shidehara and Sato are members of the generally pro-American Liberal Party.

Yoshida reported to Emperor Hirohito before he gave his view to Dulles.

Dulles, Republican Party foreign policy expert who is now special adviser to Seretary of State Dean Acheson, is to make recommendations on the treaty question to President Truman when he returns to Washington.

Similar recommendations on military problems are to be made by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff committee.

It is expected that Johnson and Bradley will argue against an early treaty with Japan on the ground that America's advanced defense line in the western Pacific ought to be made impregnable before a pact is signed.

Dulles is to get the other side of Japanese political opinion on the treaty question Friday when he talks to Socialist Party and moderate labor union leaders.

The Socialists and labor men oppose a separate peace which would leave Japan technically still at war with Russia. They also oppose a military alliance wth the United States or any other big power. They want absolute neutrality.

is that governments would "fuse" a portion of their sovereignty in the high authority.

In practice, each government would appoint certain persons to sit on the high authority. These people would not be answerable to their governments, and should not consider themselves as French, German or other national representatives. They would be collectively responsible to the joint parliament, which would in turn be composed of deputies elected by their own national parliaments.

The high authority would submit annual reports to the joint parliament. These reports would be debated and a vote taken. If the parliament voted "no confidence" in the high authority, that body would be dissolved and the governments would have to appoint new members.

Attlee Calls for Vote of Confidence on Pool Stand

London, June 22 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee today called for a vote of confidence on the British cabinet's standoff policy toward the Schuman coal-steel pool plan.

Debate begins in the House of Commons Monday and the vote is expected Tuesday night. The government has a working majority of eight in the House.

Officials predicted victory although some Laborites are on the sick list. Defeat would mean dissolution of Parliament and new elections.

Attlee and five of his Ministers presented the motion asking unqualified support of the government's decision to remain out of the six-nation talks in Paris.

The confidence vote will be on amendment to a motion submitted two days ago by Conservative Leader Winston Churchill and Liberal Party chief Clement Davies.

Britain stayed out of the Paris talks because she did not want to commit herself to accept in advance the proposal that the coal and steel pool come under a high authority whose decisions would be binding.

The Churchill-Davies motion asked the government to join the Paris conference, but reserve the right to ignore any decisions Britain might find "impracticable."

The government amendment would change he Churchill-Davies motion into an indorsement of the government's stand.

Churchill will open debate for the opposition. Sir Stafford Cripps is expected to be the first government speaker and presumably will deal with economic factors of the plan. Attlee will close the debate.

Canadian Atomic Board Proposes Building New Pile

Ottawa, June 22 (U.P.).—The Atomic Energy Control Board disclosed today it is ready to build a new atomic pile, Canada's second one, as soon as the government authorizes it.

The second reactor would be built at the dominion's Chalk River atomic energy plant, the board indicated, in its fourth annual report to Parliament.

The report said the N-R-X pile, Canada's only major peacetime atomic energy reactor, is continuing to operate at very high levels in atom research at Chalk River.

If the government agrees to a new pile, scientists at Chalk River will be able to build one that is more efficient and flexible than the pile now operating, the report said.

Hollywood Writers Lose Acquittal Plea

Miss Coplon Lays Perjury To FBI Man

Former Government girl Judith Coplon charged through her attorney yesterday that an FBI man committed "rankest perjury" during her first Russian spy conviction here, and she demanded a new trial.

The lawyer, Leonard B. Boudin, told 73-year-old Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves of Kansas City, who presided at the trial, that the Government engaged in "grossest misconduct" in trying to conceal its wire-tapping activities.

Miss Coplon, who later was convicted on a second espionage count in New York, was not present. Now married to one of her attorneys, she is free on $40,000 bond. If she loses her appeals, she faces up to 10 years in prison for her Washington conviction and up to 15 years for the New York conviction.

After the hearing Judge Reeves took the plea under advisement. He said he may announce his decision next Monday.

Government Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., who handled both cases, indignantly denied the wire-tapping charge. He said none of the Government's case was based on any such evidence.

Confidential Relationship

Boudin reported that it would be "incredible" if the prosecution was ignorant that Miss Coplon's phone was tapped while her first trial was in progress here. He said the action violated the confidential relationship between attorney and client.

He said an FBI agent swore at the Washington trial that he had no knowledge of wire tapping. But at a pretrial hearing in New York, he added, the Government admitted it had tapped phones at her home, at her Justice Department office, and at her parents' home in Brooklyn.

This proved, Boudin said, that the FBI agent perjured himself.

"This is a wonderful case of felonious action on the part of the Government," he said. "It was used by the Government to attribute to the defendant the commission of a felony."

Demand for Prompt Action

Meantime, the American Civil Liberties Union demanded that Attorney General J. Howard McGrath take prompt "disciplinary measures" against department attorneys and FBI agents who allegedly tried to conceal the wire-tapping evidence.

The union also announced it had filed a brief with Judge Reeves as a "friend of the court," supporting Miss Coplon's plea for a new trial. James L. Fly, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, prepared the brief.

"Without taking any position as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant," the union said "the ACLU is entering the case on the single issue of illegal wire tapping and the need for a new trial."

By the United Press

Federal Judge Edward M. Curran refused yesterday to order the immediate acquittal of three Hollywood film writers on congressional contempt charges and announced he will pass judgment next Thursday.

The authors, who face possible penalties of one year in jail and $1000 fine, are Ring Lardner, jr. Lester Cole and Adrian Scott. All waived jury trials. Lardner and Cole were in court. The case of Scott, who is in a Hollywood hospital, was argued in his absence.

They were among the "Hollywood Ten" who refused in 1947 to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether they were Communists on grounds the question infringed their constitutional rights.

Writers Dalton Trumbo and John Howard already are serving one-year sentences on identical charges. The other eight had agreed to abide by the legal decisions in their case.

The cases of the remaining five will be decided today. Writers Albert Maltz, Alvah Bessie and Samuel Ornitz are scheduled to appear before Judge David A. Pine. Directors Edward Dmytryk and Herbert Biberman will go before Judge Richmond B. Keech.

Curran rejected a motion for delay by Defense Attorney Martin Popper of New York to permit introduction of "newly discovered evidence."

"I wish you wouldn't waste my time," he said impatiently.

Popper had said the "evidence" was based mainly on recent reports by Columnist Drew Pearson tending to show the hearings were held deliberately to "blacklist" the 10 movieland figures.

Colonel Denies Spy's Charge

Yokohama, Japan, June 22 (U.P.) Col. John E. Baird, Providence, R. I., former American Army provost marshal in South Korea, vigorously denied today the statement of Kim Suim, convicted in Korea as a Communist spy, that they had lived together as common law man and wife.

"She worked for me as a confidential informant—that's definitely all," Baird said.

Baird said the fact the confession was mentioned in court after he left Korea en route to the United States indicated that Korean authorities did not want him around to deny it.

Baird sails Friday for the United States for reassignment.

The House Postoffice and Civil Service Committee yesterday gave its approval to a bill to give the heads of nine Federal agencies the power to summarily suspend their employes on security charges. The Administration supports the measure.

Agencies covered by the bill are: Army, Navy, Air Force, State, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, National Resources Security Board, Atomic Energy, Defense, and Coast Guard.

An employe accused under the procedure set forth in the bill could appeal within 30 days to his agency head. The agency head could give him a hearing. He wouldn't be compelled to and he could order his immediate firing.

If the employe was without Civil Service status, he couldn't appeal elsewhere. A status employe could appeal to Civil Service but the most it could do would be to certify him to a routine job (non-sensitive) in another Federal agency.

A similar bill is before the Senate Armed Forces Committee. Several agency heads such as State and Defense have summary firing powers, but it's for temporary ad indefinite periods. The bill would broaden the firing authority and make it basic law.

Recruiting Bill

One of the most important Civil Service reform bills of the year was introduced yesterday in the House by Chairman Murray of the Postoffice and Civil Sevice Committee.

The new Murray measure would carry out the main provisions of the Hoover Commission report on Federal personnel. In addition, the Administration is solidly backing the bill which proposes:

1. That each department and agency be empowered to draft plans for recruiting, examining and selection of persons to fill its Civil Service jobs;

2. That all such plans be drafted under standards laid down by Civil Service, and that the commission be required to inspect regularly the personnel operations of Federal agencies to make certain its policies are carried out;

3. That agencies be given the authority to use either numerical or category ratings to grade examination papers of applicants. Applicants for Civil Service exams are now given numerical ratings. Under the category plan, all persons in a single category would have equal ratings. However, veterans would be called first in each of the categories, and 10-point veterans would continue to get the first crack at openings;

4. When numerical ratings are used, an agency head would be allowed to take his choice of the first five eligible to fill a vacancy instead of three as is now the practice, and,

5. The Civil Service Commission would be authorized to set up a practical program to transfer qualified persons from one agency to another to better jobs.

The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee yesterday approved the bill to continue the postal pay structure of custodial employes who were transferred recently from Post Office to General Services under a reorganization plan.

Senate OKs D. C. Rent Bill

. . . " He cut that short and declared, "I am not going to be terrified by a threat of filibuster. If there is to be a filibuster, let it start now."

Vice President Barkley cut in to put Cain's amendment to a vote. It was approved. Cain filed the rest of a prepared speech for the record.

The features of the Senate-approved bill now are these:

1. District rent controls would continue from the expiration date of the present law, June 30—a week from today—through December 31.

2. Before December 31, the Commissioners would decide whether shortages of housing required continuance of controls into next year. If the shortages are found, controls would continue under the congressional act through June 30, 1951.

The Commissioners' decisions could take controls off, or leave them on, various classes of housing. They could fix the classes on the basis of location, area, rental levels, or other types.

3. Controls would be removed July 1 from all single nonhousekeeping furnished rooms, but not suites or two or more such rooms.

4. After June 30, "self-contained family units" in hotels would be subject to controls unless the District rent administrator took controls off. He would have to issue such a decontrol order for any hotel he finds to be "primarily engaged in furnishing accommodations for transients."

Neely based his initial objection to the hotel amendment on the fact it had been tabled by the District Committee when presented by Senator J. Allen Frear, jr. (D., Del.). Efforts to include the amendment in the bill had been initiated by a representative of the Washington Hotel Association.

To Women With Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

pected to apply at once for Health Department permits to be inspected by July 1. He estimated these farms can ship up to 20,000 gallons daily, or about 10 percent of total District consumption.

The Commissioners' action, taken on the recommendation of District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger, is only a stop-gap measure, according to Commissioner John Russell Young's special assistant, Charles Stofberg. Final decision will be made after a hearing set for July 10 on proposed changes in the sterilization and other milk regulations, he said.

Walter W. Burdette, director of the Health Department's bureau of food inspection, said he would put his entire force of inspectors to work on the project as soon as the applications are made. None was received yesterday afternoon, he said.

The Milk Producers' Association opposes chemical sterilization, according to its secretary-treasurer Bruce B. Derrick, because "we don't think it is effective." He said the steam process is no more expensive and that "we don't want to feed the consumer bacterial soup."

All association members shipping to Washington already hold Health Department permits and sterilize with steam, Derrick said.

In a prepared statement Representative Miller said he saw "no valid reason why milk should be pasteurized in the District, nor . . . why steam should be the only method used in sterilization of equipment." He pointed out that 32 States now accept milk complying with Public Health Service standards.

Miller said milk consumers are "victims of a producers' monopoly" which his bill would break up.

"The price of milk in the District is among the highest in the country, yet other areas have higher production costs," Miller stated. "Consumer use of milk (in the District) is near depression levels."

Senate Votes 3-Year Draft Bill

might force the President either to wait until a crisis arose before moving to keep the Army up to strength, or create a "war scare" if he acted earlier.

Senator William Knowland (R., Calif.) pointed out to his fellow Republicans that the Taft suggestion might take them "out of the frying pan into the fire." A presidential declaration of a national emergency, he noted, might invoke many other war powers. After a floor huddle, the "national necessity" compromise wording was worked out and approved without opposition.

Before passing the bill, the Senate defeated two other moves to inject controversial racial issues into the bill.

Provided for Poll

Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.) brought in an altered version of his "voluntary segregation" amendment voted down Wednesday. The first one, beaten 42 to 29, would have barred anyone from serving in a mixed racial unit without his consent.

The new version provided for polling all draft registrants and volunteers during the next six months. Only if a majority of the men from 36 of the 48 States asked segregation would his "voluntary segregation" plan be adopted. The second amendment was defeated, 45 to 27.

Then, Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) submitted one of the Civil Rights amendments which proponents have attempted to attach to numerous bills. It would have made it a Federal crime for any serviceman to be attacked or lynched because of race or color.

Action Defended

Several Southern Senators attacked the proposal and Holland of Florida objected that Humphrey had told the Senate Wednesday he had abandoned efforts to tack the civil rights riders to the draft bill in order to speed its passage.

The Minnesotan retorted that since Russell had delayed things by pressing his segregation amendment again, he had felt compelled to submit his civil rights proposal. It was defeated by voice vote on a motion of Senator Ed Johnson (D., Colo.) to table, when Humphrey failed to get support for a record vote.

The Senate approved another change in the bill proposed by Selective Service Headquarters, which permits the employes of local boards to be paid "according to local custom" rather than receive the higher classified Federal scale.

Hospital Frees Patient Who Set Fire Killing 41

East Moline, Ill., June 22 (U.P.).—Mrs. Enora Epperly, 22-year-old mental patient who admitted setting a fire that killed 41 persons at a Davenport, Iowa, hospital in January, has been released from an Illinois State mental hospital here.

It was disclosed last night Mrs. Epperly was granted a "conditional discharge" May 11 and returned home to Rock Island, Ill. Hospital officials said her condition is "improved."

A murder charge filed after her confession was dismissed when she was found insane.

Green Got Commission in Insurance Firm, Kasten Says

A House Armed Services subcommittee was told yesterday that Col. Roy Green, former Army finance officer, received the entire commission on a 40 million dollar insurance business he helped organize while on active duty.

The testimony was given by Maj. Gen. William H. Kasten, former Chief of Army Finance, who also helped found the Armed Forces Mutual Benefit Association.

Kasten denied he received any part of the commission. He said it was paid to Green by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States after the Army officer left the service and took a job with Equitable as "agent of record." He said he did not know the size of the commission.

Equitable underwrote the Armed Forces Mutual Benefit Association.

The subcommittee is investigating the insurance transactions as part of its inquiry into alleged money mismanagement and Communist infiltration at the Army's St. Louis Finance Center.

Kasten testified that he now draws a $1000-a-month salary as general manager of the Mutual Benefit Association. But he said he drew no compensation before he retired from the Army.

"Did any member of your family receive any part of the commission paid to Green?" Kasten was asked.

"No, sir," he replied. "Green might have split his commission with someone else but I would n't know about that."

Kasten acknowledged that the insurance firm has an advantage over other companies in trying to sell insurance to Army officers. He said the War Department granted it "certain privileges," including the right to contact officers at the end of "overseas orientation meetings."

But he denied that he and Green received advance notice of officers' overseas assignments.

Philip Due Home in July

London, June 22 (U.P.).—A Buckingham Palace spokesman today said Prince Philip, husband of Princess Elizabeth, will come home from sea next month and probably will remain ashore until the expected birth in August of their second child.

Dr. Lyons Named Army Consultant

Dr. John H. Lyons, professor of clinical surgery at George Washington University, has been selected as a special consultant to the Army Medical Department, it was announced yesterday.

He will leave for the Far East July 5 on a 35-day tour to advise and consult with Army surgeons. He is one of a group of civilian specialists engaged for the purpose.

A native of Washington, Dr. Lyons is also chief surgeon at Emergency Hospital and attending surgeon at Children's Hospital.

Beltsville to Get 'Atomic' Greenhouse

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A specially designed greenhouse, guarded behind a 7-foot-high chain-link fence, has been built at the Beltsville, Md., Agricultural Research Center by the Agriculture Department and the Atomic Energy Commission.

The $250,000 plant will be used for research in plants and soils with radioactive isotopes. It is one of the important peacetime projects of the AEC. It is expected that the research with radioactive materials will reveal new and valuable information on many fundamental aspects of soils and plant nutrition.

Studies with radioactive phosphorous already have shown how different plants make use of this element in different soils. These investigations have been under way in Federal and State experimental stations for three years. The work at Beltsville will now be enlarged to include calcium, zinc and sulfar radioisotopes, and others later.

The exterior of the structure is similar to other greenhouses. The glass-covered building is 117 by 40 feet, divided in three sections, and adjoins a headhouse 27 by 65 feet. In the basement are laboratories and growth chambers.

The building will provide facilities for experiments in cold frames and lysimeters (a device for measuring the seepage of water through soils, and determining the soluble constituents removed in the drainage.)

Because of radiation hazards, admission to the 2-acre area will be restricted to research workers. Among unusual features for protection are stainless steel plates lining the doors to spaces where the radioactive materials are kept. All handling will be done by remote control. Plants and soils will be placed in glazed pots, instead of regular greenhouse benches. Double sinks will earry contaminated wastes into a special container.

Water used in experiments will go through an ion-exchange system to remove salts. Tables are topped with stainless steel, and floors in the "hot" sections covered with asphalt tile. Each laboratory has hooded sections where fumes from radioactive materials are forced out through a filter system by automatic blowers. All furniture is metal.

Safety devices such as long-handled tools and lead shields, some of which were developed at Beltsville, will be used.

One laboratory has been set aside for chemical analysis, which are basic in radioactive research. Phosphate fixation in soils will be investigated in another. The first project to be undertaken in the third will be fundamental research on soil biochemistry and plant physiology involved in the lime-induced chlorosis (yellowing) of plants.

Raid on Pumping Plant Nets 3 and Gaming Devices

Three men were arrested and a large amount of gambling paraphernalia was seized in a raid on the offices of the Sludge Pumping Co., 1772 Columbia rd. nw., yesterday afternoon, police reported.

Arrested and charged with four gambling counts each were William S. Doyle, 28, of 1717 Columbia rd. nw.; Samuel Layman, 32, of 77 Hawaii ave. ne.; and Morgan G. Wilson, 52, of 1772 Columbia rd. nw., police reported.

The trio was arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, their bond placed at $2000 each and their cases continued until July 12.

Members of the vice squad spent 40 minutes at the establishment's four telephones accepting bets from $1 to $50 on both the numbers and horses after the raid, Lieut. Roy Blick said.

Health Department Bill Facing Trouble

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman's Plan 27 for creation of a separate Department of Health, Education and Security is headed for serious trouble in both House and Senate, well informed Administration sources yesterday.

Plan 24 transferring the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Commerce Department is expected to squeak through the House by a narrow margin, but it will meet with more opposition in the Senate.

Neither of the plans is expected to come before the House for action before the week of July 4. Congress has until July 30 to act. Without action by that date the plans would automatically go into effect.

Despite favorable action on both plans by the House Committee on Executive Expenditures, a formidable lineup against the new Cabinet post for what is now the Federal Security Agency is shaping up in the House.

The conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats is kown to look with considerable opposition upon FSA Administrator Oscar Ewing, and GOP sources are openly claiming the plan is already defeated in the House.

Their predictions, backed by the privately voiced concern of highly placed Administration sources, add up to a distinctly unfavorable picture for the new department, despite the potent support it has been receiving.

Until a House check was made, opponents of the plan for the new department had pinned their chief hopes of defeating it in the Senate.

No resolution disapproving the plan has yet been submitted to the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures, but informed sources said they expected one to be entered in the near future.

It is known that Ewing and his chief aides have been extremely hopeful that this year the plan to give the sprawling FSA cabinet status would carry. The plan has the backing of the AFL, the CIO, most of the nation's educators, and some veterans' groups. It is opposed by most of the country's organized doctors and dentists.

New Remedy

Itchy Foot, Handy Salve Bring a Cure

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

His own case of athlete's foot and a handy jar of antihistamine salve led an Army doctor to medical research, and a new treatment for the foot ailment, it was disclosed yesterday.

Capt. Carson

The salve has proved so effective in clinical tests that the Army plans to try it full-scale this summer on American troops stationed in Puerto Rico, officials said.

The story of and behind the new use of antihistamine compounds—as a cure for fungus infections—was unfolded here yesterday following publication of laboratory test results in Science, the weekly publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Dramatic Response"

The Army doctor, Capt. Layne E. Carson, of the Army Medical Department's Research and Graduate School here, limited the scientific report to test-tube studies. Since then, he said yesterday, the antihistamine salves have been used on patients, and "with dramatic response."

Stubborn cases of athlete's foot and other fungus infections cleared up in short order with ointments of either diphenylpyraline or pyribenzamine, both antihistamines, the investigators noted.

Pain and intense itching were eased a few minutes after application of the salve. Within 24 hours, much of the swellings, inflammations and weepy conditions were cleared, and cracks in the skin had begun to heal, they said.

The story of the salve goes back to the winter of 1949 when his own itching foot kept Captain Carson awake. In desperation, he recalled, he smeared pyrabenzamine on his ailing foot, mostly because it was the only ointment handy.

Gone With the Dawn

When he awoke, he said, the inflammation had subsided, and a complete cure followed.

Assigned this year to duties at Walter Reed Hospital, he requested and received permission on April 1 to do laboratory research on the salve at the school's departments of basic science and bacteriology. He wanted to find out if the antihistamines' activity was solely against allergic conditions, or if the drugs actually attacked the fungus organisms.

The test tube work, he reported in Science, showed that the drugs inhibit the development of many of the fungus organisms, including the one which causes tinea pedis (athlete's foot).

100,000 Tots Have Syphilis Due to Negligence, Doctors Say

Two child health specialists yesterday estimated there are 100,000 children in United States with unsuspected syphilis, all through negligence before their birth.

The two, Drs. W. H. Aufranc of Public Health Service, and Betty Huose, of the United States Children's Bureau, also noted that the incidence of congenital syphilis is not declining despite the inroads of modern medicine against sexually acquired syphilis.

They advocated joint action by venereal disease control authorities and maternal and child health groups "to find and treat every syphilitic pregnant woman and to find and treat every syphilitic baby."

They made their report in the current issue of "The Child," monthly periodical of the Children's Bureau.

A better name for congenital syphilis, they said, would be "negligent" syphilis. Negligence, they said, is the only reason now why any child is born in this country with the disease.

"Any one of these children is a candidate for blindness, mental deficiency, physical deformity or premature death," they stated. "Not one of them should have been born with syphilis. This is especially so since penicillin, so effective in the treatment of the disease, has been widely available in recent years."

They recommended two blood tests for syphilis for every pregnant woman, one early in pregnancy and the second in the last three months. Those found syphilitic would be given immediate treatment.

Race Wire Status Attacked by Coy

taken no action against Western Union despite recent charges that its employes in Maine, New Jersey and Missouri have been taking race bets as messages, Coy said that no Federal law was being violated. At this Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.), pointed out that Western Union, which leases some 23,000 miles of circuts for race wire use, is required not to violate State laws as well as Federal and that in 47 States off-track horse race betting is illegal.

Million in Revenues

Coy testified that Western Union receives close to one million dollars a year in revenue from these wire leases, by which primary distributors and about 2500 sub-distributors cover most of the Nation.

In discussing the fact that radio stations and newspapers make public information useful to potential bettors, Coy said the FCC takes into consideration, in considering a radio station's license, whether such broadcasts are in the public interest. He said that the Armstrong Sports Agency, a scratch sheet publisher, makes such information available to many stations—sometimes free, sometimes for a fee and sometimes paying for its broadcast.

At this Hunt asked about broadcasts in the Washington area of race results. He suggested Coy listen in any afternoon. Coy said he was too busy but added:

McGrath to Testify Later

"I'll be glad to have someone (at FCC) listen to the stations in Washington and see if we shouldn't do something about it."

Kefauver read a letter from Attorney General J. Howard McGrath saying he would testify later, after information on underworld characters now being gathered by the 93 U. S. attorneys is assembled and correlated.

McGrath said that a "general theme is beginning to emerge" from the information but he didn't say what it was.

Today's hearing in the Senate Office Building will have as witnesses James V. Bennett, director of the Bureau of Prisons, and Clifton C. Garner, chief Postoffice inspector.

Fairfax County Group Meets at Centreville

A special 21-man Fairfax County commission to study possible revisions in the county government will hold a public hearing tonight at 8 at the Centerville School.

The commission, appointed by the county board of supervisors, is holding hearings in various parts of the county to allow citizens to give their views on governmental changes. One major issue before the commission is the possibility of changing Fairfax's present government to the county manager system.

N. J. Imposes Ban on Big Bets

Trenton, N. J., June 22 (AP).—State Attorney General Parsons said today he has ordered pari-mutuel horse racing tracks in New Jersey to refuse big-money layoff bets by known bookmakers' agents. He acted to curtain "the vicious practice of bookmaking."

Layoff bets are those made by bookmakers' agents at the tracks to cover heavy off-track wagering.

Deputy Attorney General Taub, counsel to the New Jersey Racing Commission, said the order has been issued to the management of the Monmouth Park Jockey Club, whose Oceanport track is the only one in the State now operating.

Parsons told newsmen that mutuel clerks at the tracks know the operators handling lay-off betting for bookmakers outside. "They usually come for big-money bets just before the windows close," he said.

The attorney general also announced he has directed Taub to confer with Monmouth County Prosecutor Carton, whose area includes the Oceanport track, toward the arrest and prosecution of the bookmakers' agents on charges of aiding violators of State gambling laws.

Betting at the pari-mutuel tracks is the only gambling legal in New Jersey.

"The betting of 'layoff' or 'comeback' money," Parsons said, "is the device of bookmakers to protect themselves against losses on money bet with them by the betting customers.

"It is customary for a bookmaker, with whom a large sum of money is bet on a particular horse in a particular race, in order not to lose heavily on the book he makes, to arrange with his agent at the track to bet any part or all of the money at the pari-mutuel windows on the same horse covered by the bets placed with the bookmaker.

". . . It is this means of protection against loss that keeps the bookmaker in business."

Taub said the order barring layoff betting would go to the Atlantic City track and Garden State track near Camden "in due course."

Teen-Ager Sentenced In 'Gang War' Shooting

Baltimore, June 22 (AP).—An 18-year-old was sentenced to two years in the reformatory today for a shooting during a pitched battle between two gangs of teen-agers.

Gangs of all kinds, boys and adults, must be broken up, Judge Joseph Sherbow declared as he pronounced sentence in Criminal Court.

The accused was Theodore (Chi Chi) Kominski, leader of 14 youngsters who invaded the home ground of another gang last month. Leo Bahur, one of the rivals, was wounded. Police found a German automatic in the woodshed at Kominski's home.

Candy With a Kick

Newark, N. J., June 22 (U.P.) Two sisters were taken to a hospital today because they believed fireworks were candy. Doctors said Sharon Pierce, 4, and Linda, 3, ate a box of "Fourth of July snakes." They are expected to recover.

Pastor Held in Rape Of Missouri Girl, 14

Brookfield, Mo., June 22 (U.P.)—The Rev. Merritt Kenneth Kirks, 27-year-old pastor of the Mendon, Mo., Christian Church, today was accused of raping a 14-year-old girl and assaulting two other young girls, 13 and 14 years old.

Police said the minister, father of two small daughters, signed a "full confession." The maximum penalty for rape in Missouri is death.

Prosecutor Marvin Hopper said Kirks told in his confession how he previously fought off the desire to pick up a woman hitchhiker.

Then he told how he saw the three girls walking along a highway, drove them to a country club and let them out but he returned, according to Hopper, and found them standing where he left them. He offered to take them anywhere they wanted to go, Hopper said.

After buying them soda pop, he drove to a country road, Hopper said, and ordered the children to line up facing a fence. He slugged two on the head with a pistol butt and took one to his car and raped her, Hopper said.

Highway Patrol Capt. E. W. Pate said the clergyman was arrested after the girls described their assailant as a "small, dark man driving a blue 1949 car."

Highway Patrol Sergt. Walter Snyder said he spotted Kirks in Mendon yesterday and started to question him about his car. "I think I know what you fellows want," the officer quoted the minister as saying. When arrested, Kirk had in his possession a German Luger pistol.

'Shoot on Sight'

Posse Trails Killer-Bandit In Ontario

Langton, Ontario, June 22 (U.P.)—A bank bandit who machine-gunned two pursuers to death after a $22,500 robbery was tracked like an animal today by 200 policemen and farmers with orders to shoot on sight.

Police believed the hunted man to be a gunman from the Detroit-Windsor area. Two bloodhounds were rushed from Detroit to help the radio-equipped posse corner the killer. Two airplanes coursed over the area.

The man was believed hiding in the swampy bushlands and tobacco fields about 10 miles from here, where he pulled a two-gun holdup of the Langton branch of the Imperial Bank yesterday.

Most of his loot was left in neat wads in the stolen car, wrecked during his getaway. But officials believed he carried with him about $8000, along with the submachine gun he used to kill two men who closed in on him after he ditched the car.

Posse members were angry but cautious. Farmers who knew the two dead volunteer pursuers said the fugitive's life "isn't worth a dime."

William Hoddyn, 33, and Arthur Delierman, 33, who volunteered to chase the robber in their car after the holdup, skidded to a stop behind the ditched automobile yesterday and met a spray of gunfire. Twenty submachine-gun bullets ripped their car and both died.

Robert Noble, 16-year-old farm boy, saw the shooting. The bandit, he said, "took one quick look at the two men in the car" after shooting them, then headed for the bush on foot.

Ontaria police warned all motorist in the Lake Huron area to refuse rides to hitch-hikers.

Match Lights Way to Cell

The light shed by a match yesterday led to a quick solution of a predawn housebreaking at 2700 Q st. nw., police reported. Mrs. Frances Waggaman, 39, of that address, said she awoke to find a man ransacking a dresser in her bedroom. He had a lighted match in his hand.

"I was too scared to move, so I just lay there and made sure I got a good description of him," Mrs. Waggaman later related.

After the man made off with $4 from a pocketbook, escaping through a first-floor window, Mrs. Waggaman telephoned police. A few hundred yards from the house police arrested a man who answered the match-light description: "About 6 feet tall, tan shirt, pencil mustache."

Porter L. Lawson, 27, of 1933 13th st. nw., was charged with housebreaking. United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence held him under $3500 bond for July 5.

Youth Drowns; Swam Despite Dad's Warning

For ignoring his father's warning, Vito Antonio Procaccino, 19, of 932 4th st. ne., yesterday paid a heavy price—his life.

Mr. Procaccino

"I think I'll go swimming," Vito told his father about 6 a. m. Vito had just finished working all night at the Bond Bread Co., 2146 Georgia ave. nw.

His father, Pasquale Procaccino, retired Federal building guard, pleaded with him not to go. He pointed out that Vito was not a good swimmer.

But Vito and a friend, Lloyd Pearson, 19, of 923 12th st. ne., pedaled off on their bicycles. They halted at the bank of the swift waters of the C. & O. canal feeder near Brookmont, Md.

Pearson plunged into the waters—15 feet deep and considered treacherous even for good swimmers. Then Vito made the plunge. He was swept around a bend in the canal—and vanished.

Pearson thrashed about the waters vainly in quest of his friend. He ran up and down the bank looking for him. Then he summoned help from a nearby home.

Montgomery County and U. S. Park Police, the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad and the Glen Echo Rescue Squad, were still dragging the river last night.

On the bank was the father, waiting, alone.

Man Is Held In Morals Case

Lester Green, 38, of Laurel, Md., chief dispatcher for the Greyhound bus lines in Washington, was held for grand jury action yesterday on a carnal knowledge charge involving an 8-year-old girl.

Green was ordered held without bond by Judge Arthur P. Owens of Hyattsville Police Court. A tiny, blonde girl testified he took indecent liberties with her at his home last Monday. Green was arrested that night on a warrant sworn to by the child's mother.

The defendant denied the accusation, but admitted the girl, a neighbor, visited his home that day. She often came to watch the television, he said.

The mother said the child came home complaining of soreness. She had the child examined by a physician before making the charge, she said.

cated that might be done later, when his subcommittee made its report.

Meantime, however, the matter Morris was pressing will be resumed, this time in closed sessions with Service, at 1:30 p. m. today.

Service Reads Statement

For the first part of the long day, Service read in a slow, low voice, an extensive prepared statement in which he took up, one by one, the various accusations made against him, dating back to the days when former Ambassador to China Patrick Hurley attacked him in 1945.

These were divided into two categories. One related to his activities and reports, as a State Department political adviser attached to American Army headquarters in China during the war. The second concerned his involvement in the Amerasia matter.

With respect to the first period, Service told how a major part of his duty was gathering political intelligence in China, especially from the Communists, and how all his extensive contacts with them—a matter of pride to him and not of apology—were on orders, and were "a basic and vital" part of his assignment.

Denies McCarthy Charge

He told how he was commended for the work he did and the reports he rendered by his two Army chiefs, Generals Stillwell and Wedemeyer. In answer to specific charges of McCarthy, and as a demonstration of his own position, he said:

"Senator McCarthy has charged that when Chiang Kai-shek was fighting our war, I sent back official reports to the State Department urging that we torpedo our ally, Chiang Kai-shek, and stating in effect that communism was the best hope of China.

"Actually, as a reading of my reports will disclose, such recommendations as I have made were designed to prevent the collapse of Chiang Kai-shek's government and to resist the domination of China by communism."

"Senator McCarthy has charged that I have been in the Far East trying to turn the whole business over to Russia. Actually, as my reports written from China clearly indicate, I had a full appreciation of the dangers of Russian domination and sought means of preventing such domination.

"Senator McCarthy has charged that I am one of a dozen top policy makers in the entire Department of State on Far Eastern policy. Actually, I have never occupied a policy making position in the Department of State."

Kennan Analyzed Data

The best testimony as to what his point of view was, and how well and objectively he did his work, Service argued, was certainly the memoranda he wrote while in China. Therefore, he said, when he recently appeared before a State Department Loyalty Board resurveying his case, he had those memoranda produced and analyzed.

The analyst was George F. Kennan, councillor of the department and by general repute the Government's foremost expert on Communist theory and practice. Kennan reviewed all the documents Service wrote in his three years in China, more than 125 of them, and testified to the loyalty board:

"I find no evidence that the reports acquired their character from any ulterior motive or association or from any impulse other than the desire on the part of the reporting officer to acquaint the department with the facts as he saw and interpreted them.

"I find no indication that the reports reported anything but his best judgment candidly stated to the department.

Not From "A Closed Mind"

"On the contrary, the general level of throughtfulness and intellectual flexibility which pervades the reporting is such that it seems to me out of the question that it could be the work of a man with a closed mind or with ideological preconceptions, and it is my conclusion that it was not."

In questioning Service, Morris sought to make the point that Service had in his possession various statements of Chinese Communist leaders showing they were clearly linked to the Kremlin, whereas Service had reported that the Chinese Communists had an independent orientation and would look to America, not Russia, for material help.

Service contended that some of the leaders' statements were sheer pro forma vows of fealty to Russian communism, and some were dated very early in Chinese Communist history, when they were indeed bound to the Kremlin.

The argument was involved, and the Senators appeared to be left with a choice between Morris' analysis that Service perpetrated slanted, inaccurate reports, and Kennan's judgment that Service's reporting was objective.

. . . explains Amerasia link

Cites Defense by Byrnes

Service also dealt with charges against him by Hurley, which he answered with an equally vigorous public defense that former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes made of him five years ago when Hurley sounded off.

To charges by Emmanuel S. Larsen, a former State Department employe who was fined for his part in the Amerasia matter, Service produced recent loyalty board testimony of Larsen admitting he had no evidence. Larsen had said in the past that Service tried to sabotage Hurley and did not like him.

Senators appeared more interested in the second set of charges against Service, those relating to Amerasia.

Jaffe Had U. S. Documents

This was a case in which Jaffe, as editor of the now defunct magazine, was found to have amassed some several hundred classified Government documents. Many were passed to him by Larsen. Some were copies of Service's own reports, but these Larsen had admitted he supplied.

The three men were arrested June 6, 1945, along with Kate Mitchell, Jaffe's co-editor; Mark Gayn, a free-lance writer and associate of Jaffe, and Navy Lieut. Andrew Roth, who seemed to have been the man who introduced Jaffe to many of his Washington contacts.

A grand jury voted unanimously against indicting Service. But the question the subcommittee wanted to have answered was what were Service's relations with Jaffe and the others and what information he supplied. The FBI, which kept Jaffe under surveillance for weeks before the arrests, had found Service in about half a dozen contacts with Jaffe.

Yesterday, Service insisted he had done nothing wrong nor irregular. He said he was introduced to Jaffe after his return from China by Roth, and thought him to be simply a journalist specializing in Far Eastern matters, running a small, special-interest magazine.

Job Was to Aid Writers

Part of his job, informal but recognized, was to aid writers and reporters and to give them proper and accurate background material, Service said. So he showed Jaffe a memorandum he wrote on a Chinese Communist presentation of their own position. Later, he let Jaffe borrow eight or ten of his other memoranda which he considered it would be appropriate to allow Jaffe, as a writer on China, to see."

Service insisted these documents were purely reportorial and contained no military or other secrets and no classified material on American policy or position.

Service pointed out that the first, secret, raid on the Amerasia offices was made while he was in China, and that it demonstrated "that whatever channels Jaffe had for obtaining official documents were already in existence and functioning very well indeed." For the raid showed that there were masses of secret Government documents in Jaffe's office.

Next, Service said, it appeared that the FBI testified that it had notified the State and Navy Departments it was ready to make the arrests, and was satisfied it had solved the case, just six days after Service returned from China, before he had even met Jaffe. Hence, Service said, "I could not possibly have been one of those suspected at that time."

Admits Indiscretions

Service readily admitted that his giving his memoranda, and his conversations with Jaffe were indiscretions. He said he had suffered for them for five years.

Republican subcommittee members, Senators Hickenlooper (Iowa) and Lodge (Mass.), pounded him with questions on two points:

Had he devoted as much time and attention to other journalists as he had to Jaffe?

Why had he always gone to Jaffe's hotel, or office, or apartment, and why had Jaffe only once come to his, Service's, office? Did not reporters seeking information from an official come to the official and not vice versa?

Service answered that he talked to and spent much time with many writers on Fortune, Time, Newsweek and other magazines, and that he met with many of them outside his office, at lunch or at their homes.

McCarthy Makes Notes

Senator McCarthy, who lashed at Service in the first speech he made, when he touched off the current investigation of Communists in Government last February, sat behind subcommittee members yesterday, making notes while Service talked.

He told a reporter, "Service said he gave information to Jaffe, but he thought he was just giving background information to an authentic journalist. He would have to be pretty naive to have fallen for that."

Lodge and Hickenlooper also wanted to know by what right did Service show to Jaffe documents that had been given security classifications. Service replied that he had done the classifying, that the documents were copies of his memoranda, and that he had enough knowledge of the facts to know when they could be disclosed, after a lapse of time and events. This was properly a matter within his judgment and authority, he declared.

F. D. R. Messages to Chiang

Service was questioned at length about one of the documents seized in the Amerasia offices at the time the arrests were made. It identified itself as a summary of an account Service gave of two top secret "eyes only" messages from President Roosevelt to Chiang Kai-shek, relating to unifying the Chinese Army command under General Stillwell.

Service said he assumed the document was written from notes, probably taken by Mrs. Gayn, during a conversation he had with her and her husband. He said he had felt at liberty to talk about the messages, then 10 months only, because the facts had taken place, and because the background had already been published, particularly in an article six months earlier.

It was a sensational scoop by the New York Times' China correspondent, Brooks Atkinson. Service said he was informed that President Roosevelt himself had permitted the release of Atkinson's dispatch because it was factually accurate.

Never Gave Military Secrets

To the questions on whether he ever passed military information to Jaffe, and whether he had cautioned Jaffe not to reveal or make use of it, Service appealed for a clearer definition of terms.

He never gave Jaffe military secrets, he was sure. He said that it was impossible to talk about China then without talking about the military situation. But he insisted he had no knowledge of American military plans or secrets.

To a hint that the subject might have been prospective American landings in China, Service replied that though the topic was in the air—Admiral Nimitz had mentioned at a press conference the need for such a landing—he, Service, did not know "if, when or where" any landing was to be made.

He may have cautioned Jaffe about not using certain information, Service speculated, but if so, it was only in accordance with usual practice of an official talking to a journalist, giving him some information for his own guidance, but not for publication.

eral expectation. Several other cities where the figures are still being checked likewise are going to show smaller gains than anticipated.

The reason is the same in every case: The move to the suburbs.

Earlier this spring, a top Census official estimated that the Greater Washington population would reach 1,500,000, of which around 900,000 were in the District and 600,000 outside in the Maryland and Virginia suburbs. So far, only the Virginia suburban figure has been announced. It showed a total of just over 302,000 for Alexandria, Falls Church and Arlington, and Fairfax counties. Even this figure was somewhat disappointing, especially the Alexandria total.

The Post was told Washington would get a shock when the total finally is made public. Numerous radio and newspaper appeals to those who may have been overlooked have brought in some additional, but not an appreciable number of individuals and families to be counted, it is understood.

Census officials now hope the unexpectedly low total may cause other persons so far overlooked to call the Census Bureau to be added to the 1950 count.

The spot recheck ordered by Census officials, to make sure the low preliminary figure actually is correct, is being conducted in congested downtown areas from which much of the exodus to the suburbs is reported to have taken place. Some homes, apartments and rooming houses now being checked are the same ones visited in the 1948 count. This will enable Census to see how much "un-doubling-up" of families, for example, has taken place in the past two years.

St. Marys Population Up By 14,327 to 28,953

St. Marys County, Md., has doubled its population in the last 10 years, official preliminary census figures showed yesterday. The 1950 population of 28,953, a 97.9 percent increase over the 1940 total of 14,626, jumps St. Marys from twentieth to twelfth position in rank among Free State counties.

Lustron Cash To 'Senators'

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 22 (U.P.). Joseph T. Ferguson, State auditor who is the Democratic nominee for United States Senator, charged today "other Senators" besides Senator Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.), received money from the bankrupt Lustron Corp.

Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood and Clyde M. Foraker, receiver appointed by Judge Underwood, said at Columbus later that McCarthy was the only Senator paid by the huge prefabricated enamel steel housing firm.

The firm gave McCarthy $10,000 in 1948 for writing part of a promotion article published by Lustron.

Foraker said "not that I know of" when asked if any other Senators had received money.

McCarthy admitted the payment and said there was "nothing secret" about it. He said he just sold the article to the highest bidder.

8th Graders to Study Language, Business

Eighth-grade students in District schools will be required to take a semester of business training and a semester of a foreign language.

The Board of Education at its meeting Wednesday approved the curriculum change. Previously the courses have been elective.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning recommended the proposal to "introduce more children to the foreign language field." Languages to be offered are French, Spanish and Latin.

The semester of business training will be valuable to the student as a consumer, school officials said. It will include units on business practices, filing, taxes, insurance, leases, interest and business arithmetic.

Dr. Corning said the course will be required for all students able to profit from them. Other students will be allowed to substitute shop and home-making courses.

The board, at its regular meeting, also indorsed a bill introduced in Congress by Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), chairman of the House District Committee, to light the Eastern High School stadium for night games and increase stadium seating capacity to 10,000. The board said it hoped the bill would not interfere with plans for a stadium at Coolidge High School.

To Test Drugs

GWU Gets $7120 for Polio Study

George Washington University scientists yesterday got $7120 to start a search for a drug that might halt the growth of the polio virus.

Dr. Smith

The grant, from the National Foundadation for Infantile Paralysis, went to Dr. Paul Kenneth Smith, GWU professor of pharmacology, who is currently checking drugs against tumor growth for the National Cancer Institute.

Drug research against multiplication of the polio virus was reopened last year when a way was discovered to grow the virus in human, non-nervous tissue, foundation officials said. Dr. Smith and his associates now can test drug actions on the tissue-grown virus.

Assisting Dr. Smith will be Dr. Mary Louise Robbins, assistant professor of bacteriology at GWU, and a group of research workers. Dr. Smith has been on the university staff since January, 1946.

The grant is but one of 34 awards totaling $1,441,721, announced yesterday by the foundation.

R. B. Gray Gets Gold Medal in Agriculture

By The Associated Press

The American Society of Agriculture Engineers last night awarded the John Deere Gold Medal to Roy B. Gray of 3162 Key blvd., Arlington, Va., and the Cyrus Hall McCormick Gold Medal to Arnold P. Yerkes of Winnetka, Ill.

They were honored, at the annual dinner of the society during its forty-third annual convention for agricultural achievements.

Gray is head of the division of farm machinery in the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Plant Industry. He headed the Agriculture Department's program to check the invasion of the European corn borer from 1927 to 1931. Much of his work since then has been on reasearch on farm machinery.

Arlington School Bond Issue May Not Equal $9 Million

Arlington County's next school bond issue may be somewhat less than the nine million dollars being advocated by some county groups.

This was the statement yesterday of Mrs. Elizabeth P. Campbell, chairman of the county school board, who said the board "probably" will "ask financing of a construction program for only two years ahead at this time."

Mrs. Campbell reminded Arlingtonians the school board "has not had a part in the recent suggestions from various citizens groups that a new school bond issue of approximately nine million dollars be presented to the voters in November."

"Although we know that additional bond money is required for vital new school construction, we wish to proceed as conservatively and soundly as possible." Mrs. Campbell said the school situation will be discussed at a public meeting called for June 29 at 8 p. m. at the Kate Waller Barrett School, 4400 N. Henderson rd.

The school board chairman pointed out that all the money provided in the present bond issue will have been committed when contracts are let for additions at Hoffman-Boston and Washington-Lee high schools and for the new McKinley elementary school in Dominion Hills.

Mrs. Campbell said she did not know now whether specific plans for new construction would be "far enough advanced" by November to permit a referendum on a bond issue at that time. She said the exact amount of the bond issue cannot be determined until plans are far enough ahead for "reasonably accurate estimates of cost."

British Probe 4th Case Of 'Sabotage' on Subs

The Admiralty said an investigation is under way, but it declined to disclose details.

Zoning Decision Jeopardizes 10 Porches

Owners of 10 homes near the intersection of N. Capitol and Tuckerman sts. may have to tear down their $500 back porches as the result of a District Board of Zoning Adjustment decision yesterday.

The BZA refused to grant variances for the open porches which reduce the sideyard space below the legal minimum.

Denial of the variances would force the owners to get rid of the porches or face court action, District Building Inspector Jesse J. Kimball said at a hearing Wednesday.

Five of the houses involved are located in the 6400 block of North Capitol st. The others are around the corner on Tuckerman st. nw. The porches are 8 by 10-foot concrete slabs with roof.

Owners stated at the hearing that one contractor built all 10 last year, and that they themselves were not aware of the violation. Kimball said the construction was done without building permits and that the contractor drew a suspended fine in Municipal Court.

Approval of the porches would "open the door to violation elsewhere," BZA member Robert O. Clouser said yesterday.

One of the home owners, Edward Sweet of 6413 N. Capitol st., declared his group would get together soon to decide what to do next.

The BZA also ruled that the American Friends Service Committee must close its international guest house at 2410 Wyoming ave. nw. It was an inappropriate use in an A-residential neighborhood, Clouser said.

The service committee has provided free quarters there for visiting foreigners since its former owner died in 1946. Not until last spring, however, when a neighborhood protest started a BZA investigation did the committee learn it was violating zoning regulations.

The board aproved a request for permission to build a 100-carparking lot behind a Giant Food Store at 2130-2148 Wisconsin ave. nw., but stipulated that a fence be erected to screen the lot.

Correction

Mrs. Rose C. Humphrey, 3321 16th st. nw., who has taught in the District for 33 years, was retired Wednesday by the Board of Education.

Since 1941, Mrs. Humphrey has been a teacher at the Thomson School and not the Thomas School as reported yesterday in the Washington Post.

Mrs. Humphrey was appointed as a teacher here in 1901. She resigned in 1908 at the time of her marriage but resumed her teaching career in 1924.

193d Signature

Rep. Rogers Signs 'Rule' Petition

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.) yesterday signed the Washington home rule discharge petition.

She said she did so to help correct a condition here against which her State once fought: "Taxation without representation."

Her's was the 193d signature on the petition. Signatures of 218 House members, a majority, are required to place the Senate-approved bill before the House for a vote.

Groups supporting the bill said they have promises of additional signatures to boost the petition close to the 200 mark. An estimated seven of the previous signatures are in question, according to members, as representing persons who have signed a second time.

Mrs. Rogers said she does not like to sign discharge petitions, as a rule but feels representative government for the District of such importance as to justify her signing.

"In Massachusetts, we fought against taxation without representation," she said.

The discharge petition was filed by another Massachusetts member, Representative John F. Kennedy, (Democrat) after the House District Committee tabled the Senate-approved home rule bill last year.

The bill still is pigeonholed in the committee.

It would give Washington a representative city council, and an elected school board.

Montgomery GOP Selects Partial Slate

Montgomery County Republicans have drafted a partial slate of candidates for the September primaries, but they hope to avoid a primary fight.

This was revealed yesterday in a talk over Radio Station WGAY by John R. Reeves, now a member of the Maryland House of Delegates and the Republican State Central Committee for the county.

Reeves also confirmed rumors that he intends to manage the campaign of State Senator Roy Tasco Davis of Montgomery County, who aspires to the Republican nomination for Governor of Maryland.

DeWitt S. Hyde and R. Duncan Clark, now members of the House of Delegates, are seeking the State senatorship left vacant by Davis' gubernatorial aspirations. It is hoped that a compromise will be reached whereby one will withdraw and seek another post.

State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson will seek reelection, as will Register of Wills Walter C. Clarke and Orphan's Court Judges Millward C. Taft, Charles H. Squire and William Tyler Page, jr.

Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., Mrs. Leona M. Rush and Julian P. King will seek reelection as members of the House of Delegates.

Charles S. Lawrenson—who was civil service commissioner from 1946 to 1948, when his post gave way to the new three-member personnel board—is slated to run for sheriff.

Candidates for the seven posts on the county council have not been decided on. Four of the present members are Republicans, J. Douglas Bradshaw, Harold F. Hammond, Thomas C. Kelley and A. S. Selby.

The Republicans swept their entire ticket into office, with the exception of four antiorganization Democrats who were running on a coalition ticket, four years ago. It is hoped to repeat that performance by avoiding bitter primary fights, leaders say.

Truman and Lausche Meet, Shake, Ignore Taft Issue

took this to be a reference to the charges of Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) that Communists are shaping policy in the State Department.

William M. (Bill) Boyle, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who was at the luncheon, said Mr. Truman told the Governors that it was necessary to elect "real Democrats" to the Senate and House this fall if Congress is to further a program in the people's interests.

Only Democrats Invited

The President, at his news conference in the morning, had made it clear that he did not place Governor Thurmond and Governor Wright in this political category. He was asked whether Thurmond and Wright, who made up the States Rights or Dixiecrat ticket in 1948, turned down invitations to the Mayflower luncheon or were not invited.

Mr. Truman said that they were not invited—that only Democrats were invited.

At the Mayflower, the Chief Executive and the Governors gathered around an oval table. Governor Lausche, who was five seats down the table on Mr. Truman's right, suggested that he might like to get a report from Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland on what happened at White Sulphur Springs.

Governor Lane, who presided at the roundtable discussion on foreign affairs, reported that the Governors were much impressed by Secretary of State Acheson, who talked to them for 3½ hours Tuesday. He said they had greater confidence in the State Department after getting a first hand explanation of how it was going about achieving its objectives around the world.

Governor Lane said they were impressed, too, by the fact that all of the "cases" mentioned by Senator McCarthy went back beyond the time in 1947 when the State Department set up its loyalty program.

Lausche Makes Report

Governor Lausche, at Lane's suggestion, also made a report to the President. He emphasized the favorable reaction of many Republican Governors to Acheson's talk. Speaking for himself, later on, Lausche said he hoped to see Acheson and tell him how "tremendously impressed" he was by the sincerity of his remarks.

It was reported after Secretary Acheson's appearance at White Sulphur Springs that the Governors would vote on a resolution voicing confidence in the State Department.

Actually, no such resolution ever was proposed to the Governors' Conference. This according to individual Governors, was not significant. They pointed out that adoption of a resolution by the conference requires a unanimous vote. They thought the resolution which was adopted, saying the conference was under a "great debt" to Acheson and his aides for their frank presentation, ought to give a good idea of how they really felt.

Postlude

2 Sopranos Sing and Act 1 Opera Part

By Paul Hume

"Il Trovatore" went on a tear last night, when two sopranos shared the spotlight in the leading role.

The San Carlo Company was preparing for its evening performance at the Watergate when word came that Gertrude Ribla, dramatic soprano, was suffering from a bad cold and had almost no voice for the part of Leonora.

A quick canvas of Washington brought out Miss Leona Scheunemann, who sang the role of Micaela in Carmen on Monday. Miss Scheunemann, over the telephone, said she knew the music for the role, but had not taken part in a stage performance.

Further conferences, in the tradition of crises in operas, arranged that the opera could be given without a hitch. First of all, Miss Ribla made a valiant attempt to sing the taxing role. But her voice showed in her first scene that she could sing only with great difficulty. It was also plain that it would have been dangerous for her to try to carry on.

From that point, Miss Scheunemann took over, singing from the orchestra barge. Miss Ribla, in best stage tradition, carried on in costume, acting out the role on the stage. She gave every evidence of singing, moving her lips, and displaying the gifts of a real actress as she moved about the stage through her five scenes.

In the meantime, Miss Scheunemann, with fine voice and absolute control, sang with constant beauty of tone and sure technique. The role of Leonora is a hard one, full of coloratura work, and big, high notes. Both ladies deserve highest praise for their rare cooperation, and for giving the large audience a capable, exciting reading of the opera.

To the conductor, Nicholas Rescigno, go equally loud praises. It is no easy matter to guide orchestra and other singers in music for which the leading soprano has had no rehearsal. The entire Gallo company is entitled to honor for their work in carrying out the unusual task.

Alesandro Granda sang the role of Manrico with authority, though his voice was less steady than as Rhadames on Tuesday. John Lawler was a fine Ferrando, and Mary Kreste, after a shaky start, turned out some good singing as Azucena.

But for their generous spirit and mature handling of a tough spot, the laurels for the week go to the ladies, Ribla and Scheunemann, and Conductor Rescigno. Tonight: Barber of Seville, with Panvini, Fiorella, Palmero and Rescigno.

New Arlington Judge to Hear Youth Cases

Arlington County is getting a new judge next month who will devote most of his time to juvenile court work.

He is Paul D. Brown, now assistant Commonwealth's attorney, who will asssume duties July 1 as Substitute Judge of the Arlington County Court.

Succeding Brown as assistant Commonwealth's attorney will be Paul G. Varoutsos, 29, of 112 N. Highland st., Arlington, it was announced by Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker.

Judge Hugh Reid, in announcing Brown's appointment yesterday, stated, "The growing importance of the juvenile and domestic relations work of the court has, for a long time, required more than the part-time attention it has received."

He said juvenile and domestic hearings "have been too hurried" because of congested civil and criminal dockets in the court, and added that Brown would devote most of his time to this work, although he will take over other dockets "when the volume of work justifies."

Judge Reid pointed out that the 1950 General Assembly gave the Virgina juvenile law its "first major overhaul" since 1918 and that Virginia "is now in the forefront as a State."

"We will need to implement this substantive law with sufficient court servces."

The new law makes no distinction between neglected, dependent and delinquent children in Virginia and commits the State to local aid for juvenile counselors or probation officers.

Brown said, "I want to work with Judge Reid in getting better statistical reporting on work of the court, amplifying the reports of court activity so that the press and the public can be aware of what the court is doing; but being mindful of the safeguards of protection of the court hearings for the child and his family."

Brown's interpretation of the State juvenile law is that the judge has discretionary powers on admission of persons, other than the general public, to court hearings. Records of court cases are secret by law, however.

Asked whether he planned to admit newspapermen to juvenile court proceedings, Brown said, "The normal rule would be 'no.' I'd like to have some time to see how it works out."

Brown, 30, is married and lives at 4030 Washington blvd. in Arlongton. He is a cum laude graduate of Washington and Lee University, where he took his LL.B. He was admitted to the Virginia Bar in 1942 and has been assistant Commonwealth's attorney since 1947. From 1943 to 1947, he was with the law firm of Gloth & Gloth, the last two years as a partner. Varoutsos was admitted to the Virginia bar last year.

Worker Hurt In Collapse Of Scaffold

A Washington metal worker was critically injured yesterday in the collapse of a scaffold inside a 60-foot smokestack atop the Virginia Electric & Power Co. plant in Alexandria.

Three other workers on the scaffold managed to grab the edge of the chimney and clamber to safety when the disk-shaped platform tipped over.

Johnny Hill, 30, 2032 37th st. nw., suffered multiple fractures of both arms, facial lacerations and possible internal injuries when he plunged 50 feet to the base of the stack about 9 a. m., Alexandria police reported. Police said instant death apparently was averted because his fall was cushioned by about 4 feet of soot at the bottom of the chimney.

The other men were W. S. Bryant, 424 Earle st., Alexandria; Frank Halot, of the Monticello Hotel, Alexandria, and L. A. James, of Lynchburg, Va.

A spokesman for a Philadelphia construction company engaged in dismantling the steel chimney said a steel hook supporting one edge of the platform apparently broke.

Alexandria Rescue Squad workers, after removing Hill from the base of the smokestack, used an aerial ladder truck to lower him to the ground from the roof of the building. As an alternative to carrying the injured man down a series of steep steel stairways, they fashioned a "seaman's basket" and attached it to the mechanically operated ladder.

Shrine Fails to Back Temple in Alexandria

Los Angeles, June 22 (AP).—The Shrine today voted to convene next year in New York and created new temples in Albany, Ga., and San Angelo, Tex.

It also formally installed Dr. Hubert Poteat, Latin professor at Wake Forest, N. C., college as its new imperial potentate, succeeding movie-maker Harold Lloyd.

The imperial council—750 leaders of the some 140,000 Shriners who wound up their annual conclave here tonight—adjourned without acting on two other applications for new temples.

Those in Albany and San Angelo will operate for the first year under what the Shrine calls a dispensation. It amounts to a probation period.

New York has not had the Shrine convention since 1885 because the Shrine, born there in 1875, held its first 10 conventions with New York as host. Next year's convention will be July 8-14.

There was no explanation of the council's failure to approve new temples in Alexandria, Va., and Long Beach, Calif. Action on both was deferred, presumably for a year.

In the case of Long Beach, however, the way leading ultimately to a charter was cleared by amendment of by-laws to permit more than one temple in a county. Long Beach is in Los Angeles County, which already has the Shrine's second largest temple, Al Malaikah, in Los Angeles.

Spy Suspect in Va. Jail

Salem, Va., June 22 (AP).—Alfred Dean Slack, 44-year-old chemist accused of wartime spying for the Russians, spent Wednesday night in the Roanoke County jail here en route to Knoxville, Tenn., to answer charges of spying. He left Salem at 8 a. m. today in the custody of three United States deputy marshals.

SUIT FILED—Dr. Emmett L. Wright, potentate of Chicago's Medinah Shrine Temple, is being sued by Chicago Police Sergt. Stephen J. Dunne for $100,000 damages for stealing the love of his former wife. Dr. Wright, honeymooning at the National Shrine convention in Los Angeles with Mrs. Wright, admitted his wife was the former Mrs. Dunne but called the suit "ridiculous"

Bethesda Boy Survives 2400-Volt Shock and Fall From Tree

Johnny Devine's guardian angel must have been on the job yesterday when the 10-year-old boy touched a 2400-volt wire, then fell more than 20 feet.

At about 11 a. m., the boy climbed a tree to see a bird's nest. The tree is at the end of Oak pl. in Bethesda on the Ayrlawn Farms property. The land is managed by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission as a recreation center.

Johnny, the son of W. J. Devine of 8918 Bradmoor dr., Bethesda, caught hold of two Potomac Electric Power Co. wires as he sat on a limb of the tree. He fell to the ground.

Tree limbs and a bush broke the fall. He was taken by the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, with bad burns on his hands and thigh and scratches on his face and body. Preliminary examination revealed no broken bones, and his condition was reported as satisfactory.

He is in the sixth grade at Our Lady of Lourdes parochial school, Bethesda. His father is a sales manager for the United States Gypsum Co.

Georgetown's Preservation Wins Backing

Civic and official groups yesterday urged approval of a bill to preserve the historic architecture of Georgetown. But the measure was questioned in Capitol hearing by Negro groups that the bill might tend to drive them from the area.

Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) author of the bill, assured the District subcommittee hearing that he has no intention whatever of forcing Negro groups out of Georgetown.

The subcommittee took the bill under advisement after ordering Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West to report on the constitutionality of the plan. His report is also to cover the working of similar plans in New Orleans, Richmond and Alexandria.

The bill sets up the district of Old Georgeton. Its boundaries generally are Rock Creek Park, the Potomac River, Glover Archbold Park and an irregular north boundary running along Reservoir rd., Whitehaven pkwy, and the north edge of Dumbarton Oaks Park.

Under the proposed law plans to alter historic structures in Old Georgetown would have to be referred by the District Commissioners to the Fine Arts Commission for review before building permits could be issued.

Support was voiced by representatives of two Georgetown associations of citizens, the Washington Board of Trade, American Institute of Architects, Fine Arts Commission and National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and other groups.

Speaking for Negro residents in Georgetown, the Rev. J. D. Foy of the Mount Zion Methodist Church, and Mrs. Gertrude T. Waters, teacher in the Phillips-Wormley School, expressed concern that the bill in operation would tend to force the Negroes from the Georgetown area.

AEC Nominations

The President's nominations to the Atomic Energy Commission seem unexceptionable as far as they go. The trouble is that they do not go so far as to include a chairman. The top post in the AEC has been vacant since David E. Lilienthal retired in February and, although the work of the agency has been carried on ably under Sumner Pike as acting chairman, the vacancy is a conspicuous and unfortunate one. An acting chairman is in an ambiguous and difficult position; he must assume leadership under the handicap of uncertain tenure. We hope that the President will fill the post as speedily as is consistent with finding the best available man for the job.

The four men named by the President are present members of the commission whose terms all expire at the end of this month. Senate confirmation of the nominations should come, therefore, without delay. The AEC now faces the most crucial decisions since its inception. The hydrogen bomb program on which it has embarked is weighted with tremendous implications for the social and economic future of the country as well as for its military security. A full team is needed under a chairman who will bring imaginative and constructive statesmanship to his gigantic task.

Essential Test Case

In moving to cite Philip J. Jaffe, editor of the defunct magazine Amerasia, for contempt of the Senate, the Tydings subcommittee is doubtless thinking more about protecting the investigative powers of Congress than about punishing a recalcitrant witness. It has become the fashion for witnesses seeking to obstruct an investigation to remain silent on grounds of self-incrimination. Until recently, such witnesses claimed the right of silence under the First Amendment guaranteeing freedom of speech. That argument failed utterly in the courts, and a number of stubborn witnesses who relied upon it have gone to jail.

When a witness insists that the desired testimony might incriminate him, however, the power of Congress to punish him for his silence is much more tenuous. The Constitution says that "no person shall . . . be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." In deference to this guarantee Congress passed, nearly a century ago, a law designed to compel the testimony of witnesses and at the same time to protect them from prosecution for crimes revealed by their testimony. It not only prevented the use of a witness' testimony in subsequent criminal proceedings but also gave him complete immunity from prosecution "for any fact or act touching which he shall be required to testify," whether in court or before a congressional committee. This act proved too sweeping, and in 1862 Congress repealed the latter part of it. The effect was to offer witnesses only a guarantee that their testimony before a congressional committee could not be used against them. They could be prosecuted for crimes revealed by their testimony if the testimony itself were not used.

The Supreme Court held, however, in a case involving "judicial proceedings" that such a partial guarantee "was not a sufficient substitute for the constitutional privilege of refusing to answer self-incriminating questions." This left the immunity statute a "shield to the criminal and an obstruction to justice" because one could get immunity from prosecution by confessing a crime in court. Congress finally got around to repealing this part of its original act applying to judicial proceedings, but it strangely left on the books the companion statute applying to testimony before congressional committees. Chief Justice Vinson brought this curious situation to the attention of Congress only last month in his opinion in the Bryan case.

Obviously Congress ought to clarify the law. Before it attempts to do so, however, it would be well to have a ruling from the Supreme Court on the direct issue of refusal to testify on grounds of self-incrimination. For that reason it is especially desirable to carry the Jaffe case to the courts.

We have long felt that congressional committees should have the discretion of granting to selected witnesses complete immunity from prosecution in order that it may compel them to talk. That power would have to be exercised with great care to prevent law violators from escaping punishment by confessing their crime to an investigating committee. But there are times when it is more important to turn the spotlight on undercover activities than to prosecute an individual, and in these cases Congress should certainly have power to grant the necessary immunity and compel the witness to testify.

70 Groups Of What?

It would be a mistake to regard the agreement of Senate-House conferees authorizing a 70-group Air Force as much more than a gesture. There is no possibility of such expansion of the Air Force within the 1951 budget, and no indication that additional funds are contemplated soon. Nevertheless, the fixation on the magic total of 70 groups is a disturbing sign of obsession with one type of military strategy. Just what 70 groups would mean, of course, is a semantic question: it depends on the size, purpose and composition of the groups. But the bland authorization of 70 groups, even though it is only an authorization, means that there has not yet been full appreciation of the immense and radical possibilities of the new defensive weapons just brought to light.

It is true that few, if any, of the new weapons are actually on hand; some will require intensive effort before they can be placed in production. It is equally true, however, that neither is a 70-group Air Force on hand; nor could the present 52½-group equivalent be expanded rapidly. What the new developments in guided missiles, skysweep antiaircraft weapons, applications of the proximity fuse and the like may mean is that present concepts of strategic bombing as this country's main striking force may soon be outmoded. It is reasonable to assume, as Walter Lippmann argued cogently yesterday, that the Russians are working on defensive weapons of their own which could minimize the effectiveness of strategic bombing. And it is quite as possible to succumb to the Maginot Line type of thinking respecting strategic air power as with forts or battleships.

This is not to say that the new weapons, when they are available, will diminish the role of air power. But they will assuredly change it. While it is important to maintain air strength in the interim, it is essential to avoid overcommitment to a type of strategy—and procurement—which may become obsolete. If anything is certain in warfare, it is that fixed and traditional concepts are dangerous. In short, an alert air defense compatible with the new developments now in progress will require more than a 70-group catch-word.

Outlawing Communism

The House of Assembly of the South African Parliament at Capetown has approved (after its final reading) a bill investing the government with extraordinary powers for the suppression of communism. The adoption of this bill by the South African Senate is said to be certain. In Australia, however, a similar bill passed by the House of Representatives has for the time being been defeated by the Labor Party majority in the Senate; but Prime Minister Menzies, angered by this defeat, has threatened to carry the question to the people in a general election.

These episodes bring again into focus the horns of the dilemma with which the conspiratorial character of communism has confronted the statesmanship of the free world. The provisions of the South African bill are dangerously drastic. As originally prepared, the bill would have empowered the government to outlaw any organization or group that it might declare by its own fiat to be communistic. A later provision, accepted by the sponsors of the bill, that such action may be taken only with the advice and approval of a council of three, including the government legal adviser and a senior magistrate, modifies only slightly the tremendous powers conferred upon the government.

In Australia, it appears, the opposition might have accepted a bill to outlaw communism if it had included a provision placing upon the government the burden of proving that any organization it wished to suppress as communistic was so in fact and giving to any person accused of Communist affiliations the right of a trial by jury. This, according to Mr. Menzies' supporters, would have rendered the government utterly impotent.

That is possibly so. The Canadian experience, as disclosed in the now famous Report of the Royal Commission in the espionage cases, shows that nothing is accomplished merely by outlawing the Communist Party by name. In obedience to the law the party dissolved itself and was promptly reorganized under the name of the Labour-Progressive Party. Wherever the technicalities of the law permit the Communists will take the same action. And yet the whole course of Western political history emphasizes the danger of granting any government powers that could with slight pretext be employed against political enemies of every category.

In sum, no satisfactory answer has yet been found to the problem of how to prevent the Communists from exploiting free institutions in the interests of an inimical foreign power without sacrificing the institutions themselves.

Arms And Recovery

The economic recovery and the military defense of western Europe are like oil and water; both are essential, but they do not readily mix. Senator Lodge is running a grave danger of adulterating the purpose of ECA when he proposes to use counterpart funds in the individual countries to buy arms. Whether or not all these countries are exerting the military effort they should under the combined defense agreement has nothing to do with the principle.

In the first place, the ECA commitment is based upon assessed economic need; diversion of counterpart funds would necessarily detract from approved recovery projects and from the stabilization against inflation which those funds are intended to provide. Secondly, an overemphasis on arms at the expense of recovery would increase the fears of Europeans that this country believes war is inevitable. It would give the Russians an incomparable propaganda tool in their campaign to stigmatize the Marshall Plan as a militaristic device and to neutralize Europe.

ECA Administrator Hoffman has properly warned that his agency wants no part of such a proposition. His warning should be respected in the Senate. Europe must be strong economically as well as militarily; in fact, the first defense against subversion is healthy economies. Anything that would impair the completion of the recovery so well advanced would result in a hollow defense indeed.

Currency Integration

It is reported that the Europeans have come to an agreement on the so-called Payments Union, but, as the report adds that the agreement will not be published for another three weeks, it would seem that this is only a tentative agreement. Perhaps the report is aimed at assuring Congress, which is now on the eve of appropriating the third year of Marshall money, that to all intents and purposes this form of integration has been achieved. Well, we hope so, for ECA Administrator Hoffman has much at stake in agreement, and seems to have been ready to do a lot of compromising in order to get it. But agreement is not necessarily better than the lack of it, and a good many careful eyes will be available to read what actually has been accomplished, when the facts are revealed.

What ECA wanted was some move which would show Congress that there is advance toward the convertibility of currencies or free exchanges in Europe to meet the intent of Congress in authorizing ECA aid. Some of the countries have recovered enough to allow them to abolish currency controls, but not all. It was therefore proposed that the Marshall countries should go on a free system in their currencies in their current trade interrelations, with certain safeguards for the debtor countries. In this way trade would lose its present bilateral character, and would be expedited in the way that production has been expedited. Two difficulties had to be overcome: one, the problem of taking into account Britain's financial obligations to non-Europe; second, the extent of the safeguards that have been the bone of contention. Creditors want to get payments as much as possible in gold; otherwise a debtor could keep on buying on credit, with the dual result of fomenting inflation in the creditor country, without any contraction in the debtor country.

One of the successes of the ECA has been that it has been "disinflationary." For instance, money is set aside for the purchase of ECA goods, and held in the recipient country in a so-called counterpart fund, releasable to offset inflation either by reducing budgetary deficits or by developing production. It would undo this beneficent work if an excess of credits were to be pumped into these economies after bilateral settlements have been set aside in favor of an inter-European credit system. This would not only undo the good work that has been done, it would postpone rather than facilitate the return of currency integration, or the full and comprehensive convertibility of currencies. In truth it is the details of agreement, not agreement as such, that are important.

New Milk Law Needed

The District Commissioners have acted wisely, if tardily, in approving a temporary modification of the sanitary requirements of the Milk Act of 1925. Under the authorization approved yesterday, producers of milk sold in Washington may use the new chemical sterilization method as well as the old and more expensive steam sterilization required by the law. However, there is need for additional reform. Some of the provisions of the Milk Act are both outmoded and unnecessary—for instance, the ban on milk from farms not inspected by the District Health Department. The purpose of the bill introduced by Representative A. L. Miller is to bring the Milk Act up to date. The Commissioners should have a particular interest in supporting such a revision because of the inadequacies in the present law demonstrated during the milk strike.

There is no reason why sterilization procedures approved by the Public Health Service, as well as inspections by health departments of other States, cannot be safely accepted in the District. The effect of the present law has been to keep out milk from producers who do not have expensive sterilizing equipment; in effect it increases the hold of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, which virtually sets its own prices. Yet during the war, when the association could not furnish all the milk needed, other milk was imported without harm. Similar laws in other cities are composites of restrictions, the original purpose of which may have been to safeguard the public, but which now serve principally to increase the cost of milk. It is true that members of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association have an investment in steam sterilizing equipment. Nonetheless the milk law should be primarily concerned, not with favoring any particular group of producers, but with protection of the consumer.

Police Legwork

In ferreting out the murderer of a Washington cab driver at Bolling Air Force Base, police were looking for a needle in a haystack. That they appear to have found the needle—the confessed assailant—is a marked tribute to the patient, tireless legwork of the homicide squad and Air Force investigators. It was admirable teamwork between police and the military, in which more than 4000 persons were interviewed during the three weeks that elapsed between the crime and the arrest. Little bits of evidence were sifted and finally put together so convincingly that the suspected airman immediately confessed.

Lee's Loyalty

As a former Federal employe now returned to Washington for a visit, I am appalled at the mood of fear which has settled over this city. Public servants are so cautious they seem to have lost the initiative that is necessary for good government.

There is good reason at the moment for fear in the Department of Commerce, where the Secretary and his administrative officers have set the precedent of dismissal for reasons of convenience. The case of William Remington in the Department of Commerce was settled by his resignation after indictment by a grand jury. The proceeding to dismiss Michael Lee, who has been charged with "maladministration," remains strictly the act, the responsibility, and the shame of the Secretary of Commerce.

I have known Mr. Lee since about 1943. Part of the time I was his immediate supervisor. He was cleared as a security risk in our own war agency investigation. He was cleared in 1949 by a postwar loyalty board. With his integrity as a loyal American he is also outstanding as an expert in Far Eastern matters. His analyses and advice have been valuable to this Nation and to its highest officials.

It remained only for Senator Malone to charge him with being a poor security risk, for a disgruntled employe to charge him with maladministration, and for an off-the-record congressional committee session to be held before the Secretary of Commerce started proceedings to dismiss him. If any new evidence was produced in the Senate committee, it was not reported to Mr. Lee so that he might reply. The whole action by the Secretary of Commerce appears to be unjust and politically stupid, but the consequence to the Federal service is no less serious for the possibility that Secretary Sawyer made a mistake.

What can be done? Instead of patchwork on the loyalty program, Mr. Truman can redeem his present program and relieve some of the fear by reviewing and retracting the action against Mr. Lee. Unless he revokes Mr. Sawyer's action, Mr. Truman is in the untenable position of having his loyalty program negated by one of his own subordinates who has adopted a policy of dismissal for convenience.

One other move to dispel some of the fear would be some organized effort among Federal employes to combat unfair charges and tactics against their numbers. As a visitor, I am struck by the apparent lack of any organized self-defense of the Federal service.

Attack On Lie

The attack by Republican Senators Styles Bridges (N. H.) and William F. Knowland (Calif.) against United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie has led me to believe that the Senators want the U. N. to become an American organization, and that if we have peace, it be an American peace.

I should like to remind the Senators—and others—of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt's report to Congress after his return from the Yalta Conference in Crimea on March 1, 1945. In his report President Roosevelt said: "The structure of world peace cannot be the work of one man, or one party, or one nation. It cannot be just an American peace, or a British peace, or a Russian, French, or Chinese peace. It cannot be a peace of large nations, or small nations. It must be a peace which rests on the cooperative efforts of the whole world."

Bolling Murder

Intelligent police work was shown by the homicide squad in its apprehension and arrest of 18-year-old Gilbert Reynolds in the Bolling Field murder of Gordon C. Brown, jr.

It was a difficult case, and with only a few facts to work with, the detectives discovered the accused murderer. Detective Lieutenants Richard Felber and Jack Baker are certainly to be commended for their work.

However, it must be remembered that while much police work is deductive, it would be far better for all concerned if more time were devoted to preventive measures.

As was pointed out in the recent Collier's article reprinted in your paper, "Terror In Washington," policemen should be put back on the beat in the more isolated parts of the city.

Crime of this sort will not be committed if the prospective criminal sees a uniformed policeman often enough to remember that there are still law enforcement agencies. This is especially true of a youth who is still debating about committing a crime.

"Temporary" Residents

It's unbelievable there are still Arlington (and Fairfax) County officials who, like Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green in his letter of June 14, can blandly claim that "temporary" residents pay no taxes, especially school taxes.

Mr. Green knows that every renter — "temporary" or "permanent" — pays real estate taxes and school taxes. Every renter ought to be aware that part of his rent is earmarked for taxes by his landlord. John Locke Green knows that "temporary" residents pay telephone, utility, gasoline, and all the other excise and hidden taxes that any resident pays. Just what taxes do "permanent" residents pay which are not also paid by "temporary" residents?

And upon what basis can Mr. Green say that 50 percent of those voting bond issues in 1948 are no longer residents? The veiled slur against military and civil service families by Mr. Green does not go unnoticed. He knows these families are among the area's better income groups. Many have bought homes. Does this fact make them "permanent" residents?

Mr. Green knows from his own books that Arlington does not raise enough in real estate taxes to support its schools. Without State subsidy, plus minor Federal aid indirectly, Arlington could not pay its way. Why does he distort the issues and the facts? RNG.

"Fetish Of Freedom"

You score a point in your June 14 editorial on the recent address of the Very Rev. Hunter Guthrie, president of Georgetown University, when you remind us that "the time makes ancient good uncouth", and that man's concept of the universe is morally constantly in a state of flux—Caperina Capernus and Galileo. However, when one makes a survey of many of the campuses of our modern colleges and universities we sometimes discover that the beautiful chapels that were erected through the largess of people who wanted to give their witness to the principles of the Christian religion have all too often become little more than mausoleums of diseased convictions.

Father Guthrie's insistence "the true and the good are natural limitations of freedom and that . . . by its very nature it packages the false with the true" is quite true also with reference to freedom. You say "we do not see how truth can be sired except by freedom". The major concern of all serious minded men and women should be focused upon a struggle for freedom by each. If we achieve freedom it will be through the bases of Christian truth and brotherhood.

Meantime, however, you and I don't have to wait for freedom or for the iron curtain to lift in order to practice Christian brotherhood.

It is not a product of freedom, academic or otherwise. It is possible to have it and to manifest it in our lives without that freedom. For freedom is one of the choice fruits of Christian truth and brotherhood.

A mountain-climbing ant, having found the very pinnacle of the highest of all ant heaps in his domain, may convince himself that he has reached the highest elevation on the surface of the earth. But before reaching such an exalted state of mind that he publicly declares the subject is "not an area for opinion," he should study the history of other ants in years and centuries past. They have also thought at times that they had reached such absolute criteria of truth and goodness that the subject was "not an area for opinion."

Such historical reflections should include earlier "unquestionable" theories such as the flatness of the earth, the movements of the solar system and the divine right of kings. Brilliant men have been tortured and put to death for daring to question these theories. And in each case the barbarous tortures were explained away to simple folk by saying, "He was guilty of heresy; his ideas lay in a field which is not an area for opinion."

New truths are derived only from other truths; if accidentally they come out of error, it is not by the laws of reason, but by the laws of chance, i.e. by luck. No one may knowingly embrace error, for it destroys the mind as poison destroys the body. If a doctor, even though honestly mistaken, gives his patients a drug we know is deadly, we must stop him, by whatever means necessary. But besides error itself, in the realm of new and unimproved theories, "the sensible limitation" on academic freedom must be the common good.

This is easily seen in the practice of reputable men in the medical profession. Because of the harm that might be done, a new remedy for a disease is not announced until its reliability has been well established.

Only when a theory, if it be wrong, would have serious consequences harmful to the common good, should it be limited by common sense caution and prudence. That, incidentally, was the reason for a restriction put on Galileo, by the men of science in his day, his theory about the earth revolving around the sun had not been sufficiently proved scientifically.

Important Primaries

By Marquis Childs

Carolina, Oklahoma

TWO MORE primaries are coming up that have a greater bearing on the status of the Truman Administration than most of the election contests to be decided in November. In the first of these primaries the issue is clearly drawn between the hybrid Republican Party and the regular Democratic organization aligned with President Truman.

On Saturday Senator Frank Graham of North Carolina faces Willis Smith in a runoff. In the first primary Graham failed by only a few thousand votes to get a clear majority over the three candidates running against him. The law requires a runoff if one candidate fails to get an outright majority.

Smith is an ultra-conservative lawyer in Raleigh, a former president of the American Bar Association. His campaign managers have used demagogic appeals to race prejudice to discredit Graham. An organization calling itself the Friends of Segregation has circulated reproductions of a picture of the South Carolina Legislature of 1876 showing a predominance of Negro members. This carpetbag Legislature, it is charged, is what Graham wants to impose on North Carolina.

The inflammatory tone of the attack is said to have produced a backfire in Graham's favor. As one outgrowth of his 19 years as president of the University of North Carolina, Graham has devoted friends throughout the State. When these devoted admirers want to apply the ultimate in praise, they call Graham a Christian. He has favored much but not all of the Truman program, specifically repudiating the civil rights measures.

ONE Republican phase of the anti-Graham campaign is the circulation to North Carolina voters of thousands of copies of the Reader's Digest reprint of John T. Flynn's book, The Road Ahead, and a sermon by the Rev. Walter R. Courtenay of Nashville, Tenn., which is a carbon copy of the Digest. The sermon attacks Graham by name "as far to the left of the American system."

The 31-page leaflet, reprinted from the Congressional Record, is being sent into North Carolina towns in mail sacks postmarked Grand Central Station, New York, with instructions to the postmaster to distribute them to all holders of postoffice boxes. They are being sent out under the franking privilege of Representative Ralph Gwinn, Republican, of New York. This means that they are being mailed at the expense of the taxpayer. The leaflets, however, are marked "not printed at Government expense."

I asked Representative Gwinn about this practice. He said:

"Those are not especially for North Carolina. They're being sent out to all the States. We've got to stop this trend toward deep socialism. Do I think social security is part of deep socialism? Why, of course, I do. It's taxing one set of people for another set instead of letting them build their own house of social security."

Graham's managers in North Carolina say the leaflets began coming into the State only a few days ago. They believe that they were deliberately injected into the campaign at this critical point to defeat their man.

IN THE second critical Democratic primary—in Oklahoma on July 4—the difference between the two chief contenders is not so sharply drawn on the basis of ideas or opinions. Senator Elmer Thomas, 74 years old, is seeking a fifth term in the Senate. His chief role has been to fight for even bigger and bigger subsidies for farmers, with the emphasis on cotton, including personal speculation in the cotton market.

The challenger is Representative A. S. M. (Mike) Monroney, now serving his sixth term in the House. The latest reports are that Monroney's chances of defeating Thomas have considerably improved. He has been making an intensive campaign throughout the State.

That shopworn label "liberal" does not fit Monroney. He has been most closely associated with the moderate, border State Democrats in the House who oppose the farthest out measures of the Fair Deal such as the Brannan farm plan and the national health insurance proposal.

Monroney has won his high reputation by his persistent and effective effort in behalf of more efficient government. On the House side, he led the move that resulted in adoption of the congressional reorganization plan.

The contrast therefore, in this instance, is between an able, alert younger man who knows the Washington game and the shabby performance of an old-timer. But Thomas, through the years, has built up a powerful organization, and no one can confidently predict what the voters will do when—and if—they go to the polls on our most important national holiday.

But one thing is pretty certain. A triumph by Smith in North Carolina would be taken, and properly so, as a severe blow to the Truman Administration. The same would be true in a lesser degree with a Thomas victory in Oklahoma.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Acheson And Johnson

A GREAT subterranean struggle is now going on in Washington. The chief actors in this silent drama are Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. The struggle revolves about a life-and-death issue whose real meaning has been analyzed in recent reports in this space. The issue is this: will a serious effort now be made to place the Atlantic community in a posture of defense against the time when Soviet rearmament will be complete? Or will the present sham effort be continued indefinitely?

The inner history of the Acheson-Johnson battle on this issue goes back to the time when President Harry S. Truman announced his decision to go ahead with the hydrogen bomb. Immediately thereafter, Truman ordered Acheson and Johnson to make a joint over-all review and reassessment of American foreign and defense policy, in the light of such events as the loss of China, the Soviet mastery of atomic energy and the prospect of the hydrogen bomb. The State Department's policy planning staff was assigned to do the spadework on this global policy paper. Immediately, the policy planners struck a large, stubborn snag.

On the one hand, every responsible official in the State Department, from Acheson on down, was convinced that the American response to the challenge of mounting Soviet strength was inadequate. For some months this conviction has been reflected in all Acheson's public statements, in which he has been calling for "total diplomacy," for "creating situations of strength" and for "mobilizing our total resources."

Yet on the other hand, this Acheson prescription, translated from generalities into hard realities, would make nonsense of Johnson's "economy" program. Johnson would thus be forced to reverse himself in the most embarrassingly public manner. And for obvious reasons, Johnson has no intention whatsoever of allowing this to happen.

THUS those charged with writing the global report were faced with the problem of reconciling two entirely contradictory views. This situation was dealt with in a wearily familiar way. A paper was produced which called for an increased foreign and defense policy effort by the United States. But the paper was couched in such vague and general terms that it committed no one to anything.

Johnson accepted this watery version, and it was accordingly submitted through the National Security Council to the President. Truman immediately turned it back to the NSC. He rather tartly and quite accurately pointed out that it was pointless to talk vaguely of a stepped up American effort to win the cold war. He demanded precise answers to the obvious questions — Where? How? How much?

The attempt to answer these vital questions in real, dollars-and-cents terms has precipitated the great, invisible struggle which is now going on. Occasionally, the struggle becomes briefly visible above the surface. This happened, for example, early this month, when first Acheson and then Johnson testified on the military aid program before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

On June 2, Acheson said that the only "honest answer" he could give was that the scale of expenditure under MAP would have to be increased in the future. Three days later, Johnson, while blandly disclaiming any disagreement with Acheson, flatly disagreed with him. Asserting that "I think I have been living a little more closely with this field of military expenditures, than Acheson," Johnson "guessed" that the rate of expenditure could be progressively decreased in coming years.

IT IS impossible to find any informed official in Washington, in uniform or out, who sincerely shares this Johnsonian view or who believes that the current level of expenditures will provide in time even a skeleton defense for western Europe. Yet partly because of Johnson's undeniably effective bullying, and partly because of the tradition of paramount civilian responsibility, the Joint Chiefs of Staff now seem prepared to go along with Johnson. If they do, this will render Acheson almost powerless, simply because the final responsibility for making an essentially military assessment obviously rests with the Joint Chiefs.

Yet Acheson has not lost. The Joint Chiefs themselves are perfectly aware of the probable outcome if western Europe is still nakedly defenseless and the United States half disarmed when the Soviet rearmament effort reaches its peak in 1953-54. There have been increasingly audible murmurs of revolt in the Pentagon. And Acheson has important allies elsewhere, including NSRB Chairman Stuart Symington, ECA Chief Paul Hoffman, and now Averell Harriman, who, as the President's man Friday, will occupy a central position.

Finally, there have been signs (like his appointment of Thomas Finletter as Air Force Secretary, an appointment very far from welcome to Johnson) that Truman himself is not entirely happy about Johnson's business-as-usual policy. And it is Truman who must make the final decision. This is not a light responsibility. For it is almost mathematically predictable that Truman's decision will lead in a few years either to peace through strength or to war through weakness.

Hurley Swaps His 'Wings' For a Spade

Neither Snow Nor Rain Nor Heat Nor Gloom Of Night Stays These Couriers From The Swift Completion Of Their Appointed Rounds.

Charles R. Hurley has met all of the obstacles cited in the motto of the Postoffice Department since he was 18 years old, but now he plans to develop a green thumb in place of his courier wings.

Hurley

Retired Wednesday from his post as superintendent of Friendship Post Office, he hopes now to have time to keep the weeds out of his flower and vegetable gardens at his home, 4401 Montgomery ave., Bethesda, Md.

Hurley, now 62, began his career with the mails at the age of 18 in the old postoffice at 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. While there he learned about "the gloom of night" as he delivered mail in downtown Washington during darkness as part of an experiment that lasted several months but finally was abandoned.

It was after he started as the first city carrier in the history of Chevy Chase that Hurley found out about snow and rain and heat (and mud), he said yesterday as he relaxed his lanky frame in an easy chair. There were days when he had to abandon his horse and wagon and deliver his mail on foot because the mud was so deep.

He received $600 annually when he started in 1907 and later was given a $480 allowance for his horse.

The only day Hurley was late was the day after Taft's inauguration. A wrecked wagon tied up the streetcar line, and he was unable to get to the postoffice. He went to work at 6 a. m. for 13 years.

Annexation Court Hears More Experts

Water consumers in a section of Fairfax County sought by the city of Falls Church could save $19,000 yearly if the territory is annexed by the city, an engineering consultant said yesterday.

William R. Johnson, of Lynchburg, Va., who designed the present Falls Church water system, made the estimate before a three-judge annexation court at Fairfax. The saving, he said, could be effected through the difference in bills now rendered residents of the city and those living in the "annexable" zone. He said his estimate was based on minimum monthly bills in each area.

Under cross-examination by Robert J. McCandlish, jr., attorney for the county, Johnson agreed that the cost of extending water service to the annexable zone could not be immediately offset by increased revenues. He said a bond issue or short term loan would be necessary to finance the extension.

Earlier in the day—fourth day of the annexation suit—a Falls Church planning consultant estimated that $77,622 would be the city's share of the cost of Government-owned sewers it would take over in the event of annexation.

John R. Williams, pointing out that the Government had agreed to sell the county $1,773,000 worth of war-built sewers for a flat sum of $460,000, noted that only 16.8 percent of the sewer lines were within the annexable zone. He said he based his estimate of the city's cost of the acquisition on the ratio between the sewerage lines it would take over and the entire system.

Questioned by McCandlish, Williams conceded that some of the Falls Church lines would pump sewage into a disposal plant which the county proposes to build. Purchase of the Government-built sewers and construction of the disposal plant are principal features of a three-million-dollar sewerage program recently authorized by voters in the county's Sanitary District No. 1.

Alabama Bars Race Mixing in Public Schools

Montgomery, Ala., June 22 (AP).—The Alabama Legislature declared yesterday "we will not submit to the intermingling of white and Negro children in our public schools."

Without a dissenting vote, both Houses passed two resolutions denouncing recent U. S. Supreme Court decisions against segregation as a threat to Southern civilization.

"The way of life of the Southern people, civilization itself as we know it in the South, peace and good will between white and Negro races" depend on segregation, one resolution said.

Condemning the "continuous efforts" by the courts, the President and Congress "to force intermingling of the races," the resolution demanded "recognition of our right to our laws and our customs, and to local self-government."

The other resolution called on Federal courts and agencies to "exercise caution" to avoid stirring up conflict between the races. It also urged Alabama members of Congress to "protect us against the continual encroachment of a powerful Federal Government in breaking down" States rights.

The Supreme Court recently outlawed segregation at the University of Oklahoma and on railroad dining cars.

be refunded to the taxpayer or credited against income-tax liabilities.

When rumors persisted of a "sleeper" collecting more from better paid employes than they actually owed, Senate Finance Chairman George authorized a statement denying the report.

"It is not the intent or purpose to collect any (Social Security) tax on wages over and above the first $3600, whether earned by an employe or a self-employed person," said George.

George said he intends to clear up any "confusion" that may exist about the provision when the bill goes to conference with the House. Several members of the House Ways and Means Committee had indicated they intended to raise the question in conference.

Under the proviso for "combined withholding," employers would no longer be required to make separate determinations of the amount of income tax and the amount of employe Social Security tax to be withheld on the same wage payments.

Instead, the combined social security tax and income tax withholding would be determined from a wage bracket table or, if the employer chooses, on a percentage basis.

Employers would furnish their workers a single annual receipt covering both taxes, instead of the two separate receipts now required.

The receipt would show (1) the amount of wages subject to the 1½ percent social security tax (2) the actual amount of the tax (3) the amount of wages subject to income tax withholding and (4) the amount of income tax withheld.

In addition, Treasury tax collectors would be permitted to make a single assessment of social security and income tax withheld, relieving them of dual interest and penalty computations, as well as their present duty of keeping social security taxes segregated.

To remove any doubt that the Treasury would collect more than the amount due in most cases under the combined system George suggested that a wage bracket table specifying amounts collectible could easily be worked out.

Hoffman Discounts Effects Here of Europes Exports

New York, June 22 (AP).—Paul G. Hoffman said today that western Europe must earn a bilion dollars more and spend a billion dollars less to be on a pay-as-you-go basis by 1953.

Hoffman, head of the Economic Cooperation Administration, addressed the convention of the AFL United Textile Workers.

An added billion dollars in earnings for western Europe, Hoffman said, would mean about 400 million dollars in increased imports to the United States.

He compared this 400-million-dollar figure to America's 140-billion-dollar of wholesale goods produced and said "Frankly I cannot see it in the Frankenstein proportions it has attained in some minds."

In the textile field, Hoffman went on, Europe may up her textile imports to the United States from the present 110 million dollars a year to 160 million dolars in 1953.

But this is a small figure compared to American textile production worth 12 billion dollars, he said.

Newspaper Detective Stories

Reporters Ike White and Gus Roeder of the N. Y. World played the leading roles in an adventurous rouser . . . They were assigned to investigate the disappearance of two immigrants who vanished soon after their ship docked . . . The newsmen disguised themselves as seamen and prowled the waterfront for weeks . . . One night they heard a rumor . . . That the missing men had been shanghaied and enslaved by an oyster-fishing boat captain, operating off the Maryland coast.

When the reporters informed the police, "the fantastic story" was snubbed . . . They finally got a warrant for the pirate skipper's arrest . . . Accompanied by a deputy marshal—they rowed out to the ship in the middle of the night . . . The captain and his crew, luckily, were sound asleep . . . With pistols poked in his ribs the villain meekly surrendered . . . The next day he confessed, the immigrants were liberated, and Our Heroes had a front-page darling.

The Loeb-Leopold murder mystery was cracked by reporters Jim Mulroy and Al Goldstein . . . They labored around the clock chasing leads, tips and digging facts. Their amazing reportorial diligence and sleuthing were rewarded with enough devastating evidence for an air-tight case . . . When they confronted the chief suspect he got panicky and blurted out a confession.

Their Sherlocking started with a single innocuous clue: A pair of eyeglasses found near the victim's body.

A lovely choir-singer died of poison in a Cape Cod village several years ago . . . The official verdict was suicide . . . Boston Reporter Fred Spayde was not satisfied with the official decision . . . He fine-combed the record of the victim's beau—a clergyman—and discovered a blemish . . . He had been expelled from college for cribbing . . . Reporter Spayde's suspicions (aroused by this single flaw in the churchman's character) went to work . . . He inserted a classified ad in his own paper—requesting info about the poison which killed the girl . . . A druggist responded—supplying the missing fragments of the jigsaw.

The clergyman was convicted. He called Fred "My Ace of Spade."

Reporter George Wisner of the old N. Y. Sun reaped the most precious laurels for his crime-bustin' . . . Wisner was earning a lavish $4 per week when he rocked the town by cracking several murder mysteries . . . Once he exposed a medical quack, who challenged him to a duel . . . Wisner replied: "Since I have a choice of weapons, how about syringes filled with your own quack medicine at five paces?" . . . The Sun's owners were so happy about their Star Reporter's many scoops they rewarded him. And how!

They made him half owner of the paper.

The killing of Helen Jewett in a bordello offered James Gordon Bennett an opportunity to play copsnrobbers . . . Until this case exploded—crime news was exiled to the Siberia section of the newspapers—or ignored . . . Bennett's handling of this one caused a journalistic revolution . . . He unearthed evidence and splashed it across page one . . . His competitors were forced to follow suit . . . The circ of Bennett's paper tripled in a month.

The craft has its heroines, too . . . Chattanooga newsgal Nellie Kenyon got that pretty little notch on her typewriter by catching a bank robber, practically alone . . . After local sleuths were stumped—the intrepid Nellie started her own probe . . . She not only uncovered enough evidence to convict him—but his hideout, too . . . Mississippi's Hazel Brannon is down in the books for her amazing newspapering . . . Despite threats, Hazel shattered a huge underworld ring—digging up enough documentation—so that a Grand Jury returned 54 indictments . . . All landing in the State Pen.

Not all the journalistic clue-chasing yarns, however, have a scooper-dooper finale . . . Reporter Lois Thrasher got a job as a maid in a Chicago hotel in an effort to check on a murder suspect . . . She finally was assigned to his room—after several weeks of basement work . . . And then couldn't dig a shred of evidence . . . To make her ordeal tougher (and her story sadder) poor Lois scrubbed dozens of hotel bathrooms on her hands and knees.

When Herbert Bayard Swope was editing the Morning World, gambler Herman Rosenthal was murdered on West 43rd Street, just off Broadway . . . The slaying involved a Police Lieutenant named Becker . . . Influential string-yankers tried to clamp a hush on the matter . . . The newspaper's editorials thundered . . . Swope and his aces worked day and night on atomic exposes—unveiling official corruption . . . He master-minded the case for Dist. Atty. Whitman, who was acclaimed for his handling of it. It elected him Gov. . . . Lt. Becker and the 4 gunmen cooked in The Chair at Sing Sing.

John T. Rogers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch ace, not only solved a series of murders by Kluxers—he also broke up a gang of mobsters with a psychological gimmick . . . Learning that the mob chief was an egomaniac, reporter Rogers baited him by writing several complimentary pieces . . . As a result he gained his confidence—shrewdly pumping him for information that Rogers didn't publish until he had enough to jail them all.

Every member of the gang was convicted and sentenced to life. The ham-mobster, who loved writeups, was hanged.

Then there was the late George Kivel of the N. Y. Daily News . . . The opposition respected his talent . . . They called him "a cop's reporter"—the way showfolks affectionately embrace one as "an actor's actor" . . . When New York detectives went to Syracuse to question Judd Gray, Ruth Snyder's lover (after her husband was slain), Kivel went with them . . . As they grilled Gray the reporter prowled his hotel room . . . Gray seemed to have an air-tight alibi.

"I was in my room here asleep at the time," he calmly said. "I had a 'Don't Disturb' sign on my door" . . . Hotel maids corroborated him . . . Gray even produced a friend with whom he had lunched the day of the killing. After lunch, he said, he took another nap and hadn't left his room in Syracuse . . . The crime took place in Queens Village, Long Island.

Just as the detectives were giving up reporter Kivel handed them the torn stub of a Pullman ticket . . . "I found this," he said, "in the spittoon" . . . It had been used between New York and Syracuse on March 20th, 1927—the day Snyder was slain—at 2 a. m. . . . That cracked the alibi . . . Gray and Mrs. Snyder went to Hell via the Chair.

Gallery Asks Restoration Of $42,000 Cut

National Gallery of Art officials yesterday appealed to a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee to restore a $42,000 cut in the gallery's budget next year because of coming exhibitions.

The Independent Offices Appropriations subcommittee, headed by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), was told the funds cut by the House Appropriations Committee in March are needed to hire eight guards and two laborers to open and maintain 12 new rooms at the gallery to house loan exhibitions.

Senator O'Mahoney said he understood some of the exhibitions not yet publicly announced are "very extraordinary."

David E. Finley, who as director headed the delegation asking restoration of the cut—which would give the gallery a $1,200,000 budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1—said afterward he felt the subcommittee had given them a sympathetic hearing.

Finley said he "did not have a single wall space on which to hang a new picture without taking one down," and said the 12 additional rooms are badly needed for the hanging of the Gulbenkian collection "and some other things that I can't say anything about yet."

The Gulbenkian collection of paintings by Gainsborough, Corot, Rubens, Van Dyck and other masters, is being loaned to the gallery for two years in connection with Washington's sesquicentennial. One of the most important private collections of paintings in Europe, it is the property of C. S. Gulbenkian of Paris and Lisbon, wealthy European oil man, and is coming here from exhibition in London. Opening date of the exhibition has not been set. The ancient Egyptian sculpture section of his collection has been on exhibit at the gallery since last year.

'Cop' Stops Auto With Dead Man At Steering Wheel

Cleveland, June 22 (U.P.).—A traffic patrolman risked his life today to bring a moving automobile under control with a dead man at the wheel.

Officer Peter Noughton said he saw the car pause for a stop light and then start forward with the driver slumped over the steering wheel.

Noughton ran for the car and thrust his head through the window. He then managed to guide the car to the curb, avoiding oncoming traffic, and turned off the ignition.

The driver, Joseph Hlavin, about 55, was pronounced dead at Collinwood Clinic.

Court 'Powders' Song Writer's Purse With $15,000 'Sunshine'

Judge Matthew F. McGuire of District Court yesterday declared Stanley Rochinski, 51, of 1026 Otis st. ne., to be the composer of the onetime hit tune, "Powder Your Face With Sunshine."

The decision may be worth between $10,000 and $15,000 to Rochinski, a World War I veteran and housepainter. The money is held by the Lombardo Music, Inc., of New York, the publishers.

Rochinski sued in District Court to establish his rights to the song after another housepainter named Chester A. Hammond of Elmira, N. Y., claimed he wrote the song. The men were acquainted here in 1948.

Hammond said he composed the piece around 1938 and that Rochester appropriated it in 1949, but Judge McGuire said there was conclusive evidence that in 1948, Rochinski was showing people the song.

According to Rochinski, he wrote the words in 1946 while he was ill in Mount Alto Hospital here. His inspiration, he said, was a nurse who was powdering her face by a sunlit window.

The music was written by a friend and the Lombardo firm further revised the piece, Rochinski said.

'Take It or Leave It'

J. Paar's in Again, And Very Nice, Too

By John Crosby

THREE YEARS AGO, a young former G.I. comic named Jack Paar made quite a splash in radio as the summer replacement for Jack Benny. He possessed an appealing personality, a subtle and original vein of humor and enormous self-confidence. These qualities won him a regular winter show of his own, "The Jack Paar Show," sponsored by Lucky Strike and a three-year contract with RKO to make pictures. For a 27-year-old comedian, the future looked rosy. Then the bottom fell out.

Paar

"I was the beginning of the Benny capital gains arrangement," said Paar, now a rather bitter young man, not nearly so confident as he once was. "Benny had 20 percent of the show, my agent had 10, the advertising agency had 15. I was split up more ways than Poland. The Hooper didn't justify the cost so I was dropped."

THINGS WERE no better at RKO. Paar made one picture and then sat on his hands for three years, getting madder and madder. He couldn't find any work in radio until recently when he took over the emcee chores on "Take It Or Leave It" (NBC-WRC 10 p. m. Sundays) from Eddie Cantor. Not long ago he was asked whether he planned to continue on that ancient quiz show the subtle mockery which had won him general critical praise and a great many awards on his earlier show. The answer was negative and savage.

"I'm never going to do that kind of comedy again," said Paar bitterly. "I want to work. The hell with the awards on my wall. I have a wife and a baby and a house in California. I had a lot of important people on my side. I had my chance and failed. I can't listen to John Crosby or the New Yorker any more. You can't do it if there's nobody to listen to it. The pattern in radio is the same thing every week. I say, do a broad format like 'Take It Or Leave It.' I know it has a mass appeal."

He ruminated a moment, darkly, and then expressed a few forcible and unflattering opinions of reporters in general. He's convinced that a reporter will lambast him in print unless he agrees with the reporter politically and every other way. Writers, he declared, squat in their ivory towers while actors have to struggle for everything they get. And actors are more sensitive than other people. "I don't care," he added. "You can't lose me my 13 weeks with Eversharp" (sponsor of "Take It Or Leave It").

Paar is not entirely happy over the recognition given Groucho Marx for his extemperaneous wit which, he claims, is turned out by three writers and is thoroughly written and rehearsed. "The best things anyone—Fred Allen or anyone else—has done are not extemporaneous. They're written—at 3 in the morning, usually."

IN THIS MOOD and with these attitudes, which seem hardly propitious to relaunch a career in radio, Paar a couple of weeks ago stepped into Cantor's shoes on "Take It Or Leave It," where he is strictly on trial. After 13 weeks, "Take It Or Leave It" will take Paar or leave him. In spite of his fears, he has been a very good emcee indeed.

Paar still has a very engaging personality with a bit of the exuberance of Bob Hope, a bit of the winsome, naive quality of Alan Young. Occasionally, you'll find flashes of the dreamy, satiric and strikingly different comedy which first drew attention to him. Paar can't completely suppress himself no matter how hard he tries.

Eversharp, I think, made a wise choice in Paar. I hope they keep him on beyond the 13 weeks as long as he wants to stay. Whether Eversharp does or doesn't, I find the whole affair a little sad.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

NIGHT clubbing in Washington is always slow in summer. This summer, two of the town's most popular rooms are closing for a month or two in order to redecorate.

This hiatus in night life is brought about by the Statler, which is redoing the Embassy Room, and the Mayflower, which will close the favorite Mayflower Lounge for the same reason.

Decorators from New York are casing the Embassy Room now; color and details haven't been decided on, but it will definitely be "chic." The mood of the present room, with dark fuchsia and abundant mirrors, will be carried over.

The grand opening is slated for September, and the management is hoping either Xavier Cugat or Guy Lombardo, both old-time Embassy Room personnel, will be there to provide the music.

Until July 15, the closing date, an eager young radio star, Abbery Albert, will be on hand. He has more promise than most of the young bands he has the important people behind him. The Music Corps. of America and NBC are giving him a big build-up.

It all started when Albert was playing in a New York night club and NBC decided to pick up his music on the network for one half-hour spot each week. Soon the single half-hour had grown to six half-hour spots. Albert was asked to do a half-hour Treasury Show, and next Mutual decided to pick him up for six half-hour programs weekly, too—a total of 13 weekly coast-to-coast radio shows.

When the Albert band went on the road, NBC began picking it up through local outlets. Three coast-to-coast broadcasts a week is the average now, many of them "remotes" from the Embassy Room.

Albert's style is that of a society orchestra; it features the well known businessman's bounce. He leads with his violins, plays sweet music, and has a nice "clean-cut American boy" rapport with the dancers. Albert's a mere 27 or so.

GI Slayer's Plan to Rob Revealed by Roommate

Police Say Holdup Series Intended by Bolling Man Held In Cabbie's Death

By Alfred E. Lewis and Charles E. Davis, jr.
Post Reporters

Robbery for profit became complicated by murder for Pvt. Gilbert W. Reynolds, 18-year-old Bolling Air Force Base GI, police said last night.

The tall, gangling youth had planned to stage a series of holdups prior to the one in which a cab driver was shot to death on the south end of Bolling early on the morning of May 27, police said.

According to authorities, he had equipped himself for his projected crimes by obtaining a family revolver at his grandparents' home at Sayre, Pa., and by fashioning a homemade blackjack.

Reynolds' 23-year-old roommate verified that Reynolds had planned the holdups to obtain needed cash, police said. The roommate made a statement at police headquarters and was released.

Arraigned for Murder

The long, thin soldier was arraigned yesterday on a murder charge before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Police said he had confessed to the fatal shooting of Gordon C. Brown, jr., 24, a Postoffice Department employe who drove a cab part-time to help pay for the home he had built for his wife and 4-year-old son at 224 Carmody Hills dr., Carmody Hills, Md.

At the brief hearing in the Commissioner's chambers, Reynolds was ordered held without bond for action of the grand jury.

During the hearing, the young GI did not dispute the police version of the slaying.

Commissioner Lawrence reminded Reynolds four times that he could demand a postponement of the hearing if he wished, so that he might have time to obtain the services of an attorney.

"I'd rather get it over with," said Reynolds.

First to testify was Detective Sergt. John L. Sullivan of the homicide squad who was present yesterday at police headquarters when a written statement was obtained from the youth.

Sullivan said this was the substance of the statement:

Reynolds had been living with his grandparents at Sayre, Pa., since he was 18 months old because his parents separated. His aged grandfather has been sick and is in an asylum.

Says He Grew Nervous

He wanted to help his grandmother financially and decided he needed $2000—quick. He made a blackjack.

The morning of the murder he went to the operational tower and hailed a cab and ordered to be driven to the south end of the field. Once there, he struck the driver over the head several times with the blackjack.

When the driver fought back, Reynolds (according to his statement) became nervous, drew his revolver and fired once.

Then he saw the headlights of a car approaching and fled to a spot about 100 yards away. He waited there five minutes, until the car had disappeared, and returned to the cab.

He tried to get Brown's wallet, but the driver continued to struggle. Frightened, he abandoned his attempt to get the money

Capt. Murray H. Chasin of the Air Force Office of Special Investigation, who had been present at police headquarters earlier when Reynolds made his statement, testified that the youth told them he had hidden the .38-caliber revolver in a dresser drawer at the home of his grandmother in Sayre.

The weapon, he added, has been recovered and is now at the FBI laboratory for ballistics tests. Detectives flew to the Pennsylvania city yesterday afternoon to search for the blackjack which Reynolds said he threw in a creek near his grandmother's home.

Fire Destroys Dickey House

The Washington Post

AT GREAT FALLS—A family of six lost their possessions as fire quickly destroyed historic Dickey House at Great Falls, Va., long famed as an inn. Half of the building was burned away before firemen from Forestville and McLean brought the blaze under control. Walter Shifflett and his sister, Dorothy, two of the occupants, inspect the ruins

Family Flees As Fire Ruins Historic Home

An unexplained fire yesterday caused extensive damage to historic Dickey House at Great Falls, Va.—reputed to have been visited by every President from George Washington to Theodore Roosevelt.

About two-thirds of the two-story log structure, occupied for the last 14 years by Mr. and Mrs. David Shiflett, was destroyed by flames. The blaze was discovered shortly after 3 a. m. by Mrs. Shiflett. The Shifletts, three children and a 10-month-old grandson fled to safety.

Fire companies from McLean and Forestville fought for three hours to bring the flames under control. They succeeded in saving a frame wing, built as an addition to the original log house.

All of the family's possessions were destroyed in the blaze, firemen said.

Built about 165 years ago when the Great Falls area was known as Matildaville, the house served for many years as a hostelry for barge tenders on the nearby canal. It later was operated as an inn by the late John Henry Dickey.

During its early days, the inn was famed for its food and hospitality and was a favorite attraction for Presidents and Washington dignitaries, according to residents of the area.

The loss is partially covered by insurance, according to a spokesman for the Potomac Electric and Power Co., which purchased the property early in the century. The utility rented the home to Shiflett, a watchman at the Madeira School.

Dog Torture Ads Arouse D. C. Doctors

Another round in the battle between doctors and antivivisectionists shaped up here yesterday—this one over a radio commercial in buses and streetcars.

The spot announcement, broadcast daily since May 1, urges dog and cat owners to "beware" lest their pets wind up "in vivisection laboratories to suffer untold agony."

An official complaint for the doctors was registered with Capital Transit Co. officials yesterday by Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia.

The protest brought word from Edward D. Merrill, CTC president, that he "understood" the radio ad "is to be discontinued." Norman Reed, program director of Radio Station WWDC, which transmits the program, said he had received no cancellation orders.

Ernest S. Johnson, whose advertising firm represented the Antivivisection Society of the District of Columbia, said he would fight any attempts to take the ad off the air. If the doctors don't like it, he said, "I'll gladly place a commercial for them."

Program Director Reed said the station received a complaint Wednesday from a man who threatened to tell his doctor, tell the hospitals, and tell the newspapers. Reed said the station often gets complaints about Sunday baseball broadcasts, and even calls from anti-Trumanites complaining of news broadcasts quoting the President.

Mrs. Georgia S. Williams, executive secretary of the local antivivisection organization, said last night that if the commercial is "yanked," the society will protest to the Federal Communications Commission and "insist that equally controversial ads, like polio and heart fund appeals, be banned also."

"We certainly have got those vivisectionists on the run," chortled Mrs. Williams.

Smokey to Meet Mate at D. C. Zoo Week From Today

One week from today, at 11 a. m., Smokey, the three-month-old bear cub who was scorched in a New Mexico forest fire, will meet his mate, Gene, a hybrid cub, in ceremonies at the zoo.

Smokey will be flown here from Santa Fe in a Piper Cub. He will arrive at National Airport next Thursday at 4 p. m.

Smokey suffered third-degree burns in a fire in the Lincoln National Forest. He was nursed back to health on pablum and milk mixed with honey.

Tyler Denies Good Friday Murder Guilt

Defendant Takes Stand, Says He Was Home, Asleep When 2 Were Slain

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

William A. Tyler, jr., denied on the District Court witness stand yesterday that he killed two Lansburgh & Bro. watchmen last Good Friday.

Speaking in a low voice, the 18-year-old first-degree murder defendant testified that at the time of the brutal stabbings shortly after midnight April 7, he was sound asleep at his home, 2302 Pomeroy rd. se.

The week-long trial, with Tyler facing the electric chair if convicted, will continue today before Judge Alexander Holtzoff and an eight-woman, four-man jury.

Tyler said that the evening before the two store watchmen, Oliver R. Hess, 57, and James C. Carpenter, 67, were found fatally stabbed, he retired at 8:30 p. m.

Says He Stayed Home

"I spent the rest of the night in bed so far as I know," he said.

"Did you leave your house for any purpose?" he was asked.

"No."

"Did you go to Lansburgh's?"

"No."

"Did you stab Hess or Carpenter?"

"I did not."

"Did you go through the store with intent to rob or for any other purpose."

"I did not."

Tyler then declared that the Government's key witness, Howard Roy, 20, of 1866 Alabama ave. se., lied when he testified that Tyler planned to go to the store for some "easy money."

Tells of Visit to Store

Tyler said that on April 6 he went downtown with Roy and they visited Lansburgh's where Roy sought to buy some clothing.

Tyler quoted Roy as saying at the time, "This might be my next job."

"Do you mean you have some intention of robbing this place?" Tyler testified he asked Roy.

"'Something like that,'" the defendant quoted Roy.

To support Tyler's alibi, his father, mother and brother took the stand. They all testified that Tyler was sleeping in his bed the night of the murder, but were vague when cross-examined as to surrounding dates.

Dentist Refutes Claim

Earlier, Tyler had testified he was beaten into confessing the crime, and his mother, Mrs. Madie Tyler, said that the day after his arrest, May 5, his face and eyes appeared swollen.

In an attempt to support Tyler's claim that police broke one of his teeth, his lawyers put Dr. Odell H. Shumate, District jail dentist, on the stand.

Dr. Shumate testified that on May 25 he extracted one of Tyler's teeth but that decay indicated that a missing portion of the crown might have been lost any time in "many months" before.

Dr. Shumate said there was no evidence that a blow to the face had fractured the tooth.

Man Held for Jury In Arson, Assault

A 37-year-old trucker, accused of beating a Bladensburg woman and setting fire to her home, was held for grand jury action in Hyattsvile Police Court yesterday after waiving preliminary hearing. Bond was set at $3000.

Malcolm Collison, of 5600 Annapolis rd., Bladensburg, allegedly hit Mrs. Thelma Hackenberg, 45, in whose home he lives, with a jack handle during an argument June 15. Police also charged him with causing a fire in the home about two hours after the argument.

Artist's String, Rigger's Knot, Officer's Gum Fish Up Sub-Sidewalk Treasure for Boys

The Washington Post

TREASURE HUNT—Silent, hopeful group watches as Jimmie Randles, 12; Charlie Debord, 12, Jack Shook, former rigger, and Irwin Gootenberg, an artist for The Washington Post, fish for a quarter through a grating in front of The Washington Post. Jimmie and Charlie spotted the coin through the grating and then Shook and Gootenberg lent their talents in retrieving the prize. A piece of string, chewing gum and a metal weight were used in the breath-taking drama. Bystanders helped prepare the chewing gum

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

WHEN A RIGGER, an artist and a policeman spend 30 minutes of a hot June afternoon fishing a silver quarter out of a sidewalk grating for two 12-year-old boys . . . it isn't such a bad old world.

The artist furnished the piece of string.

The rigger furnished his knot-tying skill.

The policeman furnished the piece of gum.

Irwin Gootenberg, 22, an artist for The Post, was on his way to work when he noticed two boys kneeling on the grating peering downward.

FOLLOWING the boys' bulging eyes, Gootenberg saw a shining silver quarter resting at the bottom of the grating.

The boys, Charley Debord, 24 Elm st. ne., and Jimmie Randles, 635 H st. sw., hadn't dropped the quarter. They just happened by.

Gootenberg dashed inside The Post and returned with a piece of string.

He got a metal paperweight from the newsstand next door, tied the string thereto, stuck some rapidly chewed gum on the metal bait—and started fishing.

AT THIS POINT, a rigger, who is a skilled knottier by trade—happened along.

He took one look at Gootenberg's knot and his rigging instinct was aroused.

Policeman Taylor did not disperse the crowd. Quite the contrary.

RIGGER SHOOK applied the gum.

While the crowd held its breath, he lowered the metal weight to the bottom of the grating.

The weight swung, steadied . . . finally, as the crowd and especially the two boys watched tensely, the quarter caught on the gum.

With infinite care Rigger Shook started hoisting . . .

Shook's fingers reached through the grating and with one quick movement grabbed the silver piece.

He handed it to Charley and Jimmie.

The boys were last seen tearing through the crowd. Destination unknown, but there is a drugstore on the corner. It was a hot afternoon.

Chauffeur Held in Berwyn Hit-Run Death; Ten Hurt in Traffic, Six in Head-on Crash

One man was killed in Berwyn, Md., and 10 persons were injured yesterday, 6 of them in a head-on collision on Landover rd. in nearby Maryland.

A man tentatively identified by papers in his pocket as Frank L. Jones, 59, of no known address, was killed by an automobile early yesterday as he was crossing the Baltimore blvd. at Berwyn.

James B. Lee, 23-year-old chauffeur of Baltimore, was arrested shortly afterwards and charged by Maryland State police with hit-run, reckless driving and manslaughter.

Lee was stopped by Laurel town police who noticed that the hood of the car he was driving was smashed in.

Two cars met head-on on the Pennsylvania railroad bridge between Cheverly and Kent Village about 7 p. m. in a crash that demolished both vehicles.

Five of the six occupants of the two cars were admitted to Prince Georges Hospital, including a five-months-old baby who was thrown 30 feet. His skull was fractured.

Everett C. Beach, 31, of 4316 Quarles st. ne., who police said was one of the drivers, was treated for face cuts and released. A companion, Marshall R. DePue, 25, of 409 Newcomb st. ne., was hospitalized for a fractured right arm.

In the other car, both James Marshall Dillon, 15, of 411 69th pl., Seat Pleasant, Md., and the infant, Joseph Lameare, of 1605 D st. se., suffered skull fractures.

Kenneth Lee Patrick, 18, of 406 69th pl., Seat Pleasant, Md., reported as the other driver, suffered a fractured left arm, and the infant's mother, Mrs. Darlene Lemeare, 20, suffered both laceration and shock.

Both drivers were charged with reckless driving, and ordered to appear for a hearing in Hyattsville July 20. Officer Wallace L. Baker, of the Prince Georges force, rendered immediate first aid.

Golfers on the Beaver Dam course, about a half-mile away, reported hearing the impact of the collision.

Six-year-old Robert A. Birgfeld of 9331 Caroline ave., Silver Spring, was critically injured when struck by a car which police said was driven by Harvey C. Simons, 33, of 8107 University ln., Silver Spring.

$119 Million D. C. Budget Approved by Senate Unit

Action Expected Early Next Week; Total $6 Million Over House Figure

A District budget total of 119 million dollars for the fiscal year starting July 1 will be recommended today to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The recommendation has been prepared by a subcommittee headed by Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.).

The 119-million-dollar figure is close to one originally proposed by the District Commissioners. It is about six million dollars more than the House approved.

Might Act Today

Senator Hill said he hopes the printed report outlining the subcommittee's recommendations will be ready this morning so the full Senate Appropriations Committee might act upon it today. If that is done, the Senator said, the District appropriations will probably be taken up by the Senate early next week.

Main increases added by the subcommittee to the House version of the bill were funds to start the East Capitol street bridge over the Anacostia River, to speed up expansion of the District's water supply system, to provide urgently needed sewer improvements, and to provide District payments to private hospitals for care of indigent patients.

Meanwhile, a deficiency appropriation bill containing $7,159,112.94 in District funds was readied yesterday for final congressional clearance.

Year Ends Next Friday

The funds are for the fiscal year that ends next Friday. Of the District total, $6,638,400 covers the cost of municipal pay increases voted last year by Congress.

The bill was approved yesterday by the Senate and sent to conference. Later a joint conference committee revised the measure, approving the Senate amount, which is $168,230 higher than the House had approved.

Bulk of the bill, totaling more than $600,000,000 is for Federal agency deficiencies.

Conference approval returned the bill to the House for clearance, and then the measure will go to the Senate.

Pepco Rebate Ruled Out by PUC Auditor

Potomac Electric Power Co. earned $272,396 above its basic return of 5½ percent last year, but it wasn't enough to allow a rebate to consumers, the Public Utilities Commission was told yesterday.

V. A. McElfresh, chief accountant and auditor for the PUC, reported this to the commission at a hearing held to learn results of Pepco's operations last year under the "modified sliding-scale plan."

The plan went into effect in 1948 to provide a cushion against frequent rate changes. It created a special fund into which the company would put part of its profits above 5½ percent. Pepco would draw from the fund in hard times rather than seek a rate increase. When the fund reached 3 percent of annual operating revenues, part of the profits would go back to consumers instead of into the fund.

After adding $136,198 from last year's profits the fund now stands at $198,162 or .6 percent of operating revenue reported. The fund must increase five-fold before a rebate is made, he stated.

Pepco officials have stated they will seek a rate increase shortly.

Jane Cowl, 65, Dies; Famous as 'Juliet'

Santa Monica, Calif., June 22 (AP).—Jane Cowl, once Broadway's most famous "Juliet," died today of cancer at 65.

One of the most beautiful women of the stage in her era, Miss Cowl had recently scored movie success as a character actress.

She starred in a score or more of Broadway hits and also was the author or coauthor of nine plays. She helped write two of her most famous starring roles—those in "Lilac Time" and "Smilin' Through."

"Within The Law" in 1912 probably was her greatest popular hit, but she always liked "Romeo and Juliet" best.

She played her "Juliet" for a run of 856 nights and matinees, beginning January 24, 1923, a Shakespearean record on Broadway.

She was born in Boston but New York was her home from the time she was 3. She attended Columbia University there.

She was the widow of Adolph Klauber, for many years the drama critic of the New York Times.

To earn money, she wrote a feature story about David Warfield, noted actor. She took it to the Times, sold the story and later married the editor who bought it.

She resisted Hollywood for many years—except fo ra 1917 silent movie—but several years ago she moved out here. She scored a comedy success with Robert Montgomery in "Once More, My Darling." Her latest roles were with Barbara Stanwyck in "No Man of Her Own," the unreleased Bette Davis picture "Story of a Divorce," and "The Secret Fury" with Claudette Colbert.

In her stage career, she appeared in only one play in which she did not have a leading role. That was her first—"Sweet Kitty Bellaire" in 1903. After her success in that one, she was a star for good.

ANOTHER STRIKE

AGAINST THE PUBLIC AND INDUSTRY AND AGRICULTURE SERVED BY 5 WESTERN RAILROADS

President Truman's EMERGENCY BOARD recommends a 40-hour week and a pay increase of 18 cents an hour, or $1.44 a day for switchmen represented by the Switchmen's Union of North America.

• Notwithstanding the tremendous increase in their expenses involved, the Railroads' answer to Board is . . . YES!

Union leaders' answer to Board is . . NO!

In face of Board findings to the contrary, union leaders insist on 48 hours pay for 40 hours work. This would be an average increase of 31 cents an hour, or $2.48 a day. So Union leaders have called a completely unjustified strike on 5 Western railroads, effective June 25.

FIVE WESTERN RAILROADS AFFECTED BY THE JUNE 25 STRIKE

The five railroads affected by this strike, which goes into effect at 6:00 A. M. local time, Sunday, June 25, 1950, are:

Chicago Great Western Railway Company
Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company
The Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Company
Great Northern Railway Company
The Western Pacific Railroad Company

On June 15, an Emergency Board appointed by President Truman under the terms of the Railway Labor Act recommended the railroads grant switchmen a 40-hour week and a wage increase of 18 cents an hour, or $1.44 for an 8-hour day.

Despite the added financial burden involved, the railroads are ready to accept these recommendations, as they have always accepted Emergency Board recommendations on national issues.

But the leaders of the Switchmen's Union refuse to accept! They demand an average increase of 31 CENTS AN HOUR OR $2.48 A DAY—although their present earnings are substantially higher than those of workers in other industries!

Board Says Demands Unjustified

In its report, the Board declared this demand unjustified by all the evidence presented. It also pointed out that it would give the switchmen an unfair pay advantage over other groups of railroad employes, and would add too great a burden to railroad costs.

Here is another case of a railroad union flouting the findings of an Emergency Board—another case of calling a crippling strike in an outrageous and reckless attempt to force demands which the Board clearly labels as unjustified!

Leaders of the Switchmen's Union are calling this strike in defiance of the Board—in defiance of the facts—and at the expense of the public!

In its report on this case, the Board made this statement:

"The railroad industry, the Board believes, needs above all else a period of relative stability to adjust and adapt itself to present competitive post-war conditions."

Despite this warning, the leaders of the Switchmen's Union are upsetting the apple-cart—forcing a completely unjustified strike against everybody who uses the railroads.

It is time to put an end to such un-American tactics!

The Answer to a Raw Attempt At Dictatorship Is "No!"

In the interest of the public who depend on the railroads every day, there can be only one answer to this outrageous and dictatorial action by the leaders of the Switchmen's Union. And that answer is—"NO!"

H. F. Buchholz Dies, Spurned U. S. Leave

Herman F. Buchholz, 68, who gave the Government more than eight years of working time by refusing leave and by working overtime without pay, died yesterday shortly after reporting for work at the Commerce Department.

Mr. Buchholz

An accountant in the Maritime Administration's finance office, he once won an award for turning back 568 days and three hours' annual leave.

Mr. Buchholz was found at 9 a.m. in a fourth-floor washroom. He apparently had suffered a heart attack. A physician was summoned and pronounced him dead.

He had averaged slightly more than one day off each year when he was declared one of five winners in the 1946 contest sponsored by The Washington Post after a congressman said Federal workers were "shirkers."

At that time, Mr. Buchholz had taken only 28 days and 5 hours leave in 26½ years of work. Furthermore, he had put in 12,324 hours of voluntary overtime.

In all he had forfeited annual and sick leave and had put in unpaid overtime that totaled up to more than eight full years of 260 days each.

Mr. Buchholz said then that he swore off vacations before he came to the Government.

"Every time I took a vacation," he said, "it cost me plenty."

Since 1946, Mr. Buchholz had turned back additional leave to bring the total to more than 600 days.

Born March 22, 1882, in Atlanta, Ga., Mr. Buchholz started to work for the Government in Houston, Tex., on January 5, 1920, as a resident auditor for the Merchant Fleet Corporation of the U. S. Shipping Board. Subsequently he was transferred to New Orleans and then to Washington.

Mr. Buchholz is survived by his wife, of the home address, 2721 South Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington.

Other survivors include a brother, Dr. Otto Buchholz, who teaches in the Presbyterian Seminary at Richmond, Va., and a sister, Mrs. William F. Weymouth, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Services will be at 2 p. m. Saturday in Westminster Presbyterian Church, Beverly Hills, Alexandria. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

T. H. Dougherty Dies; Lived Here Many Years

Mr. Dougherty lived in Washington from 1918, when he joined the hardware firm, until the death of his wife in January, 1949, when he moved to Hinsdale. He was a native of Monticello, N. Y.

He and Mrs. Dougherty celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary in 1945 at their home, here, 3726 Upton st. nw.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Douglas Greenhill of Hinsdale, Ill. A sister-in-law, Mrs. Leile W. Marshall, lives at 3703 Bangor st. se.

Interment will be in Price County, Wisc.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DETROIT, JUNE 22.—Tagging some of the bases:

Another thing about George Kell, the American League batting champion; he writes his own stuff. Kell authors a thrice-weekly and avidly-read baseball article for the Detroit Free Press without benefit of a ghost writer.

Thus does this bureau cheerfully bow its neck for its hasty assumption a couple of weeks back that colleague Kell's stuff was being spooked a la Ralph Kiner's and Ted Williams', who also write for the papers.

POVICH

Nice guy Kell took the fans behind the scenes the other day in his "Kell Tells" column to enlighten them about Ted Williams, who sometimes gets a bad press. Kell was telling about the day in Florida last spring when cameramen asked him to walk across the field and pose with Williams, the man he had beaten out for the batting title by a fraction of a point.

"After I was through hitting, I walked to the Boston dugout for the picture they wanted," relates Kell. "When I got there, Williams said 'hell, Georgie, I should have gone across the field to pose with you. You're the champ, not I.'"

MANAGER RED ROLFE of the Tigers is a Kell fan. He was saying so yesterday, after Sandalio Consuegra checked Kell's 20-game hitting streak by holding him hitless.

"How about Kell's last time at bat?" said Rolfe. "We were out of the game, eight runs behind, two out, nobody on, and that Cuban had three balls and one strike on Georgie. The next pitch was bound to be the sucker pitch, the one that would give Kell his hit, but he laid off it to try to get on base and finally walked."

Speaking of that rarity, the 20-game winner, Manager Zach Taylor of the Browns has one, and it's only late June. It can be identified as his whole St. Louis team, which won its twentieth game day before yesterday, in 54 starts.

And when Joe Di Maggio got the 2000th hit of his career the other day, you could properly say, and literally, that "Di Mag is hitting a ton."

BECAUSE IT WAS Tony Penna, of all people, who put the blast on Ben Hogan for not appearing in the PGA championship, even as an honorary referee, the tirade may have special significance. Penna and Hogan work for the same golf manufacturers, the McGregor Co., in which Penna is a big wheel. It could be that Hogan is finished with his sponsors.

The impending sale of the Athletics by Connie Mack, slated for next winter, could cost the Tigers the 1950 pennant, if the race is close. Now it is admitted in Detroit that Mack was ready to sell the Tigers First Baseman Ferris Fain before the June 15 trading deadline, and then suddenly called it off on the advice of persons who were bidding for the club.

First base has been the chief weakness of the Tigers for several years, and they were prepared to go high for Fain after Mack indicated he would sell. Asked how much the Tigers were going to give, one club official today commented: "Oh, about half of Briggs Stadium, I guess."

DAN TOPPING and George Weiss, who boss the Yankees, reacted in a novel way when New York baseball writers criticized their six-player deal with the Browns in which they received only Joe Ostrowski and Tom Ferrick for four players and cash to the amount of $50,000.

Weary of the criticism in the press, the Yankees bosses turned on their mimeograph machine and issued statements criticizing the baseball writers for criticizing the deal. Now everybody is mad at each other.

Bucky Harris is unruffled by the fact that Dick Weik, traded to Cleveland for Mickey Vernon, has pitched two splendid relief shifts for the Indians. "He couldn't win for us," said Harris, "so that was all I was interested in."

When an official of the Tigers expressed surprise that Harris parted with such a prospect as Weik, despite his wildness, Harris stopped him short with: "You let Lou Kretlow go to the Browns for good reasons. Well, Weik was our Kretlow."

Mt. Vernon High Eliminated

Tuscaloosa, Ala., June 22 (AP).—Mount Vernon High of Alexandria, Va., was defeated, 3-1, by Chattanooga in the opening game of the Southeastern High School baseball tournament here today.

Snead Sails In With 68 For Lowest PGA Score

Columbus, Ohio, June 22 (AP).—Samuel Jackson Snead, defending champ and big money man, wound up the 36-hole qualifying for the $40,000 PGA mid-century tournament with a fancy flourish today.

The White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., stylist carved out a 32-36—68; the only under-70 score of the two-day medal test; finished two strokes ahead of his nearest foe with 140 four under par; became the first defending champion to win the medal since Walter Hagen did it in 1926, and—not incidentally, to Sam at least—picked up a $250 purse.

Worsham Has 145 And Fazio 147

Washington's entries in the PGA qualified well up among the leaders. Lew Worsham had a 145 after he added a one-below-par 71 yesterday to his 74 of Wednesday. George Fazio, professional at Woodmont Country Club, had a one-over-par 73 which added to his 74, gave him 147.

Two strokes back of Snead, at 142 after a fancy 35—35—70 today, came 39-year-old Al Brosch og Garden City, N. Y. At even par 144 were Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., who has piled up $8100 in purses this month and is rated even with Snead as a favorite to win the PGA crown, and Charley Bassler of Catonsville, Md.

The 64 survivors meet on an 18-hole man-to-man basis in tomorrow's pair of rounds, and the 16 survivors get into 36-hole matches starting Saturday. The big windup comes next Tuesday.

Qualifying scores ranged all the way from Snead's 140, highest since the same score was posted in 1940 by Dick Metz, to 153—at which spot seven gladiators fought it out for four places in the match play bracket.

Miller Wins 6th for Phils

Philadelphia, June 22 (AP).—Four home runs and a triple play carried Rookie Bob Miller to his sixth pitching victory without a defeat today as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-4.

Del Ennis, Willie Jones, Andy Seminick and Bill Nicholson hit the Phil homers. Ralph Kiner stayed one ahead of Ennis with his fifteenth of the year. Miller started the triple play in the seventh to cut short a Pirate rally.

Gus Bell hit a grounder to him with Beard on third and Schenz on first. Miller caught Schenz at second and Hamner doubled Bell. First-sacker Eddie Waitkus then threw to Catcher Seminick to catch Beard

Jansen, Koslo Drop Cards to 3d, 3-0, 5-0

New York, June 22 (AP).—Right-hander Larry Jansen and Southpaw Dave Koslo each hurled shutouts today as the New York Giants swept a double-header from the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-0 and 5-0.

Jansen extended his consecutive scoreless skein to 29 innings with a six-hitter in the opener. Koslo limited the Redbirds to only two hits in the nightcap. The double defeat dropped the Cards into third place, a half game behind the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers and 4 percentage points behind the second-place Philadelphia Phillies.

Cass Michaels, despite his crutches, is staying with the club to take treatments from Trainer Doc Lentz for his sprained left ankle . . . Irv Noren's hitting has picked up spectacularly since he got off first base and returned to the happiness of his center field job . . . Griff Welcomes Gabe Murphy Into Nats Organization

Gabe Murphy officially became a major partner of Clark Griffith, president of the Nats yesterday.

The deal in which Murphy purchased 7881 shares of stock from John Jachym was completed in New York. The amount of money involved was not disclosed but Jachym paid $550,000 for the stock six months ago.

Griffith hailed Murphy's entry into the club. He said in a statement:

"He assured me that he was coming in on a friendly basis and would support the present management of the club to the fullest extent."

Griffith said a special meeting of the board would be held and Murphy would be elected second vice president and a member of the board until the annual stockholders' meeting next January. Permanent officers would be named then.

Track's Big Names Head Field of 600

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The eyes of the track world turn to Byrd Stadium this afternoon where, as 1 o'clock, the meet of the year—the National Amateur Athletic Union championships—begins a two-day stand.

Nearly 600 of America's greatest athletes, including 10 national collegiate champions crowned at University of Minnesota last week, are poised.

They'll be shooting for berths on Yankee teams which will travel to Europe, and Africa next month and to Buenos Aires for the Pan-American Olympics in the winter.

It's the first time that the Nation's Capital has been host to the national championships since 1890 when the third such meet was staged on Roosevelt Island, then known as Analostan, in the Potomac.

Nineteen so-called junior and two senior events are on today's agenda, with 21 senior events tomorrow.

Former Nats Entire Show As Chisox Go On Winning

Chicago, June 22 (AP).—Pitcher Ray Scarborough and First Baseman Eddie Robinson, two former Washington Senators, were the entire show as the Chicago White Sox hung a 4-2 kayo on the Boston Red Sox today.

Scarborough gained his seventh win of the season, fourth for Chicago, via a four-hitter as Robinson drove in all four of the White Sox runs with his No. 5 homer in the first inning and an eighth-round single.

Chicago has won 10 of its last 12 games.

McCarthy Leaves Team For 'Long Rest'

Buffalo, N. Y., June 22.—Ailing Joe McCarthy, 63-year-old Boston Red Sox manager who left the team in Chicago to return to his home for a "long rest," was greeted enthusiastically here by his pet terrier.

The dog lapped his face bringing a grin to the grim McCarthy face. Marse Joe smiled, "At least somebody loves me, anyhow." Red Sox officials insisted that McCarthy merely was sick, that there was no thought of his resignation. Date for his return was reported "indefinite."

Tribe Homers Crush Yanks

Cleveland, June 22 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians crashed five home runs off Lefty Joe Ostrowski today to defeat the New York Yankees, 6-2, in the rubber game of the three-game series.

All but one of the runs made by both teams were driven in by home runs. None of the seven homers came with a man on base. Jim Hegan and Luke Easter each socked two for the winners. Ray Boone got the other. Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Mize belted the round trippers for the two New York runs off Bob Feller.

AT DELAWARE

DEAR FOLKS:

Steeplechase Jockey Joe Snyder couldn't tell a lie. In Wednesday's jumping race, Snyder had a long lead with The Mast when the horse appeared to bolt off the course—at least almost everybody watching agreed that was the case. However, yesterday, Snyder informed the stewards that it was his fault and not that of the horse. The boy simply took the wrong route which is easy, as I have pointed out, what with a maze of different jumping courses in the infield. There's a half-mile jockey who once rode jumpers who told me that in a 5-mile hunt race in Pennsylvania one season he was astride a horse that was hours the best but finished second. "I could have gone to the front any time," he said, "but I had to let one of the local boys set the pace so I could follow him."—BILL.

There's a Golf Ball that Fits Your Swing

● Which type golfer are you—hitter or swinger? For years club makers have furnished shafts of different flexibility to meet the needs of each. Now—for the first time—Pros in this district are offering golf balls especially tailored for each type of player.

For the power hitter, they're recommending the Sweet Shot—an ultra-high compression ball with exclusive super-charged liquid center. Hitters say it's the longest ball they've ever used.

For the smooth-stroking swinger, they suggest the Wonderball. Built with a new, thin-walled hydrostatic center, it contains more than 10 times the usual amount of power-transmitting liquid. It is the most sensitive ball built. Instant in response to stroking and lightning-like getaway. It permits unusual accuracy and control on approach shots and in putting—the places where games are won.

Both the Sweet Shot and the Wonderball have long-lasting, vulcanized cured covers and are wound with the new, exclusive F-239 vita-life thread which retains its bounce almost indefinitely. These golf balls can be purchased only at Pro Shops. Ask your Pro which of these balls is best for your game. The Worthington Ball Company, Elyria, Ohio. Since 1904, the world's largest exclusive golf ball maker.

A Four-Day Holiday

Speed Boaters Looking Ahead To Independence Weekend

By Happy Walker

EXCEPT FOR the flying pancake outboarders, area wide power boating takes a brief respite this weekend. Coming up is the usual event-packed Independence Day weekend—a four day holiday this year.

Outboard speed drivers head south to Richmond, Va., on Sunday when the Virginia Power Boat Association plays host to the east coast greats in the miniature speed boat world.

The Virginians will stage their red, white and blue classic on James River above Bosher's Dam, rated as one of the Nation's top speed courses by veteran drivers. The meet, scheduling 10 outboard stanzas gets under way at 1:00 p. m.

Washington's Ike Hale, Jimmy Baden, Dick Bowers, Dean Worcester and Hudson Moses are expected to be on hand to try and better their last year's performance in which a couple of third and fourth places were their only rewards.

ON THE NATIONAL SCENE, George Washington's vaunted sailing club skippers finished in the money at the National Intercollegiate championships at Newport Beach, Calif., this week.

Sparked by George Collins, who took third place, and Bob Harwood, who managed a seventh place in the individual high point scoring, the Buff and Blue sailors amassed 381 points for third place against a star-studded collegiate field.

Yale, last year's victors, barely eked out a repeat win this year as California came on in the closing events to trail the Bulldog skippers by only one point, 402 points to Yale's 403. Joe Manetti, Yale's stellar skipper, led the individual scoring honors with 217 points.

West Virginia Bass Season Open, Should Be One of Best

THE BASS SEASON, which opened in West Virginia on last Saturday, should be a humdinger, says E. A. Seaman of the Commission's Fish Management Division. It is freely predicted that the 1950 season should be a whopper because a heavy spawn of minnows and high streams have contributed to the growth of the bass.

Seaman said that the best streams would be the Greenbrier River, New River, the Ohio River, the South Branch River, Middle Island Creek, Elk River and Little Kanawha River. The eason will close on March 31. The regulations—anglers may take 8 bass a day or 80 for the season, with the minimum length of a legal catch placed at 9 inches.

Virginia's top game fish, the black bass, also became legal sport again with the opening of the season Tuesday. The Old Dominion's reguations this year set the bag limit at 8 per day and 150 a season with the size limit at 10 inches.

Weekend Suggestions:

BLUEFISH—Ocean City is the present hot spot for the blues. Average size is 2½ pounds.

HARDHEADS—The "Gooses" was a flop last weekend. This weekend should be different. Hot weather will help.

ROCKFISH—Eastern Bay looks like the spot. Plenty of live surface bait in this area. Trolling good but chumming gets the best results.

WHITE PERCH—Holland Point area should be the right location. You can catch 'em with worms but the chummers do better.

12-Year-Old Wins Rich Georgetown

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Delaware Park, June 22.—Kent Miller's Elkridge, most popular gelding since Exterminator, became the first American steeplechase horse to win $200,000 here today. The 12-year-old, comparable to 50 years in humans, topped the two hundred grand mark the hard way.

Elkridge, in a whipping, driving finish was up in the final strides to win by a half length in the $10,000 added Georgetown Steeplechase Handicap. He wrestled his victory from Mrs. Esther duPont Weir's Darjeerling, a 7-year-old and the favorite. Two lengths back came the 8-year-old Genancoke, owned by the Rokeby Stables.

By picking up $8,800 for his triumph, Elkridge ran his ten-year earnings to $206,390, a total, anyone connected with racing will tell you, more sensational than the near-a-million earned by Culumet's Citation in flat racing.

Unlike Citation who ran up the bulk of his earnings in the triple crown—Derby, Preakness, Belmont—Elkridge's largest purse of his career was $21,425 garnered in the Grand National at Belmont Park.

The victory for the Maryland-bred veteran was his 29th. He also has tossed in 16 seconds and 11 thirds during his long career. Elkridge was bred by Joseph F. Flanagan, at present a steward here, and was sold to Kent Miller of Camden, S. C., before his turf career began.

Local Realty Holding Firm To Liquidate

by S. Oliver Goodman

The stormy 27-year career of the Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty Corp. of Washington is nearing an end.

Following sale of its last remaining property, the 196-apartment building at 4801 Connecticut ave., Board Chairman Ralph D. Quinter yesterday announced the realty holding firm will be liquidated.

Earlier this year, the firm disposed of the 186-room Brighton Hotel at California st. and Connecticut ave.

Organized in 1923, Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty's history mirrors the sharp ups and downs of the past three decades. At its peak, the firm owned 56 houses, 14 apartment buildings and some stores and warehouses.

The stockholders, some 500 of them, have ridden the boom of the 20s, suffered during the depression of the 30s and enjoyed the soaring realty values of the 40s.

Originally offered at $25 a share, the firm's common stock sank as low as $1 a share in the mid-1930s. Latest bid price over the counter was $40 a share. To protect shareholders pending liquidation, a local committee of the National Association of Securities Dealers decided this week to remove the common stock from the quotation list.

Quinter estimated yesterday that the first liquidation disbursement will approximate $45 a share and will be made sometime in August. Any additional payment will be delayed until settlement of complex tax questions, he said.

Currently, the holding firm has 22,235 common shares outstanding. The Class A stock was redeemed on March 12, 1946, at $5 a share and the 5 percent preferred stock was redeemed on December 28, 1945, at $10.50 a share plus accumulated dividends of $1.95 a share. The $500,000 balance of first mortgage bonds was retired this year.

DIVIDENDS: Bank of Bowie in nearby Maryland has declared an extra dividend of 1 percent in addition to regular semiannual dividend of 2 per cent, payable June 30/June 26. President James P. Casbarian added that $5000 has been transferred from undivided profits to surplus, making total capital and surplus of $100,000 . . . National Union Fire Insurance Co., Washington, has voted a semiannual dividend of 50 cents a share, payable June 30/June 20.

ODD LOTS: This week's auto output is estimated at 198,677 cars and trucks vs. 195,892 last week . . . Galvanized steel pipe prices went up 36 a ton yesterday in Pittsburgh . . . Life magazine will increase advertising rates 4 percent, effective April 2, 1951, offsetting a 3 percent cut last year . . . A quick sale of $9,468,000 of common stock paved the way yesterday for merger of Sunray Oil Corp. and Barnsdall Oil Co. . . . Nash Motors dealers today will display a new all-steel station wagon on the Rambler line . . . Lily-Tulip Corp. declared a 75 percent stock dividend, payable July 12/June 30 . . . Mack Trucks, Inc., yesterday celebrated its fiftieth anniversary and drove a 1906 truck through the streets of Allentown, Pa., with bulb-type horn a-sounding.

SECOND UNIT: Potomac Electric Power Co. has placed in operation the second 80,000-kilowatt turbo-generator at its new Potomac River Power Plant at Alexandria. President Alfred G. Neal announced yesterday. This addition brings the plant's generating capacity to 160,000 kilowatts and boosts total capacity of Pepco's three plants to 665,000 kilowatts. Neal said that during the past 4½ years the utility has spent 60 million dollars on expansion and improvements, with an additional outlay of 30 million dollars planned in the next 2½ years.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Mawry F. Marcus announced yesterday he will retire June 30 as vice president and general merchandise manager of the L. Frank Co., F st. women's apparel store. Marcus served as chairman of the women's wear division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. He plans an extensive trip to Europe and then he's going to "try to learn the art of relaxed living" . . . Melvin C. Harris will become general manager of the Eastern Stainless Steel Corp., Baltimore, on July 1 . . . Clarence E. Wolfinger of Philadelphia is the new president of the National Retail Credit Association

NEW OFFICERS: Roger L. Baldwin of Northwestern Mutual was elected president of the Washington Life Insurance Trust Council for the coming year. Other new officers are: Bernard L. Amiss, Washington Loan & Trust Co., vice president; H. Cochran Fisher, Aetna Life, treasurer, and William V. Simmons, Liberty National Bank, secretary. Joseph L. Whyte, American Security & Trust Co., was elected to the executive committee.

OPTIMISTIC: The Pennsylvania Railroad, in one of its most optimistic financial statements, reported that it had moved more freight business in the last three weeks than at any time since the middle of December, 1948. President Walter S. Franklin said "freight movement during the present week is the largest in any single week since that time" (December, 1948) . . . This is very gratifying in view of the serious loss of traffic in May due to the firemen's strike. Not only is the Pennsylvania Railroad's freight movement continuing in the volume indicated but gross ton miles per train hour, one of the significant indexes of efficiency, are the highest on record.

'Short Course' Is Short Cut to Happy Homemaking

By Nicha Souré

AT ONE time her husband called them "The Homebreakers Clubs."

Now Mrs. William Robie's husband is happy and proud that his wife is an active member of "The Homemakers' Club."

As a homemaker, Kathleen Robie is attending the 24th annual rural women's short course at the University of Maryland this week. Actively engaged in her homemakers' club at Indian Head, Md., her home town, she started attending the short course 11 years ago.

Kathleen Robie readily admits that she wasn't too interested in nutrition courses in high school. After she was married, she continued to work for a while so the art of cooking and running a house were still in the distant future for her.

When her daughter, Eileen, now 13, was born, Mrs. Robie had to assume the duties of a mother and a housewife at the same time. "I couldn't have done it," she says, "without the help of the homemakers' club back home and the instruction I received at the short course at the University of Maryland."

Few of the 1200 women now studying at the Maryland University campus could afford the luxury of four years out of their lives for a degree in home economics. But these women of Maryland are interested in knowing the nutritional values of food, how to stretch the household budget—and more attractive ways of arranging roses in a vase.

In the week-long short course, the university's extension program crams into a brief span a wide variety of classes. Whether it's fixing a salad that tempts, painting in oil and water colors, learning the correct accessories for costumes or studying the basic rudiments of poise, voice and diction, the short course has a class in it.

Studied Nutrition, Sewing, Pottery

DURING the six years that Kathleen has been attending the short course, she has studied nutritious and appetizing ways of serving food, how to sew for herself and her family, how to hook rugs and how to make pottery (she has her own kiln). The "freshmen" are given basic instruction in the household arts while the five-years-and-over group is given "refresher" lectures and allowed to advance to more varied fields.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Robie's group participated in the Homemakers' Town Meeting on the subject of "What Is the Homemaker's Responsibility to Good Government?" Yesterday they were given tips on what books to read, followed by a class on the relief program in Europe.

Kathleen dropped in on the "Vegetables with a Flavor" class yesterday to see some of her friends and added a new recipe to her collection. The cooking instructor was showing the women how to prepare cabbage with caraway seed. The recipe is:

CABBAGE WITH CARAWAY SEED

2 pounds cabbage 1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon caraway seed
salt, sugar, vinegar to taste

Shred cabbage. Melt butter in saucepan, add cabbage and caraway seed. Cover and simmer over low flame about 25 minutes. If cabbage seems dry, add 1 teaspoon of water at a time. When done remove from flame and season with salt, sugar, and vinegar to taste. Approximately one half teaspoon salt, and one teaspoon each of sugar and vinegar. Serves six.

Tough Problem, They Solved It

HOW IMPORTANT is the short course to Mrs. Robie? She hasn't missed a session in the past 11 years, except during wartime when the course was suspended. Her husband and her mother, Mrs. A. P. Lynch, take care of her three children. Eileen, 11-year-old Nancy Lee, and 1-year-old Billy, while she attends classes.

But last year Mrs. Robie was faced with a problem. She would be homesick for her 3-month-old baby if she attended short course, but she didn't want to miss a session.

Her hubby took care of that situation in the simplest way. Mrs. Robie went to short course and her husband drove the 60-some miles from Indian Head with the baby every single night.

You would have to find out from other women attending the short course that Mrs. Robie had been chosen queen of the day yesterday to act as Miss International Good Will at the international day ceremonies. From others you would learn that she is secretary of a 13,000-member organization, the Maryland State Council of Homemakers' Clubs and that she is president of the Charles County Short Course Club.

But she will tell you herself about her year-old son, Billy, who is the only one of her children not slated to be a short course student. She tells of the day she bought a pair of love birds and placed them in Billy's room on hearing that the birds would learn to talk if words were repeated to them often enough. With high hopes that the birds would be saying "Mama" and "Dada" before long, she walked into the room and heard Billy saying, instead, "Cheep, Cheep."

Home Runs Better, Thanks to Course

ALTHOUGH her husband might have called them the "homebreakers" clubs at one time, he long ago realized that his home was running smoother, that he received better-prepared meals and that his wife was saving money in the process.

Kathleen Robie makes most of her own clothes and the clothes of her girls as a result of the basic instruction she received in short course. During the Tuesday fashion show of the two best garments in each of Maryland's counties, Mrs. Robie modeled a lavender sun-dress and bolero she had made.

"It was hard work trying to get it just right," she said. "I had the lavender material for the dress and I had to dye the lace trimming around the bolero five times before I got the right shade."

When Kathleen Robie was married, she knew nothing about running a house or cooking. From her local homemakers' club and the precedent set by her mother, Mrs. A. P. Lynch, of attending short course, Mrs. Robie has managed well.

Eighteen years ago Mrs. Lynch attended her first short course. Today her identical twin daughters, Kathleen and Mrs. Walter Moon, are both attending short course.

It won't be long until Carol, Mrs. Moon's daughter, and Kathleen's Nancy Lee and Eileen will pack their bedding and summer cottons and head for the University of Maryland's short course. They'll be the third generation of a Maryland family which takes one week out of the year to learn how to live well the other 51.

A LETTER from home is always welcome and Mrs. William Robie (left) shares a letter from her mother with her identical twin, Mrs. Walter Moon. Mrs. Robie and Mrs. Moon are attending the twenty-fourth annual Rural Women's Short Course. Mrs. Moon's daughter and Mrs. Robie's children are being cared for by their mother

FROM the "vegetables with a flavor" class at the University of Maryland yesterday, Mrs. Robie added another recipe to her collection. She samples a bite of cabbage which was used later to make cabbage with caraway seed

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mother Wonders If It Were Wise or Wasteful To Give Daughter Two More Years in College; Girl Is Less Considerate Recently, She Says

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband was much opposed to our daughter's going away to college, but I thought the experience would broaden her outlook and give her poise, and so I persuaded him to make it possible.

Like all girls nowadays, Laura has changing views about what she will do after college; but at present she thinks she may study another two years. I feel she should be ready by now to enter the business field, as college has been a great expense for her father.

He says he wants whatever is best for her happiness, and so do I, of course, but I am wondering if more college is best, as she has changed a lot in being away. She has become very self centered, whereas she was very thoughtful of others before.

She Appreciates Dad's Struggle

She looks ahead to getting a job and living entirely on her own in another town, after leaving college. She is very insistent that she will see that we are taken care of, which is silly, as we don't need money from her now; and we tell her that she owes us nothing, inasmuch as we wanted to send her to college. Still she says she wants to repay her father something for his sacrifices, which is very praiseworthy of her; but otherwise she thinks of herself first, last and always.

Do you think we should, or should not, let her have two more years in college? If she really wants them, she will probably find a way somehow, unless we definitely put our foot down. Then she would have to stop, as she has no means of support but us. However, we'd feel very unhappy if we took that stand and I never want Laura to feel dependent on us.

It is so hard to know when to stand firm and when to yield when one's feelings are involved; and we do want to steer the right course. I don't make myself very clear, I'm afraid; but I begin to understand what other mothers mean when they say they are so glad their daughter is married and settled down. A discussion of the problem will help many parents besides us, I am sure; so please answer soon. C. S.

Mother's Mind Seems Confused

DEAR C. S.: Your letter, here condensed, reflects great confusion on your part, as if you don't know what to think, nor what directions to call, nor even what the problem is, precisely, at this point in your management of Laura's affairs.

Maybe it's true that you never want her to feel brokenly dependent upon parental support, but nevertheless your recital indicates that you tend unconsciously to hinder and discourage her attempts to think for herself, and make plans and carry them out. This type of exercise is probably the best preparation for life that a parent can make available to a child; yet I judge that your tremendously supervisory treatment of Laura has denied her that experience in the family.

You say Laura has changed a lot in going away to school, and you imply that it's not for the better, inasmuch as you find her very self centered now, in contrast to her formerly "very thoughtful" behavior. I take this to mean she doesn't suit her actions almost entirely to others' ideas, advices, convenience, etc., nowadays; or perhaps the core of the matter is that she no longer treats your opinions as gospel.

Girl's Trying To Find Herself

In short, I gather she is trying to become a self governing individual, an authority of sorts in her own right, as all must do en route to maturity. And although she may be doing it rather badly, like a green bicyclist riding down bystanders, at least one should respect her desire to learn to steer herself. And if college has somewhat weaned her from drawing full guidance from you, it has done her no disservice.

If you don't need financial help from Laura now, and if the family can afford to give her additional education without punitive drain to her father's health or security savings, why haggle against her desire to continue in school? Of course if she is an indifferent student, who devotes herself to frivolity instead of study, thus wasting tuition expenditure, you'd have sound cause to challenge her plea for more schooling. But apparently that's not the story.

In general I think it is healthy profitable family policy, that pays increasing dividends in character construction over the years, to allow one's children considerable "say" in their affairs, especially as they reach high school and college age. And provided that the parents are in themselves the sort of persons that children may safely copy. If the parents quietly exemplify common sense, fair play and productive performance, ordinarily their progeny follow suit at individual pace. M. H.

Convention Set To Open June 24

Kappa Kappa Gamma, women's national college fraternity now in its eighteenth year, will open its thirty-eighth biennial convention Saturday, June 24, at the Manoir Richelieu, Murray Bay, Canada.

More than 600 members will attend from 82 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada, and from more than 300 alumnae groups in 44 States, four Canadian provinces, Honolulu and London, will attend the week-long sessions. Convention theme is "Fraternity Members Today — Community Leaders Tomorrow."

Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar College, and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, will be the keynote speaker. Harriet Ford Griswold of Boston, author of "I Had Polio" and wife of Harvard's Dean Erwin N. Griswold, will also address the convention.

Foreign fellowship awards will be announced during the convention sessions. Named in honor of Dean Virginia C. Ask Anne

Out of the Gift Horse's Mouth Comes This Recipe for Cashew Nut Confection, Filipino Style

DEAR ANNE:

Can cashew nuts be substituted for almonds or other nuts in recipes? A friend recently brought me a large box of them and I have been wondering.

W. G. N., Washington.

I wouldn't exactly say they could be "substituted" for almonds or other nuts, since the flavor is slightly different, but they can be used in many recipes which simply call for "nuts."

I have a recipe especially calling for cashew nuts which you might enjoy. It was given me by Mrs. Dolores S. Fajardo, a recent visitor in Washington from Manila, Philippine Islands. She has a catering school there and is visiting this country to collect American recipes and also to study our meat-packing methods. Her delicious cashew dessert was served at a dinner which she helped plan here in honor of Mrs. Manuel Roxas, widow of the former Philippine president. The recipe is as follows:

CASHEW DESSERT

Crust

5 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
1½ cups ground cashew nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat whites stiff, but not dry. Add sugar. Fold in nuts. Bake in four 9-inch cake pans, the batter spread out on the bottom of pans. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) until brown and crisp.

Filling

1½ cups sugar
½ cup water
1½ cups butter, creamed
4 tablespoons strong coffee

Beat egg yolks thick and lemon-colored. Cook water and sugar until it spins a thread. Pour on egg yolks gradually, beating constantly. Let cool. Add butter and coffee. Beat well. Spread on the layers, putting them together with the filling. Place in refrigerator until serving in very small slices.

DEAR ANNE:

I am very anxious to obtain a recipe for "Crab Ravigotti" but have been unable to locate it in any of our recipe books. Could you publish this in your column?

G. L., Washington.

Awfully sorry, but I haven't one, either. Can you help, readers?

DEAR ANNE:

Will you suggest several games to be played at an indoor party for 8-year-olds —something in addition to "Musical Chairs?"

N. D. N., Middleburg, Va.

How about "Policeman and Thief?" Many youngsters this age (of the masculine persuasion, anyway) dream of being policemen, so this should appeal to them.

One player is chosen for policeman, another for thief. The others form three or four parallel lines, standing just far enough apart so that by turning in either direction they can clasp the hands of the player on either side of them. The players join hands across ranks to form "streets" and join hands along the lines to form "alleys." The policeman chases the thief while one of the players in the lines who has been chosen leader calls the turns by saying "right face" or "left face."

The faster the "streets" are changed into "alleys" and back, the more fun the game becomes, for neither policeman nor thief can break through the lines. When the thief is caught, two other players are chosen to be the next policeman and thief.

You might also try a paper bag duel. A paper bag is blown up and attached to the wrist of each of two players in a ring. Then, using cardboard swords, they try to break their opponent's paper bag. The one who succeeds goes on to do battle with a new dueler.

DEAR ANNE:

In a recent column, M. K. M. had a lamp shade problem. Perhaps I can help her. If she has lamp bases which require unusual shades, there is a group of women who do make special shades to fit certain bases and are sponsored by the Waterford, Va., foundation. This group uses plastic and parchment papers in their shades, as well as burlap and novelty cotton materials. She can contact this group of local craftsmen by writing Mrs. Paul V. Rogers, Waterford Foundation, Waterford, Va. As you know, this is a non-profit organization for the restoration of this historic old town.

Eleanor Canty, Waterford, Va.

Marriages Increasing In Social Register Set

The Summer Social Register, just off the press, has checked into vital statistics and has come up with the fact that marriages are on the increase again, 1012 this year as compared with 891 last year. The death figures are lower in 1950 than they were a year ago. Social Register families who are changing their summer addresses are divided about equally between inland areas and seashore resorts. And the number of people going abroad is far greater than the Social Register shows, for many are traveling with no fixed address.

One on the Aisle—

Lowbrow Nonsense Can Be Real Funny

By Richard L. Coe

MAYBE YOU HAVE to be a 10-year-old to enjoy fully "The Good Humor Man," at the Warner, but even so I cheerfully admit I laughed like a fool at this one. Golly, it felt good.

This is pure, unadulterated, lowbrow slapstick—custard pies and all. Jack Carson is the star and the only sense in the story is that each jerky development leads to one more hilarious piece of nonsense. The windup is a chase scene through a school, with all the impedimenta of larnin' used to whack people over the head, cut the floor out from under them and send them flying in 17 different directions at once.

For some time the movie managers have been shouting for comedies. This one isn't for the literate, artsy-craftsy set; it's as lowbrow as the ordinary comic book hero Carson uses to push him through his scrambles. In fact, its story line is straight comic book stuff, and the absurd things everyone says to everyone else have the concise, one-syllable style that you find in the balloons of the comics.

It also goes back to the Harold Lloyd school of anything for frenzied laughs. The hero is an overgrown oaf who manages to turn into a great guy by accidentally bringing in a bag of criminals.

The yarn is goaded along in fits and starts by the trite things everyone says to everyone else. Carson, Heroine Lois Albright and a quartet of villains get hopelessly tangled in a school playground, flinging about with the abandon of the old Lloyd. Carson dolls up in female garb, gets frozen stiff in the ice compartment of his Good Humor truck and a band of kids has a field day throwing things in a school auditorium.

As for whether this is a tribute to those fellows in the white coats whose bell-ringing haunts the summer nights, one dare not guess. Their greatest glee must surely come when Carson manages to smear a chocolate-coated popsickle over the phizz of his rival, George Reeves. But whether they can all look forward to the excitement Jack gets and whether they could stand the punishment he takes is moot.

It's a long, long while since we've had quite such a dose of slapstick as this one lathers. Red Skelton' "The Fuller Brush Man" was mild in comparison. Could be we're in for a spell of presound pie-throwing, which will be okay with some of us so long as we get other, wittier fare along with it.

I wouldn't advise this one for the intellectuals, but for those of us who don't mind acting like 10-year-olds, "The Good Humor Man" has lots of laughs. The kids at yesterday's first show, in dour silence at some tasteless double entendre, screamed like drains at the slapstick, pie-throwing and sheer nonsense.

'THE GOOD HUMOR MAN." Columbia release produced by S. Sylvan Simon. Screen play by Frank Tashlin from "Appointment With Fear." Saturday Evening Post story by Roy Huggins. Photographed by Lester White. Music by Heinz Roemheld. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. At the Warner.

THE ARRIVAL at the Plaza this morning of "Gigi" will be an event for all who treasure things French . . . This is the first film to stem from a novel by Colette, universally acknowledged by all the French to be their greatest woman writer . . . An actress in her early days, Colette in her great age now looks back on an endless succession of novels . . . She's the first woman president of the Academie Concourt and spends her invalid days in an apartment off the Palais Royal gardens . . . In "Gigi," she says, "I wanted to show how, in the so-called lightest circles of society—and this may seem paradoxical—the young girls received a much stricter and more closely guarded upbringing than ordinary girls. Perhaps it was for the very reason that their elders were particularly aware of the pitfalls in store for the naive adolescent entering their world."

THE AGRICULTURE Players have inaugurated a series of Monday night lectures on the theater, tackling lighting, costumes, props, make-up, speech and history . . . Robert Stevens of the C. U. and G. W. speech and drama departments is in charge, inviting all interested each Monday night at 6:30 in the Jefferson Auditorium of the Agriculture Building.

CATHOLIC U.'S drama group having virtually taken over the Merrimack Playhouse, Concord, N. H., for the summer, next week will go further for "Jenny Kissed Me." . . . The Jean Kerr comedy which her husband directed for its first performance here will have a pack of C. U. names in the cast: Marilyn Hurley, Naomi Vincent, Nick Wanamaker, Brennan Moore, Bill McGuire, John Easley and Patricia Darragh.

STORM CENTER: Neil North, as "The Winslow Boy," over whom an Empire hesitates till "Right Be Done." The English film continues into its second week at the Trans-Lux

KID STUFF

Reporter Dorothea Andrews called up her friend Mrs. E. T. Rowland of 713 Poplar dr., Falls Church, Va., recently.

The phone was answered by Cliff Rowland, aged 3. "Hello, Cliff," said Andy. "Let me talk to your mother."

"My mommie is tied up right now and she can't come to the phone," replied Cliff.

"What's she tied up in?" joked Andy.

No man to bandy words, Cliff said: "She's tied up in a lariat." And with that he hung up the phone.

Miss Andrews got busy with other things, as reporters sometimes do, so she didn't call back for several hours. This time Mrs. Rowland answered the phone.

"What's all this stuff about you being tied up with a lariat?" Andy asked.

"Oh, thank goodness I've finally discovered who it was that Cliff hung up on. I've been calling people for hours, trying to find out who called me."

"Never mind that—what about the lariat?"

Mrs. Rowland laughed. "I was all tied up, all right. I couldn't come to the phone because we were playing cowboys and Indians at the moment, and I was an Indian."

"SOOT" YOURSELF, EH?

I did not happen to hear the program myself, because I am not much of a daytime radio listener.

But M. R. Shohet, Washington manager for Radio Reports, Inc., sends along a transcript of what Ruth Crane said to Jackson Weaver, and what Jackson said to Ruth. Subject: "soots."

They were discussing an item which had appeared here that morning. It was a reader's complaint that radio announcers often pronounce "suite" (as in "bedroom suite") as one might pronounce the word suit (as in "business suit").

My Webster says that suite (sweet) is the preferred word when speaking of a number of things constituting a series or set, such as a bedroom suite.

It adds that suit (with a long "u") may also be used to designate a series or set if one is speaking of a suit of armor, a suit of clothes, or a suit of playing cards. But for other sets, the word "suite" is preferable.

However Ruth and Jackson contend that the furniture trade almost universally uses the long "u" suit, rather than suite. And they follow the old radio rule that the proper way to pronounce a word is whatever way most people will understand what you're talking about.

A casual check of furniture men indicates Ruth and Jackson have a good point. Many dealers do call them "bedroom soots."

In spite of Mr. Webster, I think that if bedroom "soot" is generally used in the trade, it should be considered an acceptable alternative.

Dictionaries of the future will probably have to recognize it—just as they now accept the universal pronunciation of ba-TAWN for "baton" (instead of the unheard BAT-un they formerly insisted on) and hu-MOJ-an-ize for "homogenize" (instead of the perfectly ridiculous HO-mo-jen-ize that most elderly tomes still consider correct).

GIVE-AWAYS

"Lively 10-week-old female puppy, part hound." (Tower 5141.)

"Four-month-old female kitten, tiger striped—neat, bright and pretty." (Emerson 9028.)

"Two housebroken, affectionate kittens." (North 8588.)

SEASON'S BIGGEST UPSET

Frank J. Lausche, Democratic Governor of Ohio, has exploded the political bombshell of the summer season.

Lausche (it's pronounced to rhyme with "how-she") says he won't necessarily vote against Senator Taft just because Mr. Taft is a Republican. Instead, he'll study the issues and vote for the better candidate.

This announcement has sent mass shivers running down the spines of politicians. They shudder at the thought of what might happen if this curious practice ever captured the public imagination.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

What this column needs is more short jokes, to fill spaces like this one.

LET US BE GONE THEN QUICKLY, BEFORE THE TOTALITARIAN SOLDIERS CAN DESCEND TO THE STREET.
AND IF THOUGHT HAS NOT OCCURRED TO HONORABLE ANCESTOR SPIRITS, PLEASE NOTE — WOULD BE MOST HELPFUL IF REBELS ASSUME WE FLEE TO HILLS INSTEAD OF METAL BIRD'S RESTING PLACE.

GOP Chiefs List 1952 Prospects

By Drew Pearson

Republican leaders, already casting eyes at 1952, are now divided into three general groups.

Group No. 1—Is for Taft. They believe the GOP should come out on a strong, out-and-out conservative platform, not be afraid to buck labor and not worry about isolation. They are critical of Dewey because he was too New Dealish, are convinced a strong conservative can win.

PEARSON

Group No. 2—is for Eisenhower. This group is led by Tom Watson, head of International Business Machines, and various New York bigwigs. They think the party needs a strong, new name, even if once connected with the military; that Ike has kept out of politics, has made few enemies, would sweep the Nation.

Group No. 3—is for Governor Warren of California or Governor Duff of Pennsylvania. These are progressive leaders who point out that the GOP cannot win without labor, and that the big mistake they always make is to figure the Democrats are so weak that the GOP can "win with a Chinaman."

Warren's stock has taken a big jump since his overwhelming victory in the recent primaries in California. Sage leaders remind themselves that a man who beats a Roosevelt (Jimmy is running against him) will prove to the voting public that he has what other Republicans haven't had for 1q, these 18 years.

And they aren't at all sure the American public will fall for a military man even if he has been wearing a cap and gown.

Marshall Plan Papa

Youngish-looking Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, remarked to ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman that he had to go to Yale over the weekend because his two boys were graduating.

"Well, I have three sons, two daughters and a son-in-law all graduating this year," remarked Hoffman modestly.

This seemed almost too much to believe, even for a man as versatile as the Marshall Plan administrator. But this columnist, checking the facts, found the remarkable score chalked up by the Hoffman family to be as follows:

Donald Gray Hoffman graduated from Kenyon College, Ohio, in February, 1950.

Lathrop Hoffman graduated from the University of California in February, 1950.

Robert C. Hoffman will graduate from the University of California this fall.

Mrs. Kiriki de Diego Newmark, a ward, is graduating from Bennington College in July.

Ben Newmark, Hoffman's son-in-law, graduated from Williams in February, 1950.

Dangerous Senator? ?

With a majority of North Carolina publishers opposing Senator Frank Graham for reelection, a majority of working newsmen are vigorously for him. And unable to find adequate expression in all of their papers, the newsmen put out a special edition of the Mecklenburg Democrat in honor of Senator Graham.

Lead story in the special paper started off:

"Frank Graham is as dangerous as the Declaration of Independence, as radical as the beatitudes, as revolutionary as the Bill of Rights."

Healthy Labor Policy

Most Americans didn't realize the world-wide reverberation caused by the five-year contract between General Motors and the United Auto Workers. But Eric Johnston, alert czar of the motion picture industry, was in London at the time the contract was announced, and on his return bumped into Charles Wilson, head of General Motors.

"In England they thought we were on our last legs as far as labor relations go," Johnston told Wilson. "They thought labor and capital were at daggers' points, with no chance of cooperation. But your five-year agreement electrified England. They could hardly believe it. It's the best thing that could have happened to show that American labor and capital can get along and that we have faith in the capitalistic system."

Newsprint Conspiracy

The Celler committee investigating monopolies has got its hands on a hot document showing a world-wide conspiracy to boost the price of newsprint at the expense of American newspapers.

The report tells how Charles Vining, president of Scannews (Scandinavian newsprint cartel) made a secret trip to the United States and Canada some time ago to persuade the Newsprint Association of Canada to set up a world-wide newsprint cartel. The world markets—Australia, Europe, South Africa and the United States—were to be divided between Canada and Scandinavia, with the price hikes to all newspapers.
